LBJ Again Is Target For Aussie Protests

President Tired But Smiling

BRISBANE, Australia (AP) — President Johnson rode past a million cheering Australians in Sydney today, donned cowboy togs for a Texas-style barbecue outside Canberra and came to Brisbane looking weary and strained tonight, the eve of his flight to the Manila summit conference.

The wild welcome in Sydney, the nation's largest city, was marred by the sharpest demonstration Australia has seen against the U.S. role in Viet Nam.

Nevertheless, the President told a crowd in Brisbane:

"This is the most wonderful visit that I have ever been on. It is a sentimental journey."

ON TO MANILA

Brisbane is the last tour point in Australia for the President and his wife Lady Bird, except for a refueling stop at Townsville Sunday on his 3,700-mile flight to Manila.

More than a million excited Australians turned out in Sydney to greet the Americans. The crowds showered the Johnsons with confetti as anti-Viet Nam demonstrators hurled eggs and toilet paper in a tumultuous mixed welcome.

BARBECUE GUEST

Johnson returned to Canberra, the Australian capital, for a barbecue before flying on to Brisbane. (See pictures, page two.)

Johnson wore Western clothes and a Texas hat at the barbecue but changed to a business suit for the Canberra farewell, held in bitingly cold weather.

The President looked tired as he inspected an honor guard while a 21-gun salute boomed out.

Johnson drove directly to Fairbairn Airport outside Canberra after attending the barbecue at Lanyon Station 17 miles away. The cookout was given by an old friend, Edward Clark, the U.S. ambassador to Australia.

At the 10,000-acre ranch, Johnson met an Australian soldier recently returned from service in Viet Nam. The soldier presented the President with an Australian digger's slouch hat.

There were no demonstrators in sight as Johnson departed Canberra after an official farewell from Gov.-Gen. Lord Casey.

In Sydney, although Johnson's friends in the vast throng far

Filibuster Try Fails To Halt Bill Passage

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Congress removed the final barrier to adjournment today by approving a grab-bag tax bill that contained a revolutionary plan to finance presidential election campaigns with taxpayer dollars.

On a 31-22 roll call vote, the Senate passed and sent to the White House a controversial foreign investors bill. Its action made possible final adjournment of the 89th Congress later today.

Among the bills was a provision that would give the Republican and Democratic Parties $30 million each in tax revenues to help finance their 1968 presidential campaigns.

With that bill out of the way and with quick expected approval of a supplemental money bill in the Senate, Congress could go home to worry about its own election problems. Most of the House members already were on the stump. They finished work yesterday.

But a number of senators were forced to quit campaigning and return to Washington today to break a deadlock between Sens. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., and Russell B. Long, D-La., over the campaign fund.

Gore's blocking tactics were shattered by a 37 to 15 vote, rejecting his effort to kill the tax measure by tabling it. It was quickly followed by the vote on final passage.

Noting that only 52 Senators were present, Gore said he might have won if more members were on hand to hear him attack the bill.

Marin Describes Critical Bottleneck At Gate Bridge

By JOHN F. KEARNEY

Thomas D. Hardcastle of Novato, a director of the Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District, declared yesterday he considered the Marin-San Francisco commute problem was so critical "something will shortly have to give."

Either the Marin commuter will give in and move elsewhere, he said, or the city and county of San Francisco will give in and build an adequate freeway.

Hardcastle was testifying before the Assembly Interim Committee on Transportation and Commerce meeting in San Francisco to hear the district's proposal for a second deck on the Golden Gate Bridge.

Pressing for the second deck as "the only solution" to the commute traffic problem in the next 15 years, Hardcastle said he believed Marin commuters sympathized with San Francisco.

"Marin is imploring the city to do something about their problem now," he declared.

Earlier, the committee heard from district general manager James Adam that the directors will not give the green light for a second deck until plans for approaches and dispersal points at each end were in the planning stage. Freeways at the Marin County end provided no problem, he said.

"In the meantime we are going ahead and authorizing our plans in readiness," he said. "What else can we do? We could have the second deck completed in four years. Other alternatives for a bay crossing aren't even on the horizon."

L. E. Castner, chairman of the bridge board, said that engineering studies were only at the preliminary stage at present.

Unofficial cost figures had been quoted by two engineering firms, Ammann and Whitney and the Tudor Engineering Co., but Castner pointed out, they were only approximate and not suitable for setting up a financial schedule.

Tudor had quoted $35 million as the cost of their plan but Ammann and Whitney had disputed this, saying the Tudor plan would more likely be $97,600,000. Ammann and Witney had said their own plan would cost $41,500,000.

Castner said time required to construct the second deck ranged from two years and nine months under the Ammann and Whitney plan to five years and six months under the Tudor proposal.

The preliminary design and estimate had been discussed by the directors but no definite action had yet been taken, said the board chairman.

In the immediate future, he contended mass bus transit would offer some relief "if operated with a reasonable balance between quality of service, level of fares and bridge toll rates."

It would not, however, completely offset the inevitable increase in volume of commutor cars, Castner said.

Asked by committee chairman Assemblymen Tom C. Carrell, D-Los Angeles, how it was proposed to pay for the second deck, Castner said it was possible to finance "comfortably" through earnings of the bridge.

He added: "We have the authority to do it now but we do not want to antagonize anyone on either side. We have, how-

Laotian Revolt Collapses, No New Bloodshed

COMBINED AP AND UPI

Vientiane radio said today national Laotian forces had recaptured Savannakhet Air Base without a shot being fired and rebel pilots under Brig. Gen. Thao Ma had "fled abroad."

A broadcast heard in London said this information was issued by the office of the premier.

Neutralist Premier Prince Souvanna Phouma of Laos left Paris today for his troubled homeland, confident that yesterday's bloodshed was a fight between dissident military elements and not an atempted coup.

He said Gen. Thao Ma, the air force officer who led the revolt, had left Savannakhet, his military base south of Vientiane for an "unknown destination."

It was believed Ma had gone to Thailand where Gen. Phoumi Nosavan, another right-wing general, went into exile after an attempted coup two years ago.

At the height of the flareup betwen Ma and Gen. Kouprasith Abhay, commander of the Fifth Military Region, Ma's planes bombed and strafed the Vientiene military barracks with six American-built T28 fighter bombers, killing 15 persons and wounding several more.

The rebellion apparently was the sequel of Ma's demotion three weeks ago from his post of air force chief and his shift to the post of armed forces

Welsh Halt Slides; 130 Bodies So Far

ABERFAN, Wales (AP) — Rescue workers today succeeded in halting a moving mountain of coal mine refuse which had engulfed a school and at least 14 homes in this tiny Welsh village, leaving 200 feared dead. (See pictures on page 20)

Engineers and miners worked nonstop through the night digging deep channels through the black sludge to divert water from building up inside the heap and causing possible further slides.

Half the 800-foot slag heap crashed down a green hillside yesterday, crushing a junior school and a row of miners' cottages.

Rescue officials said that 130 bodies — nearly all children — have been dug out of the debris.

Officials said that no survivors had been found since yesterday.

One minister said no special services would be held in the village's churches tomorrow. "Hearts are breaking," he said. "The sorrow is too great for the usual sermons. We can only pray."

The Rev. Kenneth Hayes, pastor of the English Baptist Chapel, which has the largest membership in Aberfan, said he plans to conduct services. His 9-year-old son is among the missing.

District education director John Beale said 36 children who were rescued had been hospitalized and another 88 escaped when the disaster struck.

The bodies of David Benton, deputy head teacher at the school, and five children were found late last night.

"David was clutching the five little children in his arms as if to protect them," said the miner who found them. "He and the five children died clutching each other." The miner then lapsed into shock.

Rescue workers, some up to their knees in sludge, carefully picked through the debris of the buried schoolrooms. The slag was emptied onto the streets where giant yellow earth-moving machines loaded it onto dump trucks.

Bodies of the children, covered by red blankets, were carried out on stretchers and laid out for identification in a nearby chapel. Police allowed parents through one or two at a time.

Prime minister Harold Wilson and Lord Snowdon, husband of Princess Margaret, were among the first officials to arrive.

Through the night giant arc lights lit up the scene of the disaster — one of the worst of its kind in Britain.

Rescue workers, most of them miners, were dragged from the Soviets Launch Probe At Moon

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union launched its 12th lunar spacecraft today to explore the moon and its environment.

The launching came after rumors had circulated in the Moscow diplomatic community that the Soviet Union was soon going to try to send a craft to the moon and bring it back to earth —something never done before.

There was no indication, however, in the first brief official announcement of today's launching that this was intended.

More Rumors Say LBJ Will Visit Viet Nam

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Ground fighting in South Viet Nam lapsed again into small patrol skirmishes today amid fresh reports that President Johnson would visit the war front next week.

U. S. officials would not confirm these reports but they did not deny them. They stemmed largely from extra security measures under way.

In battle action, U. S. pilots said they knocked out an unusually high number of cargo barges — 154 — along the North Vietnamese coastline yesterday. The large-scale water traffic suggested that the Communists were turning increasingly to the sea to move their supplies instead of along relentlessly bombed railroads and highways.

American planes flew 120 bombing missions yesterday over the Communist north and the forays reportedly cost one plane, the 407th loss of the war. A U. S. spokesman announced that an Air Force F-105 Thunderchief went down and that its pilot was missing.

U.S. intelligence reports indicated the Viet Cong would step up terrorism and military activity during the Manila summit conference next Monday and Tuesday. Informants would not give the basis of these reports, which usually come from prisoners, captured documents and behind-lines agents.

The most talked-of date for a possible visit by President Johnson after the Manila summit conference was next Thursday while Johnson is en route from Manila to Thailand. Some of the renewed speculation arose after an announcement that Prime Minister Nguyen Cao Ky would return from Manila early Thursday afternoon and the possibility developed that he would accompany Johnson.

The Holiday Bird Will Be Expensive

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The holiday rise in the price of turkey was higher and came earlier this year, the Agriculture Department reports.

Despite a crop 11 per cent above 1965, wholesale prices this week ranged between 39 and 39.5 cents per pound for 8 to 17 pound hens in some large eastern markets, it was reported yesterday. This compared to 36 cents a pound at this time last year.

State Warned Tracts Threaten To Swallow Mountain Park Site

By ROBERT M. STREBEIGH

Pastoral Franks Valley—long sought for expansion of Mount Tamalpais State Park westward to the ocean—will soon become a highly developed residential area unless the land is quickly acquired by the state.

That prediction was made yesterday by Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, at a public hearing of the State Park Commission held in San Francisco.

Bagley told the commission that officials of the First Christian Church of America—which recently bought the 1,835-acre Brazil Ranch in the valley—had shown him development plans calling for a density of 2.5 dwelling units per acre.

The Southern California group —which Bagley insisted had never held a religious service at the time of the land purchase—was cited as an example of "pressure" on the choice open area by "fast buck" developers.

At issue before the commission was how to spend $4 million in state funds allocated for expansion of the park.

Clouding that issue, according to William A. Marcus, president of the board of directors of the Marin Municipal Water District, have been reports that the district has offered to sell 1,100 acres of its adjoining watershed land to the state park system.

Marcus told the Independent-Journal today that the district directors "are not acting as salesmen . . . are not trying to sell or lease land to the state for a park." The district, according to Marcus, has been approached by the State Park Commission and has advised the commission that if it requires some land in the watershed north of Mount Tamalpais, the district will sell to the state.

"But," said Marcus, "if the commission chooses to buy land in Franks Valley, the district certainly would approve that."

Marcus said there was no foundation for repeated suggestions made yesterday by Commissioner John P. Elsbach that the district might sell its land to private developers.

Marcus said, "The board has gone on record in 1962, 1964 and 1966 that it will never agree to sell out water district lands to private developers." He said, "That land is preserved for the use of all the people and is not to be used for private profit."

Marcus's statement echoed assurances given Elsbach yester-

Kennedy Praises Brown's Record In Governorship

COMBINED AP & UPI

Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., today told Californians their state leads the nation in education, crime prevention and a host of other fields. He gave Gov. Edmund G. Brown credit for much of the state's progress.

Kennedy planned a weekend of campaigning on behalf of the Democratic governor's third term bid and in support of Democratic candidates for Congress.

Almost 2,000 persons —some openly hostile, some enthusiastically friendly, and some just curious, surged through police lines and pressed close to Kennedy as he stepped off his charter jet airliner last night at Burbank.

Kennedy quipped later, "I keep reading those polls about my popularity. The other half was at the airport."

Kennedy spoke Friday night to an overflow crowd of more than 1,000 at a $25-a-plate dinner honoring Rep. James Corman, D-Calif. He said ways must be found to stop racial violence, such as the Watts riot last year and the San Francisco uprising earlier this month.

"We must prevent the repetition of violence — just as the underlying condition which gave it birth, the poverty and degradation of Negro life in the city, must also be a thing of the past," Kennedy said Friday night.

Kennedy boosted Brown, who is seeking a third term, and Corman by comparing California with New York.

In New York, he said, most students must pay tuition at colleges and the state has had to raise taxes repeatedly. But in California, "parents are free from worry about tuition cost," and the state has progressed "without new sales or income taxes since 1959," Kennedy said.

Brown greeted Kennedy at the airport and planned most of his weekend schedule to coincide with the senator's. Kennedy will travel into the San Francisco Bay area Sunday where he will speak at the University of California at Berkeley.

In Concord (Contra Costa County) Republican Ronald Reagan accused Democratic Gov. Brown of being unable or unwilling to prevent predicted trouble at the University of California's Berkeley campus.

The GOP gubernatorial candidate took sharp issue Friday night with the governor during a chilly shopping center rally attended by about 2,000 persons just over the hill from the turbulent Berkeley campus that has become an election issue.

Two issues are the center of controversy. One is a "black power" rally scheduled for the campus on Oct. 29 organized by supporters of Stokely Carmichael, head of the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee.

The other is due to feature Senator Kennedy tomorrow with the aim of boosting the candidacy of Brown.

"Tensions run high and the danger of more rioting and bloodshed is great," Reagan told the crowd of suburban middle class white families. It was in neighboring Oakland this week that Negro youths stirred unrest.

Reagan noted that he had asked Brown to join him in urging Carmichael and his sponsors to call off the rally, and that Brown had refused.

"There is a leadership gap in Sacramento and that gap was never more evident than now in the Bay Area. I am glad the governor has promised to react quickly in case there's trouble. I am only sorry that he will not or cannot exercise the leadership to try to prevent trouble before it happens," the GOP candidate declared.

He pointed out that Brown had criticized his comments on the "black power" rally situation as "cynical or stupid or both." Reagan added, "The governor in the heat of the campaign often resorts to name calling and equally as often lets his contempt for the intelligence of the people slip through."

MIXED WELCOME—Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., faces a sea of placards waved by a crowd of 2,000 at Burbank. The younger brother of the late President Kennedy came to California last night to begin two days of stumping the state to help re-elect Gov. Edmund G. Brown and other Democratic candidates. He was greeted by signs ranging from "Carpetbagger" and "Yankee Go Home" to "RFK in '72." (UPI Telephoto)

Britain Soothes U.N. Alarm Over Rhodesia

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Britain told the U.N. General Assembly today its recent talks with rebel Rhodesia aimed to warn that white minority regime that strong Security Council action would be sought unless the rebellion ended.

Lord Caradon, British chief delegate, gave that explanation as the 121-nation assembly met to vote on an African- and Asian-sponsored resolution criticizing the talks. He said Britain would abstain from voting.

Caradon said that last week a British official took a communication of British policy to Salisbury, Rhodesia. He said that though the official returned to London yesterday "no final reply has been received from the illegal regime" and so the communication will not be published.

But, Caradon went on, its "clear and declared intention was that the illegal regime in Salisbury should be informed" that economic penalties would be sought in the Security Council unless it was prepared to take the "indispensable tseps whereby the rebellion is brought to an end."

"The clear and declared intention," he said, "was to give them a further chance to take those indispensable steps."

Though a Saturday meeting is unusual, the delegates showed up in time to be called to order at 10:43 a.m. only 13 minutes behind schedule.

The African-Asian bloc, showing its power, brought about the Saturday session by pushing the resolution through the Assembly's Trusteeship Committee last night on little more than three hours' notice.

The resolution, put forward by most of the U.N.'s 64 African and Asian members, would have the assembly note "with grave concern that 'the talks about talks'" between Britain and Rhodesia jeopardized "the inalienable rights of the African people of Zimbabwe," the African name for Rhodesia.

John W. S. Malecela of Tanzania interrupted the Trusteeship Committee's debate on Rhodesia to submit the proposal after expressing alarm over reports that Britain was about to reach agreement with Rhodesia's white regime. He said immediate Assembly action was needed.

Prime Minister Ian Smith's government declared Rhodesia independent of Britain last Nov. 11 as a result of British pressure to move the colony toward African majority rule. A voluntary oil embargo voted by the U.N. Security Council at Britain's request has failed to bring Smith's government down.

Britain, the United States, Belgium, Canada,France, Italy, the Netherlands and New Zealand did not take part in yesterday's vote.

The African and Communist countries, almost all the Asian and some Western European and Latin-American countries voted for the proposal.

HOW IT'S DONE DOWN UNDER

President Lyndon B. Johnson, who certainly is no stranger to barbecues, watches the chef prepare a cook-out at Lanyon Station, 17 miles from Australia's capital Canberra, today. Stanford Sets Up Medical Computer

STANFORD (UPI) — The Stanford University Medical Center is installing a $2 million Advanced Computer for Medical Research which will analyze simultaneously experiments from different laboratories.

The IBM computer will also process data from medical instruments hooked up to patients, allowing doctors to monitor critical body functions more accurately during surgery or acute illness.

Linguistic studies have shown pidgin, in which many medical and religious books have been written, is a language in its own right, not simply a corruption of English.

Pike Opponent Wants Bishop 'Unfrocked'

WHEELING, W.Va. (AP) — Episcopal Bishop James A. Pike of California is scheduled to arrive here tonight to meet with other bishops attempting to unfrock him on charges of heresy.

He is expected to take part in preliminary discussions —on the heresy charges and other church matters —tonight and tomorrow, prior to the official opening of the church's House of Bishops week long meeting.

Although formal charges probably won't be presented this session because of a technicality, the Rt. Rev. Henry I. Louttit, bishop of south Florida, says he will present the heresy case for discussion.

The charges brought by Louttit concern Pike's interpretation of church doctrine on the trinity and virgin birth.

Pike previously has been accused of heresy by some critics, but has never faced formal charges under church law.

Louttit has said: "What we want is for him (Pike) to resign the episcopate. The common word is unfrocked. I want him to admit he does not accept the faith."

The formal charges probably will not be presented because the last Episcopal General Convention failed to fill vacancies on the church's trial court, leaving the body without a quorum.

The next church convention won't be held until September, 1967.

Pike resigned Oct. 12 as auxiliary bishop of the Episcopal diocese of California, saying at the time, "I wish to disassociate my diocese and my successor as diocesan bishop, the Rt. Rev. C. Kilmer Myers, as much as possible from these disturbing controversies."

Pike remains a bishop in retirement and holds position of honorary canon at Grace Cathedral in San Francisco.

Oakland Pupils Still Boycott Classrooms

OAKLAND (UPI) — About 8,000 pupils stayed away from Oakland's junior and senior high schools yesterday, but there was disagreement as to why they did so.

Negro leaders had called for a school boycott to protest alleged racial imbalance in the city's schools. About 10 per cent of the absentees turned up at the University of California for "freedom classes" on civil rights and job opportunities.

They were denied access to meeting rooms on campus by UC authorities and left the campus after about two hours.

School principal Stuart S. Phillips said that scattered disturbances Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday and the beating of five white teachers at Castlemont High School were what led to the mass absences.

"Parents have indicated they are keeping children home for fear of their safety," said Phillips.

Oakland police, meanwhile, reported that 76 persons had been arrested since sporadic violence started Tuesday night. They said that two stores were badly looted yesterday and there were a few rock-throwing incidents. Things were reported back to normal last night although police conceded they had increased the number of patrolmen considerably in the tense East Oakland area.

The Oakland Board of Education said 3,972 of the city's 12,838 high school students failed to attend classes yesterday. Junior high schools, with a total enrollment of 14,504, reported 4,001 absent.

The Oakland Education Assn., which represents 2,200 teachers, demanded last night that strong action be taken to prevent further violence.

The 800 pupils who went to the U.C. Berkeley campus rallied on a lower plaza and heard an unidentified Negro youth harangue Oakland school officials. "Black power is going to arrive," he shouted. "Make the white man beg like he made us beg."

Moscow Summit Session May Increase Hanoi Arms

MOSCOW (UPI) —The Soviet Union and its Communist allies were believed ready today to supply North Viet Nam with the latest weapons in their arsenals, possibly including new types of missiles to replace the ones that have been ineffective against American planes.

A Russian communique issued after a summit conference with the heads of eight visiting Communist nations did not spell out the aid it would give to Hanoi but throughout the emphasis was on modern weapons the Russians showed to its visitors.

The communique issued after yesterday's close of the summit meeting spoke of the demonstrations of tactical weapons witnessed by the visitors at an Army base near Moscow and at the top secret Soviet space center near Baikonur in central Asia.

The communique skirted what diplomatic sources believed were the main points of discussion at the conference:

The decision to scrap an earlier aid plan adopted at Bucharest in July and to increase both military and economic aid to Hanoi in amounts at least enough to replace material destroyed by continuing American air strikes.

The Russian failure to win conference consideration for a joint Communist stand against Communist China.

Delegates from Cuba, Mongolia and the six Warsaw Pact nations in east Europe-Hungary, East Germany, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Bulgaria and Romania—attended the deliberations with their Soviet hosts. Some of the delegations left for home after the conference ended yesterday and the rest were expected to leave within the next few days.

Political Brass Will Attend Byrd Funeral

BERRYVILLE, Va. (UPI) — Prominent figures, including Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey and a personal representative of President Johnson, gather at Winchester, Va., tomorrow for the funeral of former U.S. Sen. Harry F. Byrd Sr.

Byrd's family released the names of pallbearers late yesterday and the list reflected the senator's broad friendship, both in his own political party and in that of the opposition.

Byrd, who gained fame as the "watchdog" of the nation's purse strings in a senatorial career that lasted 32 years, died Thursday at the age of 79 from a malignant brain tumor. He had slipped into a coma on July 6.

Heading the pallbearer list was Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., Senate majority leader; E. Blackburn Moore, speaker of the Virginia General Assembly's House of Delegates, and Republican Sen. John J. Williams of Delaware.

Members of the Byrd family also will be among the eight pallbearers.

The White House said Treasury Secretary Henry Fowler, a native Virginia, will officially represent the President.

Smoking Victim

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Smoking in bed cost the life of a woman pensioner in a downtown San Francisco hotel early Saturday and forced 64 other residents to flee from the building. Dead at the Eastman Hotel, was Mrs. Frances Boardman, 74.

Cabinet Aide Sees No New Price Control

HOT SPRINGS, Va. (AP) — Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler said today the administration does not intend to impose price controls as a means of combating inflation.

"Because our economy is so robust and resilient, there is not on any horizon we can now foresee the slightest prospect that controls will be required," Fowler told the fall meeting of the Business Council.

But the Treasury secretary declined in his prepared speech to rule out increases in income and corporate tax rates if inflationary pressures continue.

"It may well be that, in the months ahead, further restraints will be required in federal fiscal policy," Fowler said, adding: "I cannot — and will not — speculate on what further fiscal steps we might take."

Some of the 100 leading businessmen at the meeting said they would favor hikes in income and corporate tax rates if it is impossible to curb inflation through cuts in government spending.

Catastrophic accidents, those taking five or more lives, were lower by about 300 during the first six months of 1966 than in the same period of 1965.

Bay Area Pilot, Dog Found Dead In Plane Crash

FRESNO (AP) — A missing San Francisco man has been found dead in the wreckage of a flying club's plane in a Sierra meadow some 50 miles northeast of Fresno.

The bodies of Guido Nosenzo and his pet German shepherd were found near Bass Lake Friday. Nosenzo had been missing since Oct. 7 when he took off from the San Carlos airport on a flight to Sacramento.

Federal Aviation Agency officials said that the plane had not burned after crashing, suggesting that it may have been out of gas.

A flight log found in the plane showed that Nosenzo survived the crash and remained alive for two days, officials said.

Medics: 'Make Smoking Taboo'

NEW YORK (AP)—The Federal Task Force on Respiratory Diseases—24 physicians—has found "it will be necessary to work toward the ultimate rejection of smoking as acceptable social behavior."

Terming the use of cigarettes a health hazard, the task force recommended that legislation resigned to bring about selective prohibitions against smoking be studied.

The physicians also suggested, in a report issued yesterday, that cigarette advertising be reduced or eliminated.

Famous 'Red Dean' Dies At 92

Johnson

CANTERBURY, England (UPI)—Dr. Hewlett Johnson, the controversial "Red Dean," of Canterbury, died today at the age of 92.

Johnson stirred anger and resentment by his frequent espousal of the Communist line while serving in the Church of England. His "Red Dean" title stemmed from his Communist activities.

He was hospitalized after a fall yesterday. Cause of death was not immediately announced.

Johnson resigned his Canterbury post in 1963.

Johnson also once said in a Christmas message that if Jesus Christ were alive today, he would be a Communist.

Ohio City Acts Against Terror

CINCINNATI (UPI)—A "brother's keeper" program was in effect today in this fear struck Ohio River city where five women have met violent death in the past 10 months.

Officials placed police on 12-hour shifts and asked citizens to watch over each other, especially women living alone, in the wake of the rape and stangulation of Miss Rose Winstel Thursday.

Three suspects were picked up Thursday night but were released yesterday following questioning.

Concern over the recent crime wave in the city was shown yesterday by city council's actions. City Manager William Wichman placed all uniformed policemen on 12-hour shifts, took 28 recruits out of class to accompany patrolmen on regular beats; asked retired policemen, fireman and ex-servicemen with military police experience to register in case of an emergency; and made another warning to all housewives to keep windows, doors and garage doors locked at all times.

outnumbered his foes, the Viet Nam dissenters succeeded in disrupting his motorcade as some threw themselves down in the street and pelted the procession with eggs and other missiles.

The President kept smiling throughout — but he had to curb his zest for jumping into the crowds for handshakes. Secret Service bodyguards also persuaded him to detour around a couple of potential trouble spots — one the campus of the University of New South Wales.

As a result of the hostile displays, Johnson's car was driven at rapid clip past many thousands.

The official crowd estimate was 1,250,000 — perhaps the largest outpouring Johnson has ever seen and, according to authorities, the biggest crowd in Australian history.

Early in the day, Johnson stopped and got out of his car several times to greet well-wishers. That was before the trouble started.

Then came a sudden change of cars. The President got out of his armored bubbletop limousine and into an ordinary black sedan. The White House said the limousine's air conditioning ducts had become clogged with confetti and paper — making the interior almost unbearably hot. It was a warm, bright day in Sydney.

Shortly after the change of cars, Johnsons' motorcade ran into real trouble, on Liverpool Street. For about three blocks the curbs on both sides were jammed with antiwar demonstrators tossing black streamers and black balloons. They waved hundreds of hostile placards — "Murderer", "U. S. Kills Kids," "Go Home Yanks" — and jeered loudly.

As the President's car approached, about half a dozen young men and women ran into the street and threw themselves to the pavement. Police hauled them away.

Dozens of other demonstrators swarmed past police and into the street, shouting obscenities, pounding their fists on the autos and throwing missiles of one kind and another.

An egg struck the rear window of Mrs. Johnson's car, splattering across the glass. She was riding in a separate glass-domed vehicle.

Johnson stayed in his car until he reached the Art Gallery of New South Wales to attend a civic reception.

While the President spoke inside, hundreds of Viet Nam dissenters, most of them young people, gathered outside and jeered his words, which were carried to them over a public address system. Their cries were audible inside.

Fist fights broke out between police and demonstrators as some protesters tried to swarm toward the gallery entrance. At least half a dozen persons were arrested and carried away before the violence was quelled.

When the Johnsons emerged, friends and foes tried to outshout each other. A red-coated military band tried to still the tumult by playing "God Save the Queen" as the Johnsons drove away behind a wedge of mounted policemen.

scene as they swayed from fatigue.

Little hope was held for finding any more alive. The next thing was to take the roll call — a ritual in mine disasters in this Welsh countryside — to get an exact count of the toll.

The slag heap — waste from a century of digging at the nearby Merthyr Vale mine — slipped after being loosened by days of heavy rains. Few saw the avalanche approach because of fog which reduced visibility to 10 yards.

Stanford Begins Forced Haircut Investigation

STANFORD (UPI) — Stanford University today investigated what some say was the campus' most famous haircut.

Officials appeared outraged by the action of 20-30 persons who abducted student body president David Harris, 21, and shaved off his long hair, sparing only a beard and moustache at his request.

"This despicable incident makes me sad and angry . . ." Associate Dean of Students Joel P. Smith said yesterday.

One of the so-called barbers—believed to be fraternity men—was quoted as saying the job was done "to protest the image of the Stanford Student Dave Harris represents."

One abductor reportedly told a campus newsman that Harris remained calm throughout the incident Thursday night. He was bound and shaved nearly bald with hair clippers.

U.C. Gets Additional $11.4 Million

Special to the I-J

Individual gifts and bequests to the University of California increased 30 per cent during the past fiscal year. They totaled $11.4 million in 1965-66, compared with $8.8 million in 1964-65.

Overall, support from nongoverment sources last fiscal year totaled $26,428,875, one-hundredth of one per cent less than the previous year, when $7 million in grants was received from the Ford Foundation. No major gifts comparable to the Ford grant were received this past year.

The Council for Financial Aid to Education reported this summer that UC ranked first in the nation in voluntary financial support among public universities and colleges during 1964-65. The University ranked sixth nationally among all institutions of higher education, the council reported.

Among the campuses, in 1965-66, UCLA led in private gifts and bequests received, with $9 million, a 27 per cent increase over the previous year. The Los Angeles campus received 34.3 per cent of the total amount. Berkeley was second with 19.2 per cent and Davis third with 10.9 per cent.

It was the third time in the past four years that UCLA had led other UC campuses in gifts and bequests, and its total is the largest amount ever received by a University campus.

At Berkeley, the annual giving program sponsored by the California Alumni Foundation reported an increase for the third consecutive year. A total of 3,761 Berkeley alumni contributed $178,000, a 26 per cent increase.

Berkeley alumni contributed a grand total of $677,000 to the University in 1965-66, an increase of more than 33 per cent compared with 1964-65, when contributions totaled $408,000. Berkeley non-alumni contributions by individuals last fiscal year totaled $994,000, down from $1,045,000 sent in the previous year.

day by Mrs. Mary Donnelly of the Marin Conservation League that the MMWD lands were not under pressure, but that the Franks Valley properties were.

Byron W. Leydecker, chairman of the county board of supervisors, told the commission that even if the water district did consider selling to developers, public opinion in Marin would never permit it.

A large number of speakers, representing conservation and recreation oriented organizations, appeared before the commission, all of them urging that the entire $4 million be applied to purchase of private lands for the park expansion, particularly the Brazil-Souza ranch properties in Franks Valley. All of them opposed any purchase of MMWD property, already protected for public use.

Sierra Club vice president, Edgar Wayburn urged the commission to act soon. Referring to park expansion plans, he said, "This has been studied to death." He said the state "has lost 10 years and seen a tripling of the cost of private lands" needed for the park.

The commission said it would make a final decision on what lands to purchase when it meets November 18 in Sacramento.

Clyde Burnett, state director of aeronautics, said that the answer to commuter congestion on the Golden Gate Bridge is "to get some of this traffic in the air."

Burnett said that the day of the "flying bus" which can offer cheap, efficient and safe transportation for commuters is almost here.

Yet, he said, "We have 230 heliports in Los Angeles County and I can't get even one in San Francisco."

Burnett said that it is imperative that the city construct takeoff and landing pads for short or vertical takeoff aircraft.

Souvanna indirectly disclaimed allegations made in the French press that the attack was a coup launched by rightist officers who expected the United States to support them.

He said the action of the rebels was non-political and had nothing to do with the war raging in neighboring Viet Nam. He said Prince Boun Oum, the top leader of the right-wing generals, had appealed in person to Ma to stop his action.

Windmills Save Steps

BROKEN ARROW, Okla. (AP) Modern steel windmills, located to save steps for range cattle, play a part in producing beefier steaks for U. S. housesolds.

Placed so no thirsty steer will have to walk more than a mile to water, thousands of windmills are at work on the ranches of Texas, Oklahoma, Nebraska and other large ranching states, according to W. C. Dean, vice president of Aermotor Division of Braden-Aermotor Corporation.

The company, which produces more than 80 per cent of all U. S. made windmills, estimates that more than 100,000 windmills are in service in Texas alone cutting cattle weight losses.

Assn. Backs Two More Firemen In Corte Madera

Mariners Cove Improvement Assn. members last night informally declared their support for Corte Madera Chief Frank Nelson's proposal that two firemen be added to the Corte Madera Fire Department, according to association vice-president Howard Harvey.

Harvey said that association members would like to have the two men stationed at the Paradise Drive sub-station.

Nelson's proposal was backed by a 3-1 vote of the Fire Protection Study Committee Wednesday.

Association president Albert J. Boro reported that the study committee will make their recommendation at the town council meeting on Nov. 7.

African Residents Fish On Main Street

DURBAN, South Africa (AP) Residents of Himeville, a Natal province village in the foothills of the Drakensberg range, caught trout weighing up to half a pound in their main street after a flash storm over the mountain.

A deluge of three inches of rain in just over half an hour brought the Umkomazana River down in flood. Water knee-deep swept through the main street. When it began subsiding people waded in and caught the trout as they swam along the road.

Mill Valley Drought Brings Citizen's Fire

A Mill Valley resident complained to Marin Municipal Water District's board of directors yesterday about the poor water supply at his home.

Dennis W. Behenna of 20 Magdalena Court said he was primarily concerned about fire hazards. He complained he sometimes had to borrow water from his neighbors to cook dinner.

Board president William A. Marcus said the district would check out the problem with engineering and construction departments.

General Manager William R. Seeger told board members that an agreement by MMWD with the State Fish and Game Division has proved expensive. It has cost the district one dollar per fingerling fish in the last seven months of the fish trapping operation in Nicasio Reservoir. The board decided to invite a member of the Fish and Game division to discuss trimming this cost.

Marin Municipal Water District Also:

Sandoval Gets One-To-Life On Molesting

Jaime Sandoval, 36, onetime San Rafael hospital attendant who figured in the strange death of a Millbrae woman in 1960 and the subsequent suicide of her husband in Lucas Valley, has been sentenced to serve one year to life for molesting the couple's young sons.

San Mateo County Superior Judge Howard Hartley imposed the sentence yesterday at Redwood City on Sandoval who has been at Atascadero State Hospital for the past six years undergoing mental treatment.

He was imprisoned after conviction on the morals charge in 1961 but later gained a hearing to determine if he was cured as a sexual psychopath. He was ruled cured three months ago.

The full story of the strange death of Virginia Douglas in Puerto Rico and the apparent suicide ofher husband, Donald, has never been established.

Sandoval allegedly obtained $16,000 from the couple to settle a fictitious inheritance. He went with Mrs. Douglas to Puerto Rico and later reported she had fallen to her death over a cliff. Her body was never found.

Douglas flew to Puerto Rico and returned with Sandoval. Four days later, Douglas disappeared and was later found dead in a car in Lucas Valley apparently of carbon monoxide fumes.

Skin Disease Found Helped By Cancer Drug

Special to the I-J

SAN FRANCISCO—A skin disease that affects millions of persons—psoriasis—is being effectively treated with an anticancer drug called MTX, according to a dermatologist at the University of California Medical Center here.

Dr. Rees B. Rees said that results in the treatment of 168 patients with severe psoriasis were "good to excellent" in 70 to 75 per cent of the cases.

"When results were considered 'good,' patients have shown 50 per cent or more improvement," Dr. Rees explained. "Excellent' means 75 per cent improvement to complete clearing up of the symptoms."

In the cases cited, the disease had ceased crippling effects "socially, economically or physically," Dr. Rees said.

In considering the results of treatments on 3,000 other psoriasis patients across the country, Dr. Rees said that "under carefully controlled supervision, MTX treatment is better than any other developed thus far."

In psoriasis the skin erupts with silvery, fish-like scales. Cause of the disease is genetic but otherwise unknown. "It results from too rapid reproduction of the top layer of skin cells," Dr. Rees said. "However, it is not a cancerous growth."

The drug, originally used to treat leukemia, impairs normal, desirable reproduction of healthy body cells—as well as diseased cells. Dr. Rees emphasized that "MTX treatment must be carefully supervised to balance beneficial with undesirable effects."

Rusk And Asian Leaders Shape Summit Talks

MANILA (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Asian allies began shaping today a seven-nation Manila conference agreement aimed at promoting peace for Viet Nam while tightening allied unity in carrying on the war.

Rusk met with Philippines Foreign Secretary Narciso Ramos in the first of a series of talks expected to prepare the way for quick accord on key war-and-peace declarations in the summit sessions Monday and Tuesday.

Reports persisted among Asian diplomats of a hawks-and-doves split, with governments like South Korea and South Viet Nam fearful that President Johnson's emphasis on peace-seeking may mean some weakening of his war aims or lowering of the price for settlement in South Viet Nam.

U.S. authorities dismissed such apprehensions as unfounded. They said Johnson would not order a pause in the bombing of North Viet Nam, timed with the Manila meeting.

Some critics of the war have said this would increase the conference's aura of peace.

The Johnson administration's view at this time is said to be that the bombing of North Viet Nan could be a lever for moving the North Vietnamese toward negotiations or at least toward de-escalating the fighting.

The administration was reported resolved not to order a bombing pause as a one-sided peace gesture that would likely produce little progress toward peace.

Some diplomats here are viewing the Manila conference as primarily a stage-setting operation in which the allies can define their war aims and declare their peace hopes, as well as set up procedures for consultation — regardless of the reactions of North Viet Nam and Red China.

Johnson and other government chiefs are due here tomorrow.

Machinery Aging In East Germany

BERLIN, Germany (GF) — Thirty-one per cent of industrial machinery and equipment in the Soviet zone of Germany is 20 years or more old, according to an analysis of the zone's economy recently conducted here.

Economists working on the survey concluded this could be the reason for lethargic productivity and frequent lack of quality of products noted in the zone.

They also said this could help explain Pankow's labor force shortage in industrial production. Too many workers, they reasoned, are involved in repairing the old machines.

Economic planners in the zone have recently given signs they are moving to improve the tools of production. They are earmarking large sums to "rationalize" their industry.

Committee On Quake Hazards Starts Task

A 12-man fact-finding committee, appointed to determine the best way to reconstruct or replace Bolinas-Stinson School District classrooms considered an earthquake hazard, met last night for the first time.

The meeting drafted a letter which, subject to the district board's approval, will be sent to all residents in the district.

Trustee Arthur E. Carpenter said today the letter repeats the facts reported to the board Wednesday and explains to district voters their choice of financing the project either through a bond issue or special tax.

Engle and Engle, San Rafael structural engineers, have found that three rooms—one at Stinson and two at Bolinas—failed to meet earthquake resistance requirements of the state's Field Act.

The full board will meet to discuss the letter Wednesday at Stinson School at 7:30 p.m.

State Senator O'Brien Guilty

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — State Sen. Bernard F. O'Brien Jr., 31, Saturday was found guilty on charges that he asked a Michigan State University coed to engage in sexual intercourse for stag movies.

A Justice Court jury of three men and two women deliberated seven hours and 20 minutes in the 10th day of the trial before returning the verdict.

O'Brien, a lame duck Detroit Democrat, claimed that the charges were engineered against him by the insurance lobby. He heads the State Senate Insurance Committee.

Judge George Hutter gave O'Brien the maximum sentence, $100 fine and 90 days in jail on the misdemeanor, but suspended 80 of the 90 days.

O'Brien said he would appeal the verdict.

Air Pressure Creates Moon Clock Problems

NEW YORK (UPI) —The absence of air pressure on the surface of the moon creates a special problem for designers of a special tuning fork clock for Project Apollo's moon-landing craft.

The clock will use two tuning forks—a "master" and a "slave"—as its frequency standard, Bulova Watch Company reports, and the master fork will be enclosed within a pressurized chamber inside the clock case. If unpressurized, the fork would "gain time" at the rate of 21 seconds a day while on the moon's surface.

Application Is The Secret To Press-On Tape For Hems

I have taken your suggestion and have been using the new press-on type of hem tape for hems, however, I have encountered a few snags. Sometimes the hem tape comes down when my dresses are cleaned, and sometimes they come off when I have washed a garment. They always press back on again, but how can I keep this from occurring?—MRS. M. E.

DEAR MRS. M. E.:

We have had a few letters about this which has made us experiment again and also check very thoroughly with the company who makes this product. It seems that the whole secret is in the application.

First, and most important: Be sure to check this effect of this hem tape on a scrap of your fabric first. You must use enough heat so that you can clearly see the two bonding lines from the right side of the hem tape. If you can only see the lines faintly, you have not used enough heat and held it in place long enough.

When testing on a sample of your fabric, if the lines or the tape show clearly from the right side of your fabric, you will not be able to use this tape on that particular garment. The great part about the tape is that it can actually be used both ways and there are more chances that you can use it than not. Let's try again gals; some readers swear by it and use it for hemming drapes, curtains, children's clothes. It's a great time saver in our never-long-enough days.

DEAR MRS. FARMER:

With Halloween coming up and the little ones always wanting to be something besides a ghost, I thought your readers might like to know how I've solved the costume trick in our family.

I make their winter pajamas out of knitted cotton or flannelette using a regular costume pattern. The pattern books are filled with darling ideas, you aren't wasting your time, and it serves two purposes. (The kiddies don't even mind going to bed so much.)

You aren't limited if you use your imagination, a few of the current patterns available are a space suit, Batman, princess or fairy (nighties), penguin, Mexican or Oriental P.J.'s, the proverbial clowns, tigers, bunnies, kittens and even puppies. —MRS. MARY S.

What a great idea. I hope you readers know how much I really do need you and your good suggestions. Only wish I had been so clever when my children were small (unfortunately they always had to be a ghost or a witch).

Mrs. Bernice Hemminghaus, Okawville, Ill. is this week's winner of a Tailor Trix pressing board for her following suggestion.

That "hand-picked detail" and "saddle stitching" are so popular on many of today's ready-made casual clothes and so very difficult to keep even. I have found it much easier if I machine stitch with a long basting stitch first and use this as a guide line. Your hand stitches will parallel the basting thread, making the hand stitches the same length as the machine stitches and the line will be absolutely straight. After the basting thread has served as a guide, it can be quickly and easily removed.

DEAR MRS. FARMER:

Sometimes a pattern will tell you to use a center back zipper and other times a side zipper in skirts. I prefer the back zipper because it adds less bulk and width to my already ample proportions. Can I do this on my own?—MRS. H. B.

DEAR MRS. H. R.:

Yes, you may place the zipper at the center back seam if you prefer. For you gals who are constantly losing and gaining weight, this would be an ideal solution. Also, it would only take minutes to let out or take in your seams. This alteration wouldn't affect the zipper at all.

A TOUCH OF ELEGANCE

Tender, romantic formals in velvet are quite popular this season. The fluid, luminous velvet expresses perfectly the slender shaped silhouette which widens into a gentle flaring skirt. Created by Cameo, there's a sparkle of jet beading at elbow sleeves adding a touch of elegance. And the fabric contains a special finish which resists crushing or splitting.

Poultry Grading Tips Off Shopper

Housewives are sometimes confused by the U.S. Department of Agriculture's round inspection mark and shield-shaped grade mark that appear on officially inspected and graded poultry. They ask, "What is the difference between the two marks? What do they stand for?"

The Consumer and Marketing Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture explains that there is a big difference between the two marks. This federal agency is charged with the responsibility of inspecting all poultry passing through interstate or foreign commerce. It also conducts a voluntary grading service for food processors and handlers on a fee-for-service basis.

Consumer and Marketing Service says that the round inspection mark, which bears the words, "Inspected for Wholesomeness by the U.S. Department of Agriculture," is a symbol of safety. It means that the poultry—chicken, turkey, goose, duck or guinea—was examined by a federal inspector to determine that it is wholesome; that it was processed in a plant meeting the strigent requirements of USDA for cleanliness; that it is not adulterated; and that it is truthfully labeled.

The shield-shaped grade mark is a symbol of quality and shows that the poultry was graded. It means that the quality of the poultry has been certified by federal-state graders. Poultry cannot be graded until it has been first inspected for wholesomeness. The U.S. grades for poultry are A, B and C. They are based on the meatiness of a bird and its freedom from defects. Poultry that is marked "USDA Grade A" is of the highest table quality.

Wise shoppers, then, should look for both the round USDA inspection mark and the shield-shaped grade mark. These marks are their assurance that the poultry they purchase is wholesome and has been graded for quality.

Litterbugs' Crimes Are More Costly Than Bank Burglaries

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — Clink goes the beer can at the end of its trip from speeding auto to sidewalk.

Crash goes the pop bottle as glass smashes after being tossed from another moving car.

These are sounds out of tune with groups fighting eyesores—and noise pollution—along Main Street, U.S.A.

THE BOTTLE AND CAN throwers make America ugly. Ditto for those who unthinkingly use the highways and byways for garbage cans when getting rid of sandwich wrappings, used facial tissues, old newspapers—anything and everything that clutters a car.

Meanwhile, other litterbugs offend a person's proboscis. In this class are thoughtless types who burn piles of junk in public places.

The litterbugs' crimes, statistically, are proving more costly than those of bank robbers, according to Allen H. Seed Jr., executive vice president of Keep America Beautiful Inc. (KAB).

FOR EXAMPLE, in 1965 $4.5 million was listed during bank holdups and burglaries nationwide. In the same year, litterbugs committed $500 million worth of crime, if you view the clutter as Seed does.

He said taxpayers paid people that much to pick up litter from highways, city streets, parks and other public areas.

A KAB survey of law enforcement agencies discloses that in 16 states reporting on fines levied for state highway litter violations, only $36,000 was collected in fines during 1965.

THE SAME STATES, meanwhile, spent more than $5 million picking up along highways that year.

Seed said the survey indicates that the majority of litterbugs are going unpunished. In 35 states maintaining records on litter violations, 9,488 litterbug arrests were reported in '65.

And, according to Seed, in 15 cities, with populations ranging from 500,000 to 1.6 million, only 3,003 arrests were made that year.

LITTERING IS ILLEGAL in all states. Convicted violaters face fines ranging from $1 to $500 and, in some states, jail sentences up to one year. The survey showed that the usual fine meted out to a convicted litterbug ranged from $10 to $25. Jail sentences seldom are imposed.

Seed urged a crackdown on litter law violators. He said that of the three elements in KAB's formula to stop littering, law enforcement at present appears the weakest link. The other two: public education and adequate disposal facilities.

DRAMA REVIEW

College Actors Give An Exuberant 'Lark'

By KARL BARRON

The College of Marin Drama Department opened its 1966-67 season last night with a brilliantly exuberant production of Jean Anouilh's "The Lark."

Once again, director James Dunn and scenic designer Edward K. Schoon have turned the tiny Harlan Hall theater into a setting which encompasses the audience, draws them into the production and involves them completely. This time we are in the cathedral at Rouen, France, with stained glass windows, a network of stairways which allows the actors fluidity of motion, and an overall quality of majesty fitting the locale—and the trial of Joan of Arc.

In and out of this atmosphere, Dunn shoots his actors like human projectiles, using the theater aisles as well as the side exits. In a play which well could be static, he achieves a maximum of movement, yet avoids busyness.

Anouilh says of his play: "(It) makes no atempt to explain the mystery of Joan . . . You cannot explain Joan, any more than you can explain the tinest flower growing by the wayside."

What he does attempt is the portrayal of Joan's belief in her divine command to save France, and her agony as the church tribunal forces upon her the expedient of denying that belief in order to save her life. With the use of simple flashbacks her story is told as she sits on trial.

The role of Joan is an exiting one demanding youth, feminity combined with boyishness, and tremendous emotional staying power.

Jill Cogswell possesses the qualities needed, and uses them to present a flawless performance. Small, bright-faced, engaging, she captivates with her first word, and dominates the play to the final curtain. With mercurial quickness, she turns from tears to laughter, flares into violent rage, then smiles again. She bubbles with vitality throughout the show.

In the excellent supporting cast, there are a number of outstanding characterizations. As Robert de Beaudricourt, to whom she first turns for help in reaching the Dauphin, Richard Matthews gives us a vibrant, wine-bibbing lecher, at first overflowing with cynical laughter, then grudgingly won to her cause.

David Dukes plays Warwick, the conquering English overseer of the trial, with suavely commanding force, while Kent Kay's Cauchon is a fine delineation of a cleric torn between duty to his church and sympathy for the hapless girl.

James Land plays the weak Dauphin for every laugh that's in it, yet leaves us with a haunting sorrow for a man unfitted to the station in life forced upon him.

David McCauley's vignette of an onion-gnawing campaigner exudes earthiness. Bryan Wittine and Thomas Lowe play two of the inquisitors with assurance. As the Dauphin's mistress and queen, Helen McDonald and Sylvia Scott sparkle in small roles.

As the representative of the Inquisition, Christopher Schuepbach lacks authority except for a few moments when he captures the force necessary to this man holding the ultimate power of life or death.

"The Lark" will be presented tonight and tomorrow night at 8:30, and again October 26, 27, 28 and 29.

City Police, Sheriff Merger Is Suggested

Consolidation of city police departments with the county sheriff's office is the latest proposal for further tax equity from the Marin County administrator's office.

Asst. County Administrator John P. Barrows has made the suggestion in a letter to the board of supervisors, saying it appears "a more attractive" alternative to an earlier suggestion for a county services area for police in unincorporated territory.

Both suggestions are to be discussed by supervisors Tuesday.

Should unincorporated areas take on the full cost of the sheriff's department through the county services area plan, the tax for property owners outside cities could go up by 32 cents per $100 of assessed valuation, while the city taxpayer would get a 17-cent reduction in county tax.

Barrows said under a consolidation plan, all property owners would pay the same tax to support an expanded sheriff's department, except where cities wished to contract for a higher level of service. Employees of existing city police departments would be brought into the sheriff's department.

TOO MUCH SMOG—SO TRY STEAM

Mahlon Lamoureaux gives the public a look at his answer to the smog problem—and to the expense of transportation these days. The Pacific Palisades resident says "Steamy," as he calls his vehicle, gets three miles to a gallon of water. He built it in his own back yard. (UPI Telephoto)

Drake Student Leader Recites His Transcontinental Adventure

By CHRIS PORTER

Drake High School Student

Hitch-hiking from Fairfax to New England on $39, Jared Rossman, Sir Francis Drake High School student body president, not only learned the meaning of "bumming it," but learned about his country and its people.

"I lived in Fairfax for 17 and one half years. I felt quite ignorant and very, very restless," he related.

"Although I took $100 with me, I found it was almost difficult to spend. Friends of my brother, friends of friends, and relatives always took me in with a welcome, gave me a bed and food, and usually showed me around their part of the country."

Rossman started his trip with a companion, but when the friend was called back to California by the draft board, Jared decided to continue on his own. His trip included Cleveland, New York, Washington, cities in Massachusetts and even Lancaster County, Pa.

"The Amish people still drive horse and buggies, and they refuse to wear buttons. They seemed very shy, and were uncertain of strangers," said the youth. "We asked a farmer if we could sleep in his cornfield, hoping that he would offer his barn. We got the cornfield!"

The trip took six weeks, and Rossman feels he only saw about one quarter of the United States. Even in that short time, however, he said that he learned more about people than he could learn in a year at home.

A certain "type" of people picked up hitch-hikers, said Jared — "no one over 30, usually college students (although some newlyweds did give me a lift once), very few women . . . Usually liberal people who like to talk . . . and no one wearing a tie!"

Rossman believes that hitch-hiking alone is the best way to see everything that you want to see. But the method does have some pitfalls: waiting hours for a lift, laws prohibiting hitch-hiking, and not being able to hitch-hike on turnpikes.

To remember everything from his adventure, Rossman kept a log in which he scribbled notes from time to time about the people he met and the places he saw. It describes things from the clean bed he slept in to climbing the Washington Monument and visiting Greenwich Village.

Jared is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Rossman, 2 Meadow Way, Fairfax.

The first admiral of the U.S. Navy was David Glasgow Farragut in 1866.

Collision Leads To $101,000 Suit

A $101,000 damage suit in a two-vehicle accident was filed in Marin Superior Court yesterday against a 20-year-old San Rafael girl and her parents.

Ethmer D. Billings and his wife, Bernice, of 35 Coleman Drive, San Rafael, allege negligent driving by Claudia A. Kupperberg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Abe Kupperberg, 101 Nova Albion Way, San Rafael, resulted in the collision.

Mrs. Billings asks $100,000 damages for neck and back injuries she suffered. Her husband asks $1,000 for lessor injuries. The crash occurred on Tiburon Boulevard Oct. 31, 1965.

Driver On Probation

Gordon Kenneth Downey, of Napa, was fined $174 and placed on a year's probation yesterday in Marin Municipal Court for drunken driving. He was arrested Oct. 11 by Novato police on Highway 101.

University Speaker

YOUNG IS FOR YOU!

Assemblyman Pearce Young seeks information on job conditions in talk with a state employee on the job.

I THINK YOUNG!

Pearce Young co-authored job producing legislation for his district: creating the Special Security Facility with 300 jobs; pushed for the Bay District Water Resources Office with almost 100 more; and handled the bill to permit transfer of Benicia Arsenal to Benicia Industrial Park where private enterprise will add at least 1000.

Knowledge of individual needs also produced his broad support for educational and vocational retraining programs — to fit the man to the job.

Endorsed by labor and businessmen alike. Keep YOUNG for job awareness!

25 YEARS OF Star-Spangled Security FOR AMERICANS 1941-1966

Jimmy Durante has been a friend of Savings Bonds for a long time. He was already one of America's best-loved comedians when the Treasury Department issued the first Series E Bond on May 1, 1941.

Working hand-in-hand with a team of other volunteers from all walks of life, Jimmy has helped sell more than $150 billion in Savings Bonds to the American people. Bonds for education, new homes, retirement, emergencies. Dollars that grow to make your future more secure.

And dollars that help our fighting men in Vietnam.

Buy U.S. Savings Bonds where you bank or work. Better start now, if you ever expect to have a million of 'em.

NOW—
Savings Bonds Pay 4.15%!

Interest on new E and H Bonds you purchase has been raised to 4.15% when held to maturity. E Bonds mature faster —now in just 7 years. Your old Bonds will earn more, too. Savings Bonds are better to buy, and hold, than ever.

A City Nestles In The Lee Of Marin's Hills

Sheltered from Pacific wind and fog, Sausalito's houses climb the lower slopes of the protecting hills, while on the level lowland her yacht harbors, shops and industries snuggle up to the bay. The undulating course of Highway 101 can be followed along the hills and north beyond Sausalito, where other cities are cradled in the arms of the hills. Where Richardson Bay Bridge crosses to the right, another road leads left to Tamalpais Valley and Mill Valley, neatly cupped in their verdant draws. On Richardson Bay, Strawberry Point juts into water. Beyond, across the spine of hills are Stinson Beach and Bolinas. And, dim in the distance, is the far-reaching arm of Point Reyes. AUSSIES BEAT NEW YORK

A blizzard of ticker tape almost hides President Lyndon B. Johnson's motorcade along Sydney's King Street. The huge welcome partly counteracted earlier troubles in which Sydney anti-war demonstrators threw themselves into the street in front of the presidential auto. New Sensory Hypnoanalysis Found Helpful

WASHINGTON (SS) — Of all the approaches to mental therapy, perhaps the most intriguing is a new experimental technique called "sensory hypnoanalysis."

Though the name gives one pause, there is nothing overly complex about sensory hypnoanalysis as Dr. Milton V. Kline of the Morton Prince Clinic in New York explains it.

The therapist simply tells his patient in hypnosis to focus on bodily sensations. In doing so, the patient apparently reaches far beyond the verbal level to the indescribable but potent concepts of the body.

The process greatly amplifies sensations, said Dr. Kline, but particularly those kinesthetic and tactile feelings associated with the body. At the same time, the patient experiences intense visual imagery—dreams, memories, images of the self in pictorial form. He may talk if he wishes, and Dr. Kline has heard patients describe an arm or hand as though they were never aware of it before.

Inevitably, the patient feels a strong impulse to express himself creatively. While under hypnosis he paints, sculpts or writes, giving concrete form to his distorted self-image.

Feelings about the body develop at such an early age, noted Dr. Kline, that traditional "talk" therapy does not reach them. All of his 30 patients who have received sensory hypnoanalysis were particularly resistant to other forms of therapy.

The art they created was marked by a sense of destructiveness and tension, said Dr. Kline. Once he exhibited the paintings of an alcoholic, suicidal patient, but had to take them down when a number of people, casual observers, became too agitated.

Another patient's work reminded an art professor of early primitive paintings done by South American Indians. The professor brought out samples of the Indian work, and there was indeed a similarity, said Dr. Kline.

This confirms his belief, he said, that the sensory therapy reaches primitive, regressive impulses. Once they surface, such emotions can then be discussed consciously like any other problem.

Dr. Kline noted a "clear improvement" in all his patients and "dramatic results" in some. Several suffering from psychosomatic disorders — ulcerative colitis, asthma, migraine headaches—were completely cured physically, he said. He believes the technique is also suited to compulsive and depressive reactions.

Psychiatric literature often refers to "body image," but the concept has never been well-defined. It is, nevertheless, acknowledged as a highly pervasive force in human psychology.

"A distorted body image," said Dr. Kline, "interferes with personality integration, sexual identity and a sense of competence." Those afflicted with the problem feel inadequate at "mastering themselves and the world around them."

Fast Rainstorm Visiting State

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A fast-moving storm brushed extreme northern California today and probably will bring some rain over the weekend but, the Weather Bureau said, the rest of the state should continue fair.

There was some rain overnight in the mountains along the Oregon border but it didn't extend but a few miles south.

With passing of the brief storm, the forecast indicated there should be clearing in the north state after tomorrow and slowly rising temperatures for the next several days.

Farm Union Pickets Arrested In City

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A total of 17 AFL-CIO United Farm Workers Union demonstrators have been arrested at the offices of the Di Giorgio Corp. in San Francisco.

The demonstrators were charged yesterday with trespassing. They are part of a group picketing the Di Giorgio offices asking for a meeting to iron out ground rules for union representation elections at the Di Giorgio ranch at Arvin in Kern County.

HOW TO KEEP WELL
By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Muscle Exhaustion Comes With Baffling Myasthenia Gravis

VAN DELLEN

Myasthenia gravis is a baffling disease in which one or more muscles become exhausted and refuse to function after contracting for a brief period. The muscles of the eyelids, extremities, voice box, and swallowing mechanism are most likely to be affected.

Drooping of the eyelids occurs as soon as fatigue sets in and they cannot be opened until rested thoroughly. For a variable period thereafter the lids act normally until weariness sets in again, to start the cycle again. Weakness of the leg muscles has a somewhat similar effect upon walking and if the arms are involved, they are useless when overwhelmed by tiredness.

MYASTHENIA GRAVIS has all the earmarks of a neurological disturbance but the basic cause is chemical. Scientists have pinpointed the source of the trouble in the spots where nerves connect with muscles. Acetylcholine usually is present at these junctions and the release of the chemical acts as a spark between nerve stimulation and muscle contraction.

When actylcholine is lacking or dissipates too rapidly, the nerve impulse cannot pass to the muscles. As a result, these structures are unable to contract. No one knows the reason for this abnormality but, with continued research, it is reasonable to assume that the mystery will be unfolded.

THE SYMPTOMS of myasthenia gravis have been known to disappear for weeks or years, during which time the sufferer is in apparent good health. In others the disease worsens gradually. This is another little understood fact that needs further investigation.

Various drugs have proved helpful in relieving symptoms but neostigmine is the most popular. The effects often are dramatic, changing a hopeless cripple to a productive worker. But the drug is not curative. Surgical removal of the thymus gland has helped some of the victims.

(Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal.)

NO LONGER USED

Mrs. R. writes: Years ago, skin cancer used to be treated with pastes and salves. Is this done any more?

REPLY

Yes, but the method is not popular. In the past, when cure of skin cancer resulted from the use of irritating pastes or solutions, it was because the malignancy was burned out completely. This hit-or-miss method was discarded when better forms of therapy became available.

SUN ECLIPSE

S. Z. writes: Three years ago there was an eclipse of the sun. The newspapers said not to watch it as the rays could harm the eyes. Just what damage could be caused?

REPLY

Sun blindness caused by a burn.

JOINING HEALTH CLUB

A. D. writes: I would like to know if I am too old to join a health club. I'm 64 and had an appendectomy in 1964 and hernia surgery the same year. I feel fine but was wondering if it would be all right.

REPLY

Yes, provided they have no rule excluding one of your age.

MARRIAGE AND EPILEPSY

A. S. W. writes: Is it safe for a person with controlled epilepsy to marry?

REPLY

Yes. When the spouse is not a carrier, the chance of passing on the condition to the offspring is slim. But if both husband and wife have epilepsy, the likelihood is much greater.

Today's Health Hint — Old age is no bar to good health.

Navy's TFX Admitted To Be Paunchy, Sick

By EDWARD W. O'BRIEN
Advance News Service

WASHINGTON — The House Appropriations Committee has released Pentagon testimony showing that the Navy model of the controversial TFX fighter aircraft is 5,000 pounds overweight.

Rear Adm. F. H. Michaelis, a director of the project said that because of the excessive weight, he regards the TFX in its present state as "a questionable aircraft as far as the Navy is concerned."

Navy Secretary Paul H. Nitze conceded that nothing more can be done to reduce the TFX's weight and bring it within specifications.

His hope now, the secretary testified, is that with a stronger engine and improved lifting devices, the TFX can be made capable of operating off aircraft carriers.

Nitze pleaded with the committee to keep money flowing into the TFX. He said there should be a final answer by next April on whether the Navy TFX will be useable or should be dropped.

The TFX has been the center of a searing dispute between Congress and Nitze's boss, Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara.

A long and still unfinished investigation by a Senate committee headed by Sen. John McClellan (D-Ark.) led to congressional charges that Secretary McNamara selected the wrong design for the TFX and awarded the contract to the wrong company, General Dynamics Corp.

The Air Force version apparently does not have insurmountable problems. But the Navy, unlike the Air Force, is subject to special weight and other restrictions because of its carriers.

The new testimony, given on Aug. 23, confirmed what had been rumored for months—that engineers have not been able to lick the Navy's weight problem and have in fact reached the end of that particular road.

House committee members were reluctant to approve funds for start of production of the Navy TFX, as the next step beyond research and development. But they finally agreed to provide $7,800,000 as an evident last bet on the Navy plane.

Rep. William E. Minshall (R-Ohio) charged that even if the bigger engine and improved lift devices make the TFX suitable for carriers, "You are going to get a Class C airplane instead of the Class A airplane which you originally contracted the specifications for."

Secretary Nitze replied, "It wouldn't be quite as good but it would be better than anything else we can foresee, and we need this for the defense of the fleet."

Rear Adm. W. E. Sweeney, TFX project manager, said that elevators on Navy carriers are being strengthened to carry loads 10,000 pounds heavier than before.

He claimed this is no more than "a normal improvement."

Admiral Michaelis agreed that he testified last April that the Navy TFX is "a very questionable aircraft."

He said that on the basis of tests of the first three TFX planes, "I feel exactly the same way, sir"—that the TFX is yet to prove itself.

Welch Tragedy Destroys A Town's Generation . . .

WHAT PUPILS SAW—The youngsters in this classroom in the Welsh coal mining village of Aberfan were lucky when the mountain walked. As thousands of tons of coal pit slag avalanched into their school, the edge of the slide stopped yesterday without crushing this classroom. But authorities predict that nearly 200 pupils were killed. They won't know until all the bodies are freed from the horrible mess.

EXHAUSTION—A weary fireman pauses to wipe his face while Welsh miners dig frantically into the avalanche that smashed two school buildings and a number of cottages. The miners, their hands bleeding from digging without tools, formed human chains laboring day and night to rescue the few survivors and remove the many dead.

THE WOMEN WAIT — Miners' womenfolk are used to tragedy the world over, often spending sad vigils at the heads of mineshafts when trouble erupts underground. But this was even worse, they said yesterday in Aberfan, because they could see the bodies of children being dug from the wreckage and the muck of Wales' greatest school tragedy.

BATTERING RAM — Aerial photo shows the southern Welsh town of Aberfan after a giant pile of coal mine slag became rain-soaked and poured downhill in juggernaut fashion. Authorities fear that more of the slag piles, hundreds of feet tall, may cut loose. (UPI Cablephotos)

Marinites In Court On Marijuana Party

Three Marin County men pleaded guilty yesterday in Santa Rosa Municipal Court to a misdemeanor charge of being knowingly present where marijuana was being used. A charge of contributing to the delinquency of minors was dismissed.

The three — arrested along with 15 adults and 12 juveniles in a raid last Saturday on a Bodega Bay cabin — are Melville Wolf, 18, of 38 Bay Road, Fairfax; Edward T. Ray, 19, of 736 Appleberry Drive and William Hutson, 20, of 65 Mount Rainier Drive, Marinwood.

Hutson was put on summary probation for 10 days and fined $29. Judge A. F. Scheidecker set Nov. 10 for a probation report on Ray and Wolf.

Five other Marin residents pleaded innocent to charges of knowingly being present where marijuana was being used and contributing to the delinquency of minors.

The five, to be tried before a jury Nov. 15, are Frank Cotton, 25, of 24 Evergreen Drive, Kentfield; Eric C. Besozzi, 25, of Mesa Road, Bolinas; Randee Lucille Ostaggi, 20, of 41 Grove Lane, San Anselmo; Charles M. Evans, 20, of Brighton Avenue, Bolinas, and Larry Reed, 19, of 37 Dorset Lane, Mill Valley.

Scheduled to appear for arraignment Tuesday on presence and contributing charges are: Walter H. Hoffman, 19, of 11 Peninsula Road, Belvedere, and Thomas R. Eudy, 22; Claud L. Pepper, 20, and Robert E. Nelson, 21, all of Brighton Road, Bolinas.

Three others, all of Mill Valley, had their case continued to next Friday: Deborah Marie Paganini, 18, of 22 Oak Springs Drive; Frank T. Fee, 18, of 1355 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, and Paul Hanson, 19, of 24 Monterey Avenue.

The juveniles, aged 15 to 17 years, were turned over to juvenile authorities after Sonoma County sheriff's deputies, acting on a tip, raided the bungalow.

Volunteer Drake Parents Sought

A meeting for students and parents interested in helping Sir Francis Drake High School's floundering American Field Service Exchange student program will be held at the high school Nov. 10.

The program has been halted at the high school for a year because a lack of parent participation resulted in no homes being available for exchange students coming to Drake under the AFS program.

Since there is no AFS exchange student at Drake this year, Drake students cannot apply to spend next summer abroad under the program.

Urging parent support for the AFS, Mrs. Eugene Hammond, chairman of the PTA's International Relations Committee, said: "Homes are an important factor, but there are so many other jobs to do, too."

Sample Ballots Set For Mailing Today

All sample ballots to Marin County voters were expected to be mailed by today, George H. Gnoss, county clerk, announced.

There are 11 types of ballots for the Nov. 8 general election, he said. Packet items besides the sample ballots include a state voters pamphlet analyzing all state propositions on the ballot, and notices of school district elections to persons residing in the districts.

Post Office To Take Job Applications

Applications from persons seeking work with the San Rafael Post Office during the Christmas season will be taken starting Monday, Postmaster Warren H. Williams said yesterday.

Williams said he has read in newspapers that Postmaster General Lawrence O'Brien decided to help clear up backlogs in mail delivery by hiring some of the Christmas Help on Nov. 1, "but I haven't heard anything about this officially."

He said his department usually hires 150 seasonal workers, beginning Dec. 4. This extra help could clear up the backlog in mail, he said, "if the pattern remains the same."

"We could clear it up in three or four days," he said, "if we were allowed to hire some of the Christmas help Nov. 1."

Williams said applications for Christmas work are available at the main post office. Persons with postal experience will be hired first, he said, the persons will be picked from the clerk-carrier and mail handler civil service registers, then from the seasonal assistant registers, then from those who have just applied for the Christmas work.

Novato Community Club has as president Jo Jacobs and as vice president, Marilyn Casady.

Don't Be Too Hasty Moving That Mailbox

Housing tract residents with curbside mailboxes had better not junk those mail boxes yet.

It is true that the United States Post Office Department has rescinded an order which banned door-to-door delivery of mail in suburban tracts built since June 24, 1963.

But, San Rafael Postmaster Warren H. Williams said yesterday that if anybody removes his mailbox from the curb now "we'd have to hold up delivery of his mail."

A news release sent out by Williams' office yesterday first reported that, with the ban lifted, "mail boxes may now be moved from curbside to a point on the house nearest the street."

A line at the end of the release, however, noted that "as soon as funds are available and approved by the Post Office Department, the new service will go into effect."

Save that mailbox!

When funds do arrive, Williams said, only mailboxes which can be moved back are those now served by foot carriers and mailmen in three-wheel vehicles.

Mass To Observe St. Raphael Day

St. Raphael's School students will attend High Mass in observance of the patronal feast of the mission and the city Monday at 11:15 a.m. at St. Raphael's Church.

Observance of the patronal feast will be marked again at 1:30 p.m. with the annual declamation program. Two seventh grade students will be selected to represent St. Raphael's School in an inter-Dominican schools league, which also includes St. Isabella's School in Terra Linda, Blessed Sacrament School in Santa Venetia, and San Domenico Lower School in Sleepy Hollow.

At 3 p.m., Catholic students in the public schools will observe a special Mass.

Stevenson Display In Mill Valley

An exhibit of memorabilia from the estate of Adlai E. Stevenson, never before seen by the public, will open Monday at Mill Valley's new library.

The exhibit of photographs, documents, books and personal objects from the late United Nations ambassador's estate will be open Monday through Friday from 7 to 9 p.m., and Saturday from 3 to 5 p.m., through Nov. 12.

The exhibit, to commemorate United Nations Day on Monday, was organized by John K. Robinson, United Nations Day chairman for Mill Valley.

A birthday party for the United Nations was scheduled today at 3 p.m. at the intersection of Monte Vista and Hazel Avenues with Robinson and Mayor Albert E. White to speak.

East Bay Suspect Admits To Forgery

49ers Vs. Lions Tomorrow In Kezar

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Karl Sweetan leads the dissension - torn Detroit Lions into Kezar Stadium tomorrow for a National Football League game against the San Francisco 49ers.

And if Karl Sweetan can't move the Lions for a touchdown then they might have to call on Garo Yepremian.

Sweetan is the semipro quarterback that coach Harry Gilmer has named to lead the Lions for the remainder of the season. He received the summons last Sunday during the 45-14 loss to Baltimore when Milt Plum was forced out of action with a season-ending knee injury.

Yepremian comes from Cyprus and kicks field goals left-footed, soccer - style. He was used only for kickoffs last week but could be used this time for three-point attempts.

The 49ers seek their third straight victory of the campaign after a tie and two losses. They are the only team in the league that hasn't made a roster change since the season began.

John Brodie starts at quarterback. Ken Willard and John David Crow are the runners. Bernie Casey, Dave Parks and Monty Stickles catch the passes.

This normal state of affairs contrasts acutely with the Detroit situation. In addition to the lineup shuffling, there's been a little backbiting this past week among the Motor City pros.

On Tuesday, Gilmer let the team have it for their 2-4 record. Defensive tackle Alex Karras said afterward that he figured the coach's words were aimed at him and charged that morale was at an all-time low among the Lions.

Karras, a perennial all-NFL, became the fifth player to openly criticize his coach. Karras works under a seven-year contract, the longest-term pact in pro football. Gilmer has a three-year contract.

Sweetan, 24, went from Wake Forest to Toronto of the Canadian League. Last year he was the most valuable player in the Midwest League for the Pontiac Arrows. When he left the club to join the Detroit reserve or taxi squad, the Arrows got former northwestern star Tom Myers as a replacement. Now the Lions also have Myers — to back up Sweetan.

Detroit brings its usual stout defense although the offense also has explosive power. One of Sweetan's five NFL completions set a record last week as Pat Studstill caught a touchdown pass from him for 99 yards — about 55 in the air and 44 on the ground.

Studstill leads a standout receiver corps that includes Ron Kramer and Gail Cogdill. Tom Nowatzke and Amos Marsh are the running backs.

Kickoff is scheduled for 1 p.m.

GOLFER SANDERS BUYS $1 MILLION BUILDING

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—Doug Sanders, the professional golfer who has won three major tournaments this year, bought the Trans-America Life Building in downtown Fort Worth yesterday for more than $1 million.

Sanders, 33, said at a news conference he represented only himself in the venture. The 17-story building is primarily an office building.

"The trend among professional golfers today is to become businessmen because they know they can't play golf forever. That's also true of other professional athletes," he said.

Easy To See Why 49ers Voted Krueger 'Most Inspirational'

HANLEY

Charles Andrew Krueger is an impressive mass of muscles, 260 pounds of them stacked 6-4. He is a Texan by birth but a quiet-spoken Texan, not a tall-talker.

"I guess you could say I'm a sensitive fellow," said Krueger who isn't in a very sensitive business as all 49er football fans know. "Yes," he added after further thought, "I am sensitive."

Of course, Krueger didn't mean in a physical way because pro football leaves its lumps and bruises on all warriors regardless of size.

AND HE couldn't mean that he was sensitive to adverse fan reaction to his defensive tackle performances each Sunday for the 49ers. Krueger never has been booed for a sloppy performance because he never has turned in a sloppy performance.

"I'm far from perfect," he smiled. "The average fans get only a blurred picture of line play in trying to keep his eyes on the ball carrier or receiver. But I'm acutely aware of what goes on in the line in my zone of action.

"WHEN I DO a workmanlike job I know it. If I don't, I know that, too. One is a source of satisfaction. The other hurts way down deep and I must live with it, sometimes as long as a year before I can forget it."

So Krueger is his own severest critic? Is that it?

"I THINK that's true of most individuals who try to be objectively honest with themselves," he said. "It's difficult, if not impossible, for the average football fan to pinpoint a mistake in the line. So linemen play in a kind of anonymity. But that's not important.

"What is important is a personal feeling of pride, or lack of it, after the job has been done."

AFTER LISTENING to Charlie Krueger talk and, more importantly, watching him in action, it is easy to understand why his 49er teammates voted him the Eshmont Award two seasons ago as their most inspirational player.

"To have the respect of your teammates is a very heartwarming thing," said Krueger.

HE NOT only has the respect of his teammates but every enemy guard he faces each Sunday. He is one of the best pass rushers in pro football but still feels there is room for improvement.

"I have a little thing going with my teammate Howard Mudd and he with me during practice sessions," said Krueger. "Howard is one of the toughest guards in the business. He keeps defensive tackles alert."

MUDD OVERHEARD Krueger's compliment and smiled.

"I'm glad I don't have to play against that fellow every Sunday," said Mudd, pointing to Krueger. "It would be a nightmare."

Win Keeps Title Chances Alive

By GARY TISCHLER

San Rafael High School dropped an early bomb on Drake at College of Marin Stadium last night but when it was all over, the Bulldogs were left to contemplate the remains of a 32-19 defeat while a stinging wind blew away all but the last shreds of their hopes for a Marin Athletic League title.

Drake, primed and toughened by a series of bloodlettings against tough competition like Riordan, Vallejo and Tam, kept its title hopes very much in the fire by winning its second league contest against one loss while San Rafael's record dropped to 2-2 with its second straight setback.

The Bulldogs drew first blood after a Drake fumble gave them the ball on their own 37-yard line. Quarterback Bill Joost calmly danced into a pocket, lofted a long one to favorite receiver Sam Crowell who had at least three steps on a Drake defender and bingo, it was 6-0 with only two minutes or so gone.

But instead of panicking, the Pirates, like a championship fighter stung by a surprise jab, shook off the sudden reversal and behind junior quarterback Don Stone and halfback Tom Mauer, proceeded to make shambles of a once strong San Rafael defense.

Stone passed for three touchdowns, two of them long yardage screen passes and when not throwing simply gave the ball to Mauer or mammoth Bill Hickerson.

Mauer ate up 139 yards worth of turf, most of it carrying San Rafael tacklers piggyback for extra yards. Hickerson, used sparingly but effectively, chipped in for 32 yards and caught a touchdown pass.

After the Bulldog bomb, the Pirates came right back, took the kickoff and drove for a touchdown with Mauer knocking over three defenders enroute to a 9-yard score. Stone's 36-yarder over the middle to Don Alvarado was the big gainer in the 79-yard drive. That made it 6-6.

A little looper of a screen pass to John Brown for 32 yards and a touchdown made it 13-6. With second down and 24, Stone was rushed and pedaling backwards for his life, got off a short one to Hickerson. The 234-pound fullback and ex-center tucked in the pass and lumbered in like a truck in slow motion to put Drake ahead 20-6.

The Bulldogs, stifled since the bomb, then marched back on a sustained drive of short passes by Joost who completed 9 straight while racing the clock enroute to a touchdown. Turning from Crowell to Widmer and to Herb Rowland, Joost drove the Bulldogs to the three-yard line where a penalty set them back five yards. A five-yard pass to Crowell set them up and Widmer reached high on the goal-line for the touchdown grab that made it a close 13-20 at the halt

FLASH ELORDE RETAINS HIS WORLD TITLE

MANILA (AP) — Flash Elorde of Manila kept his world junior lightweight title today by outpointing Vicente Derado of Argentina in a lopsided 15-round bout. It was Elorde's tenth successful defense of the crown. He weighed 130 pounds, Derado 128.

Elorde, who appeared to be coasting much of the way, slashed the face of the Argentine and also administered cuts above both eyes of his foe but never was able to floor him.

Although Derado connected frequently his punches lacked steam and Elorde waded in to punish the Argentine around the head.

Warriors Even Record With 136-119 Win

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The new-look San Francisco Warriors have paid their only October visit to their Civic Auditorium homecourt and have come away winners.

Rick Barry with 37 points and Nate Thurmond with 26 points and backboard control paced the Warriors to a 136-119 victory last night over the Detroit Pistons in a National Basketball Association game.

The victory evened the Warriors' season record at 2-2 as first-year coach Bill Sharman's new fast-break offense began to click.

Seven Warriors hit for double figures as the San Francisco team was never out pointed. The Pistons moved to within six points at 62-56 two minutes into the third quarter. But five quick points by Paul Neumann started the Warriors to a 12-3 run that took two minutes.

Neumann finished with 18 for the Warriors, Jeff Mullins and Fred Hetzel put in 12 each, and Al Attles and Clyde Lee, playing his first NBA game, contributed 10 apiece. Rookie Dave Bing with 25 and Tom Van Arsdale with 24 paced the Pistons.

Terra Linda Romps, 33-0

Eighteen straight goose eggs. Like nothing.

The Terra Linda Trojans keep tacking up the little zeros

At El Camino last night, the Trojans marked up four more quarters of zilch for the opposition, while they put their running game into full power and trampled El Camino, 33-0, for their fourth straight shutout victory of the year and their fifth straight win.

It sort of went like this.

Halfback Paul Lee started the scoring parade by getting his two licks in, racing away on a 32-yard TD run in the first period. Score: 6-0.

Lee, getting another round of superb blocking, took off on a 70-yard TD jaunt and quarterback Chris Bowman kicked the conversion. Halftime: 13-0.

After the third quarter it was a laugher. The Trojans punched across three touchdowns with Bowman going over twice on runs of 17 and 2 yards. Gary Trono, a 120-pound will-of-the-wisp, returned a punt 71 yards and that was the final blow. Final score in the third quarter, 33-0.

El Camino, a ponderous, big team, never got closer than the Terra Linda 15-yard line, and that was in the last quarter. In desperation, El Camino tried a field goal which fell short.

The Terra Linda groundlings, who might have made Patton proud, piled up 334 yards rushing, and threw in another 62 via the airways, just to keep things on the up and up.

Lee was there with the "most-est," 127 yards in seven tries for an 18-yard plus average. Substitute Mark Buckley, starting in place of injured Rich Jones, ate up 59 yards and Rod Jones had 56.

Bowman, getting huge gaping holes to pick from his hard-charging line, netted 45 yards, mostly on straight ahead runs.

Linebacker Jim Sherbert, with nine tackles, five assists and an interception, led the way on Terra Linda's hopped-up defense. Tom Heacox, a 234-pound tackle made five stops, with two assists.

The Terra Linda defense kept up its usual quota of interceptions, with Tim Brennan, Jim Taylor and Sherbert picking off one each. El Camino also fumbled the ball away three times, with Ken Hayes, Bill McNeill and Tom Flautt recovering for Terra Linda.

Other Writers Criticized Cepeda, Says Attorney

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Defense lawyers introduced 25 articles yesterday intended to show that other sports writers besides Tom Cohane published stories critical of baseball player Orlando Cepeda.

Cepeda is suing Look Magazine for $1 million libel damages over a 1963 article written by its sports editor of that time, Tim Cohane.

Marvin Lewis, Cepeda's lawyer, objected repeatedly to allowing the articles into the record. One newspaper story admitted as evidence said Cepeda has gotten a minus 41 points in the rating system of Alvin Dark, then manager of the San Francisco Giants. The Cohane article had said that Cepeda, now with St. Louis, was in disfavor with San Francisco office and field management.

Charles W. Kenady, Look's attorney, asked Cohane if he had any intention of hurting Cepeda.

"I had no intention whatsoever. I wished him well and do now," said Cohane, who will return to the stand for the third day in U.S. District Court when the trial resumes Monday.

Cohane also testified that he visited the Cleveland Indians' Arizona training camp in 1963 and was told by manager Birdie Tebbetts and general manager Gabe Paul that the Giants had offered to trade Cepeda to them for a starting pitcher.

This brought an immediate objection from Lewis, who said the evidence was hearsay. Judge Stanley A. Weigel overruled, saying that it might help determine whether Cohane believed what he wrote.

Horace Stoneham, owner of the Giants, had testified that he did not want to trade Cepeda at that time and that he had not offered him to another club.

MARIN COUNTY GOLF NOTES

Meadow Club Seniors Trail

Two members of the Meadow Club in Fairfax were far off the pace going into today's final round of the Northern California Golf Assn. Seniors Championship at the Woodbridge Golf and Country Club near Lodi.

George Kerrigan of San Rafael, who was tied for fifth with a 77 after Thursday's first round, slipped to an 81 yesterday and his 158 total was 12 shots behind leader Cornelius Bertolone of Santa Rosa who had 71-75—146 at the two-thirds mark of the 54-hole tournament. Bertolone is seeking his third title in this tournament, having won it in 1962 and '63.

Dodgers Turn Into Sluggers

TOKYO (AP) — The Los Angeles Dodgers surprised Japanese baseball fans by easily beating Japan's No. 1 ball club, the Yomiuri Giants, 16-5 in the opening game of the U.S.-Japan goodwill series today. The Giants have won the Japanese World Series for two straight years.

More than 40,000 Japanese and American fans watched the Dodgers bang out 21 hits, including six home runs off four Giant pitchers.

The Dodgers, 1966 National League champions, opened their attack in the second inning, picking up four runs on two singles and a two-run homer.

Tommy Davis doubled, Jim Lefebvre walked, and Dick Stuart singled to score Davis for the Dodgers' first run. The second Dodgers' score came when John Kennedy singled Lefebvre home. With two outs pitcher Claude Osteen homered to drive in Kennedy.

100-Mile Race At Sacramento

A. L. Foyt of Houston, "Super Tex" to some and championship driver to most people, added his name to the entry list for the 16th annual "Golden State" 100-mile national championship auto race to be held at the State Fairgrounds in Sacramento tomorrow.

Foyt, twice a winner at the Indianapolis 500, won this race in 1960, 1962 and 1964 and is hoping to become the first-four time winner.

Practice for the race begins at noon, with time trials slated for 1 p.m. and the race itself at 3 p.m.

Academy '11' Breezes To Fifth Win

San Rafael Military Academy, after a slow start, turned loose quarterback Tommy Davis, and the thousand-yard arm found the range for four touchdown passes as the Cadets rolled to a 33-0 victory at Lick-Wilmerding in San Francisco yesterday.

The Cadets led only 13-0 at the half but splurged for a 20-point third quarter to tuck in their fifth victory in six games and their third straight.

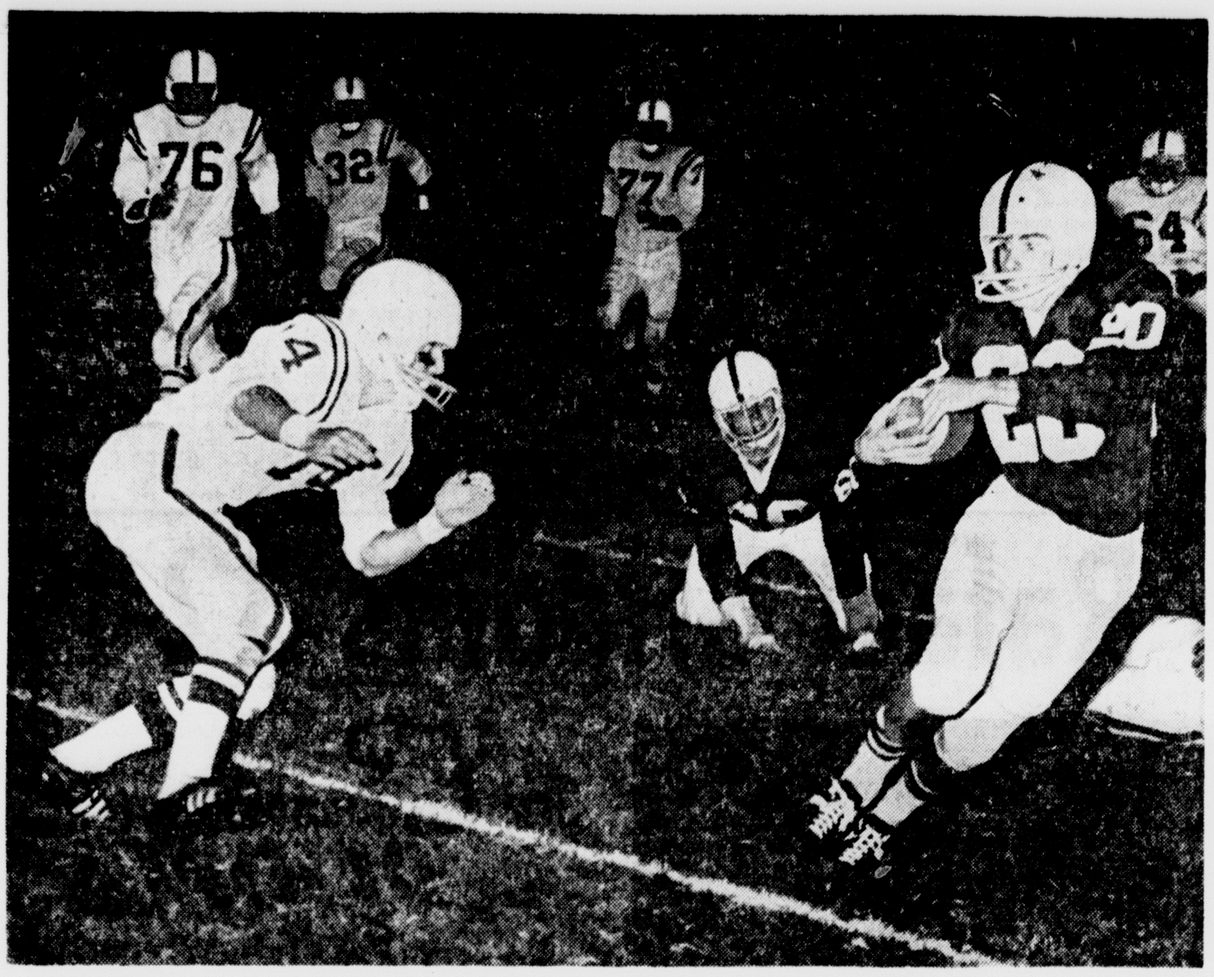

Davis, who hit 14 of 28 passes for 287 yards, pushed his total yardage to 1,323 yards for the season, and his TD pass total to 13. Receiver Dave Page, who caught five for 76 yards, now has 55 receptions for 694 yards and eight touchdowns.

Davis started things off with a 10-yard TD toss to Page for a 6-0 first-quarter lead, then Jimmy Lincoln returned a punt for 85 yards and a touchdown to give the Cadets a 13-0 halftime lead.

Davis turned it into a route with three straight TD passes in the third period, 15 yards to Lincoln and 15 and 35 yards to end Pete DeBaun.

Coach Larry Fulton praised his defense "calling it the best defensive effort of the year."

AND AWAY WE GO—John Brown, a 145-pound streak of lightning, tucks in his running leg as he turns the corner against San Rafael in the third quarter to score Drake's final touchdown. San Rafael defenders are Herb Rowland (14), Steve Dillman (76), Mike Donahoo (32), Chris Klyse (77) and Mike Rosso (64). Drake won, 32-19.

Rams Can't Afford Any Mistakes Against Bears

By BOB GREEN

Los Angeles must make no mistakes to stay close in the Western Conference race while St. Louis needs help from Cleveland to pull away in the East in the National Football League tomorrow.

The Rams, 4-2, are at Chicago, 2-3, and figure it a must game to stay close. Western leader Green Bay, 5-1, is a lopsided favorite over winless Atlanta at Milwaukee.

To stay close, the Rams must stop Gale Sayers. And to do that —as the Packers did last week in a 17-0 victory, "It's a matter of not making any mistakes."

The advice to the Rams came from all-pro defensive end Willie Davis of Green Bay, one of the key figures in containing the Bears' flash.

"Last year, Sayer made the defense make mistakes," Davis said. "This year, we knew what he could do and knew we had to keep him contained. He forces you to play a game of no mistakes."

St. Louis, leading the East at 5-0-1, is at Washington, 3-3, but will have plenty of interest in the Dallas at Cleveland affair. The Cowboys are 4-0-1 after last week's tie with St. Louis, and Cleveland is 3-2 and still very much alive in the East.

In other games, Minnesota, 1-3-1, is at Baltimore, 3-2; Philadelphia, 3-3, at New York, 1-4-1; and Detroit 2-4, is at San Francisco 2-2-1.

In American League games tomorrow, Oakland, 3-3, is at New York 4-1-1; San Diego, 4-1-1, at Boston, 2-2-1; Miami, 1-5, at Houston, 3-3; and Kansas City, 4-2, at Denver, 1-5.

If Cleveland is to keep alive its hopes for a repeat as the Eastern Conference champions, the Browns must stop Olympic champion Bob Hayes. St. Louis did it last week, limiting him to three catches for 24 yards and breaking a string of seven straight games in which he had scored a touchdown.

"He's next to impossible to cover," said St. Louis defensive back Abe Woodson, who did next to the impossible. "All I tried to do was destroy his patterns. Only the fact that our pass rush hurried the quarterback saved me a couple of times," said Woodson, a former 49er.

The Browns will need the same sort of rush to stop Don Meredith, second in the league in passing, while Dallas' good defense will be tested in the running of Ernie Green and Leroy Kelly.

The St. Louis pass defense is in for another workout at Washington, with Sonny Jurgensen and Bobby Mitchell posing the problems. Mitchell leads the league with 28 receptions. The Cards had to rally for 17 points in the fourth quarter to beat Washington a month ago.

The Packers lead the league in total defense and passing defense and look for little trouble from the Falcons, still without a victory in their first season. Donnie Anderson and Jim Grabowski may expect to get some work as subs for Paul Hornung and Jim Taylor.

The Minnesota-Baltimore game shapes up as a battle between Johnny Unitas and Fran Tarkenton. Unitas was 18 of 27 for 218 yards and four touchdowns, while Tarkenton was 21 for 37 and 327 yards and three touchdowns last week in the Vikings' first victory. He may find the Colt defense a little tougher.

Philadelphia and New York will be playing for the second time this year, the Eagles taking the first one 35-17. The Giants scored their first victory last week and the Eagles won after two straight losses.

Drake Whips San Rafael '11' BY 32-19

But the Pirates struck with awesome suddeness in the third period and put the Bulldogs to rest despite a fourth-period touchdown.

Stone, always dangerous on long passes, fired successive strikes of 37 and 22 yards to end Chester Carlisle, the last for a touchdown to make it 26-13. Seconds later, Karl Stein, who led an excellent job of double coverage on Crowell, intercepted a wobbly Joost pass and ran it back to the San Rafael 19. A few plays later Brown swept the left side for nine yards and the score to put it out of reach.

Joost tried manly to bring the Bulldogs back, and with the help of a fake punt pass for 27 yards, managed to drive for a nine-yard score by running it in himself. But, as against Terra Linda, it was way past midnight.

Joost, with the exception of the long TD pass and the one sustained jabbing drive of short passes, was erratic, especially when rushed, but he still managed to throw for 225 yards, with Crowell catching 10 passes for 144 yards.

Stone threw little (13 passes) but completed 8 to 187 yards and time and again came up with the big play. Stein, usually his favorite receiver, caught only one pass, but turned in a demonic job on pass defense while covering Crowell.

A big and hard-charging Drake line gave the San Rafael offense fits. Doing a good share of the damage was 234-pound tackle Jerry Sprout, 210-pound tackle Carl Gonser and 177-pound guard Jarry Hedin, who blocked a Joost pass in the final period by literally climbing on top of two Bulldog blockers.

Chicago Bulls Are Surprise Of NBA

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Boston Celtics appear to be off and running as usual in the National Basketball Association. But how do you explain the Chicago Bulls.

The Celtics clobbered the Baltimore Bullets 111-91 last night for a first place tie in the Eastern Division with Philadelphia, while Chicago, the league's new franchise, remained on top in the West by defeating defending division champion Los Angeles 108-101 for its fourth victory in five games.

Keith Erickson, with 20 points, and Guy Rodgers, with 17, led the Bulls, who broke a 53-53 tie. The Lakers, playing without backcourt ace Jerry West, got 29 points from Elgin Baylor. Los Angeles is 1-3 and tied for last in the West with Detroit, which lost to San Francisco 136-91.

Boston had no trouble keeping pace with Philadelphia, which beat St. Louis 119-110, as John Havlicek came off the bench after the first period to score 28 points. Celtics player-coach Bill Russell cleared the bench in the fourth period. Don Ohl led Baltimore with 21 points.

Philadelphia came from behind on its home court to beat St. Louis. The Hawks led 38-25 in the first half before the 76ers rallied. The Hawks stayed in contention until Bill Cunningham broke loose in the second half to widen a 79-77 Philadelphia lead to 87-81. Cunningham got 23 points, 18 of them in the second half. Wilt Chamberlain also scored 23 for the 76ers although top scoring honors went to Hal Greer with 30. Richie Guerin paced the Hawks with 28.

Lightweight Title Bout Tonight In Mexico City

MEXICO CITY (AP) — World lightweight champion Carlos Ortiz of New York makes his second title defense of the year tonight when he meets Ultiminio (Sugar) Ramos in Mexico City's El Toreo bull ring.

The fight, Ramos' first shot at a title since he lost his world featherweight crown to Mexican Vicente Saldivar in 1964, is to start 8:15 p.m., EDT. A sell-out crowd of about 25,000 is expected for the second title bout here since August.

Ramos, a Cuban who now lives in Mexico City, is known as a strong, aggressive fighter. He has 35 knockouts in his 47-2 record. He's only been stopped once — by Saldivar.

Ortiz, 30, has never been knocked out in his 11-year career as a professional. He has a 45-5-1 record which includes 16 knockouts.

The champion was expected to barely make the 135-pound limit when the fighters stepped on the scales. He has had trouble shedding weight this time, manager Bill Daley said, but should weigh in a few ounces under the limit.

Ramos, who had some trouble making the featherweight limit at times, is not expected to have any trouble with the lightweight limit.

Both boxers have predicted a knockout victory. Ortiz says he will do it by the ninth round of the scheduled 15-round fight. Ramos says he will be lightweight champion "by 8:45 p.m.".

Ortiz, who has been training here about three weeks, was bothered by Mexico City's 7,347-foot altitude during his first few training sessions.

"He was hurting here at first," Daley said, "But he got over it and he's ready now."

The Puerto Rican born champion has announced plans to meet Gabriel (Flash) Elorde of the Philippines, the world junior lightweight champ, if he beats Ramos.

Several big names of boxing — including heavyweight champion Cassius Clay — were to be at ringside. Clay wants to look over a possible future challenger who is fighting a preliminary bout.

He is Manuel (Tom Thumb) Ramos, no relation to Sugar, and just about the finest heavyweight Mexico has produced.

Oakland Raiders Hope For Another Upset

NEW YORK (AP) — Oakland's Art Powell, who began his American Football League pass-catching career in New York , will find four receivers stacked against him when he returns tomorrow with the Raiders to do battle with the rebounding Jets.

The Oakland end, who has gained more than four miles via passes since breaking into the AFL in 1960 with the old New York Titans, is the league's No. 2 receiver — behind San Diego flash Lance Alworth -- this season.

He'll be the primary target tomorrow for Tom Flores, who has sparked the Raiders to two straight victories — including a 34-13 ambush of Kansas City last week — after winning the starting quarterback job from Cotton Davidson.

The Jets' Joe Namath, however, has four of the league's 10 best receivers to pitch to. Split end George Sauer has grabbed 24 passes, fullback Matt Snell 22, and flanker Don Maynard and tight end Pete Lammons 20 apiece.

Asked who is his favorite receiver, Namath has a ready reply: "The guy that's open."

Despite their balanced air attack, the Jets have sputtered in recent weeks. Namath engineered last-quarter rallies that tied Boston and nipped San Diego, but Houston burst the bubble last Sunday 24-0, snapping New York's unbeaten string at 10 games — a carryover streak from 1965.

Another setback could all but wipe out the Jets' Eastern Division lead, which appeared secure two weeks ago. The Houston loss left the Jets' season record at 1-1-1 and gave the Oilers, 3-3, the Boston Patriots, 2-2-1, and the Buffalo Bills, 3-3-1, new life.

A Shea Stadium sell-out crowd of 62,000 is expected for the 1:05 p.m., EDT, kickoff.

Miami Beats Indiana In Rainstorm

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—The Miami Hurricanes, beating Indiana and a tropical rainstorm 14-7, reached the halfway point of the football season last night ahead of the opposition for the first time in Charlie Tate's three years as coach.

Through a blinding cascade of water, David Olivo threw a four-yard pass to Jim Cox for a touchdown that brought Miami's record to 3-2 going into next week's big game with Southern California.

In Tate's first two seasons, the Hurricanes were losers at the midway mark, blossoming into one of the nation's better November teams.

Some 20,000 fans stayed home as the worst deluge in the Orange Bowl in five years began three hours before game time and lasted right through to the end.

But a hard core of 19,627 stuck it out to the finish as the Hurricanes turned one of 12 fumbles into the winning score.

Terry Cole's fumble of a pass from center on a fourth down punting attempt gave the Hurricanes possession on the Indiana six, and Olivo threw for the clincher.

Ray Harris boosted Miami into a 6-0 third quarter lead with field goals of 31 and 27 yards after two long drives in which Olivo hit Cox with a 48-yard bomb and Fred Cassidy broke away on a 50-yard run.

A magnificent 60-yard punt of a soggy ball by Cole set up an Indiana touchdown that almost pulled it out in the third.

The ball rolled dead at the two and after Miami kicked out to the 31, Frank Stavroff passed 14 yards to Al Gage for the score and Dave Kornowa's extra point put the Hoosiers in front 7-6.

Marin Nixes Grid Playoff

College of Marin, in a joint vote at a meeting of the board of trustees this week by the faculty, administration and student body, recommended that its delegate to the State Junior College Convention at Los Angeles vote against a proposal calling for post-season playoffs instead of single bowl games.

The student body earlier had voted to approve the measure.

The proposal from the State Athletic Commission would call for post-season playoffs to determine a state junior college champion instead of the present bowl system based on selection.

The measure, if passed, could involve College of Marin, if it was to win the Golden Valley Conference title.

SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY

EDITOR'S NOTEBOOK

Schlette Case Reveals Our Society's Weakness

THE CASE OF Malcolm Schlette points up some of the most lamentable weaknesses in our society today.

Schlette is the convicted arsonist who was paroled recently after serving 11 years in state prisons for putting the torch to the Bleu Baie Tavern overlooking Tomales Bay.

An arsonist is more likely to need psychiatric care than punishment.

Our state prison system calls itself the Department of Corrections and attempts to rehabilitate its charges.

It is no credit to our system that after 11 years of rehabilitation when Schlette was pronounced ready to take his place among us, he became a parole violator on his very first day out because he failed to report as scheduled to his assigned parole officer.

A SPECIAL INTEREST has surrounded Schlette's case ever since it became known that he had threatened the lives of the judge, prosecutor, investigators and others involved in his conviction. He was accused of vowing to kill them when he got out of prison.

The former district attorney some years ago called this to the attention of the Adult Authority (parole board) when Schlette's possible parole was under consideration.

Some weeks ago the Adult Authority finally set a parole date for Schlette.

In this connection it is interesting to recall that I-J city editor Bryce Anderson once calculated the amount of time which the Adult Authority can apportion to each case before it. All of California's thousands of prisoners in state penal institutions are under the jurisdiction of the Adult Authority. The average amount of time devoted to any one inmate's case can be measured in seconds, Anderson found.

Obviously, such a system leaves much to be desired.

No wonder dangerous men are released and harmless ones continued in confinement.

WHEN THE ADULT AUTHORITY set a parole date for Schlette, it rang a bell with Marin law enforcement officers. Through a stool pigeon at Folsom it was known that Schlette had reaffirmed his intention to kill judge.. prosecutor and the others when he was released.

Marin officials were informed that the parole could not be revoked without a full-dress hearing which would involve exposure of the "stoolie."

So in order to protect the stool-pigeon system (instead of protecting the threatened lives) the parole order was allowed to stand.

But Schlette's release was delayed while he underwent extensive psychiatric examinations at Vacaville—not a prison, but a "medical facility of the Department of Corrections."

The prison psychiatrists at Vacaville finally pronounced Schlette fit to reenter society.

To repeat, he became a parole violator on his first day out when he failed to report to his assigned parole officer.

Subsequently, he attempted to purchase deadly weapons in San Francisco, presumably with the intent of carrying out his vow to take the lives of the Marin officials involved in his conviction more than a decade ago.

NO MATTER HOW you measure it, society—and the State Department of Corrections—certainly failed in its handling of the Schlette case.

Captured after less than one week's freedom, Schlette will go back to prison for perhaps another decade of "rehabilitation" and psychiatric counseling.

If his case could only bring some inquiry into the state of affairs within our prisons and the Department of Corrections and the Adult Authority, the tragedy of it might at least not be all in vain.

But this is unlikely. His is not a celebrated case. Outside of Marin it is practically unknown.

ONE OF THE BY-PRODUCTS of all this was a press-law enforcement dialogue (debate might be more descriptive) as to whether the public welfare was best served by publicizing Schlette's flight and threats, or by suppressing news about them in hopes that Schlette would assume police were not trying very hard to track him down. This latter view held that Schlette would be less likely to cover his tracks and therefore possibly more easy to apprehend.

Even police agencies were divided on the question. But finally the view prevailed that the more publicity given the case, the sooner someone would recognize the fleeing Schlette, and turn him in.

IT IS TO BE HOPED that the case is NOT forgotten, now that he has been captured and returned to prison.

It is to be hoped that it will remind us always that society and the Department of Corrections still does a poor job of handling warped minds.

As an I-J editorial in this space noted recently, we have a long way to go in these matters before we properly can call ourselves a "great society."

Check The Roof Before It Rains

Human nature being quite unpredictable, it is probably not at all surprising that some Marinites neglect to check the condition of their roof before the heavy rains of autumn.

Yet, it happens every year, as any roofer will tell you. Don't let your interior decorating be ruined by water damage because of forgetfulness.

Autumn Creeping In

As the days become shorter, we feel the crispenss of fall in the morning air.

The leaves of most deciduous trees are starting to look pale around their outer edges—a hint of the changes to come.

Most of the birds are quite friendly with others of the same species, in comparison with their competitive behavior during mating season.

It isn't really autumn yet, but it isn't truly summer either.

BOUQUETS to Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Rovelstad of Novato, who celebrated 50 years of marriage with an open house at their home on Tamalpais Avenue.

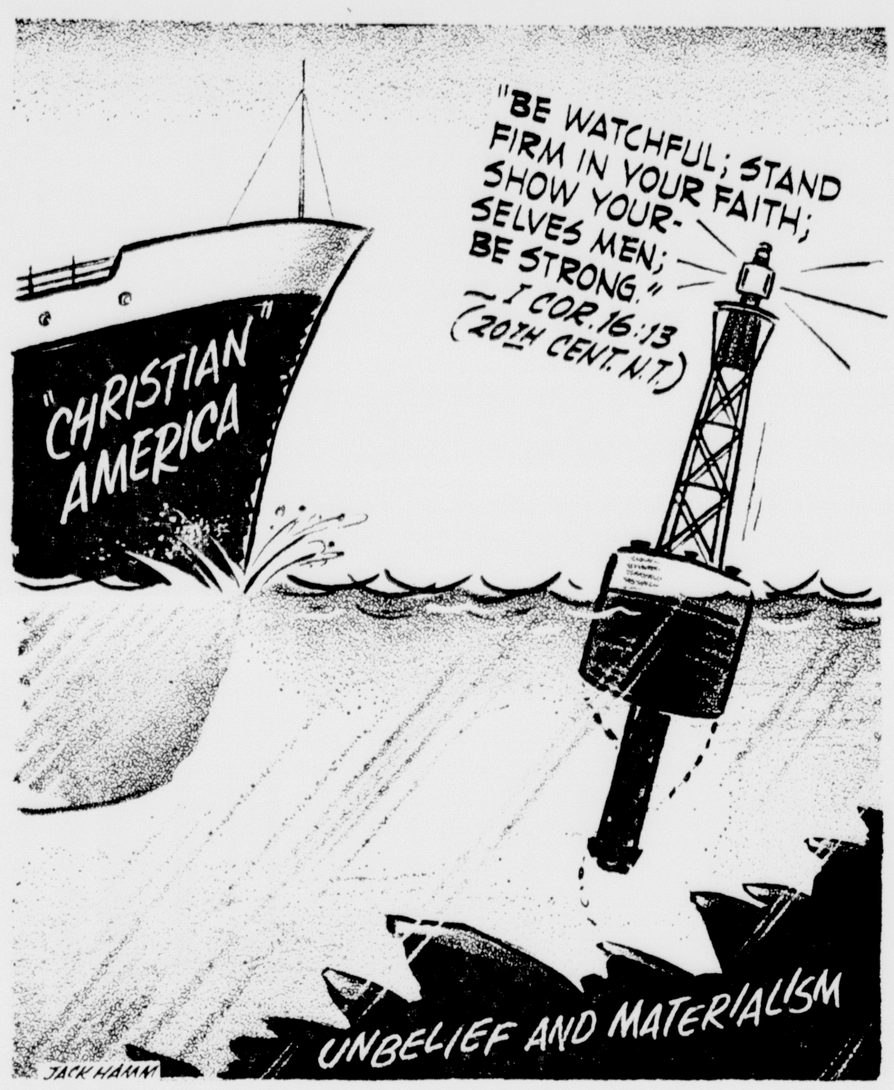

BOUQUETS to Sausalito Police Officer Kevin Sharp for rescuing an Army captain from the burning Eden Roc apartments near Sausalito, and BOUQUETS to Sausalito Fire Capt. Ralph K. Pedersen and other firemen who aided in the rescue.

BOUQUETS to the public-spirited volunteers in Novato who are giving their time and effort to clean up and refurbish the community clubhouse, some of them working into the wee hours of the morning.

A BOUQUET to Mrs. Kay Rogers of Marinwood for saving a neighbor's home from possible destruction when a television set burned and later exploded. She disconnected all switches on the house control panel, turned the TV toward a window before it exploded, then doused flames on the living room rug.

A BOUQUET to Congressman Don H. Clausen for receiving the "Watchdog of the Treasury" award for his voting record in favor of economy in government in the 89th Congress. It was the second "watchdog" award presented to Clausen by the National Associated Businessmen Inc., an association made up mainly of small businessmen.

Bird Watcher Strikes Back

Editor, Independent-Journal:

In response to the letter printed Oct. 18 over the name of George Oliva, in which he objects to the criticism of conservationists of the pending proposal for the over-development of the Bolinas Lagoon into a harbor and sporting area:

Like Dr. Oliva, I, too, "look forward with keen anticipation" to retiring to Bolinas and to this end, I have been paying property taxes there for several years, as does my mother, Mrs. V. F. Wright, who resides there now and also contributes through volunteer work to the betterment of that community.

But our expectations did not and do not include 2,000 boats, and 4,000 cars belonging to each boat owner and his guests, the congestion of the supporting services required, and the inevitable air and noise pollution.

Dr. Oliva indicates that he plans to escape from this elaborate harbor on his small boat when he takes "frequent short runs for salmon and some good, clean, moist air."

Not all of us committed to Bolinas will be so fortunate; a great many will have to stay ashore with the carbon monoxide, the view of nature destroyed, and only the birds to watch if there are any left.

While I would feel presumptuous to put only B.A. after my name, my education is at least broad enough that I know the birds whose habitat is the seashore of Point Reyes are not the same type of birds that use the Bolinas Lagoon as a flyway and sanctuary.

Dr. Oliva should also be aware that all of the Point Reyes Seashore is not and may never be available for the public "to roam" as Congress has not followed-up with sufficient appropriations to implement the initial legislation permitting the national seashore. Too much is taken for granted by the general public whose interests fortunately are protected by the vigilance of conservationists who have learned better than to take anything for granted.

Another error expressed by the doctor is "that the 'conservation' people have more time on their hands than the rest of us." The majority to the contrary, including myself have full-time positions as significant as Dr. Oliva's profession, in addition to fully meeting family responsibilities. In reality people find time to do those things which they feel worth doing.

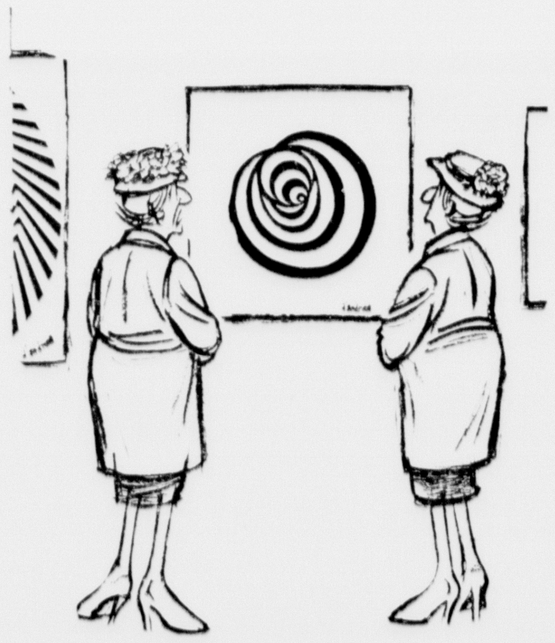

The difference here may be that Dr. Oliva, as an anesthetist, puts people to sleep while the conservationist tries to wake them up.

Of course if the conservationists concerned about fish and game get tired and run out of time, there may be no salmon left. The conservation battle is fought on many fronts for different needs.

The Bolinas Lagoon should be simply restored and preserved, the birds and fish should be protected, the laws of nature obeyed, and there should be "good, clean, moist air" on land as well as at sea, not only for Dr. Oliva, the fisherman, but for the bird-watchers to whom he referss, and unto the third generation of those who are neither.

Dirksen Holds Off On Critical Comments On LBJ's Peace Trip

WASHINGTON — You may have noticed that the Republican Senate leader, the shrewd and sensible Everett Dirksen, is not criticising the timing of the Manila conference on the eve of the U.S. elections.

There are good reasons.

Senator Dirksen is sensitive enough, unlike some of his colleagues, to see instantly that to attack President Johnson for going to Manila during the campaign would give him a monopoly of the Viet Nam peace issue. Nothing could be more hurtful to the Republicans.

THE FACT is that the persistent U.S. effort to get peace talks underway is completely bi-partisan and Dirksen is wise in maintaining that stance while some Republicans are being shortsighted in throwing it away.

Johnson is going to the right place for the right reasons at the right time.

He is going to a conference of Saigon's Asian allies, all of whom have troops defending South Viet Nam.

The purpose is to explore and expand the peace terms which the Asian nations themselves feel would provide a secure end to the fighting. Obviously a united Asian peace initiative is far better than a separate American peace initiative. That's what the Manila conference is all about.

IS THIS just the right time? No one knows, but consider the anguished cry that would arise in the U.S. and around the world if President Johnson had refused President Marcos's invitation because he had to stay in the United States to campaign.

This is a conflict in Asia and it has to end in a primarily Asian solution.

This is why the Manila conference is well conceived and it is all the better that the initiative to hold it came from the Philippines.

UNDOUBTEDLY THE agenda will include three main areas of discussion:

How to bring about a durable peace in Viet Nam and an appeal to Hanoi to negotiate a settlement.

A development program for all Southeast Asia with the help of the United States, Japan, and other countries.

Ways to promote closer Asian political and economic ties and mutual defense.

AT HIS DEPARTURE Johnson rightly warned that there was no "magic wand" by which he could wave these goals into being and that the Manila meeting would be only a beginning. But it is a good beginning and it wisely focuses on the search for a closer-knit Asian regionalism so essential to a stable peace in the western Pacific.

The critics of U.S. policy often suggest that President Johnson had no clear view of where he was headed in Viet Nam. The fact is that LBJ saw what was needed when he visited Viet Nam for President Kennedy in 1961 and Johnson has subsequently followed the course he laid out. Here is what he urged on President Kennedy:

"The fundamental decision required of the United States is whether we are to attempt to meet the challenge of Communist expansion now in Southeast Asia by a major effort in support of the forces of freedom in the area or throw in the towel. This decision . . . must be made with the knowledge that at some point we may be faced with the decision of whether we commit major United States forces to the area or cut our losses and withdraw should our efforts fail. We must remain masters in this decision . . . I recommend we proceed with a clear-cut and strong program of action."

This shows how clearly Mr. Johnson saw the issue from the outset.

TO BE EQUAL

Pace Of Progress Not Fast Enough

A RECENT magazine poll showed that 70 per cent of white people feel that Negroes "are trying to move too fast." These people obviously feel that passage of a few laws, important as they are, is removing the inequalities which exist in our society. It is interesting that only 4 per cent of Negroes polled agreed with them.

Thus, it appears that there is an "information gap" between the whites who feel Negroes are moving too fast and the 96 per cent of Negro citizens who are only too well aware of the tragic discrepancies between the living standards of whites and Negroes caused by years of discrimination and neglect.

A LOOK AT a few of the most relevant statistics will be enough to convince any fair-minded observer that Negroes must go a long way before they can become full partners in our affluent society.

Take income, for example. The median income for Negro families is $3,971. But this is only a little more than half of the median income for white families — $7,170.

The Negro has a greater knowledge of poverty, too. Negroes comprise 11 per cent of the population, yet four out of every 10 poor people are Negro.

More shocking are the figures for the urban poor family. Of primary family units in cities — that is, husband, wife and children — only one out of twenty white families earn less than the $3,000 poverty standard set by the government.

BUT MORE THAN one out of every five such Negro families earn less than this inadequate sum.

The Negro is far more likely to suffer unemployment. His unemployment rate is double that for whites, and has been since the early 1950s. It is especially rough on young people. The most recent figures show that the unemployment rate for white youths aged 18 and 19 declined from 19 per cent a year ago to 15 per cent.

But unemployment for Negro youths in this group actually increased in that time—from 27 to 32 per cent or one in three.

IT IS CLEAR TOO, that these tragic figures are due to discriminatory practices. Lack of opportunity has resulted in 44 per cent of Negro males holding jobs as laborers or service employees as opposed to only 15 per cent of white males.

These are only a few of the statistics which could be cited in the field of employment, but what does this mean in other areas of life? It means substandard living conditions, bad housing and lower life expectancy.

Only 13 per cent of white families live in substandard housing, but, forced into urban ghettos and in a less favorable economic position, almost half, of Negro families live in substandard housing.

The Negro citizen has a life expectancy of only 64 years, but the white person has a life expectancy of 71 years. Infant mortality rates also show that Negroes have less of a chance to life itself.

For every 1,000 babies born to Negro parents, 41 die, as opposed to 21 white babies per thousand.

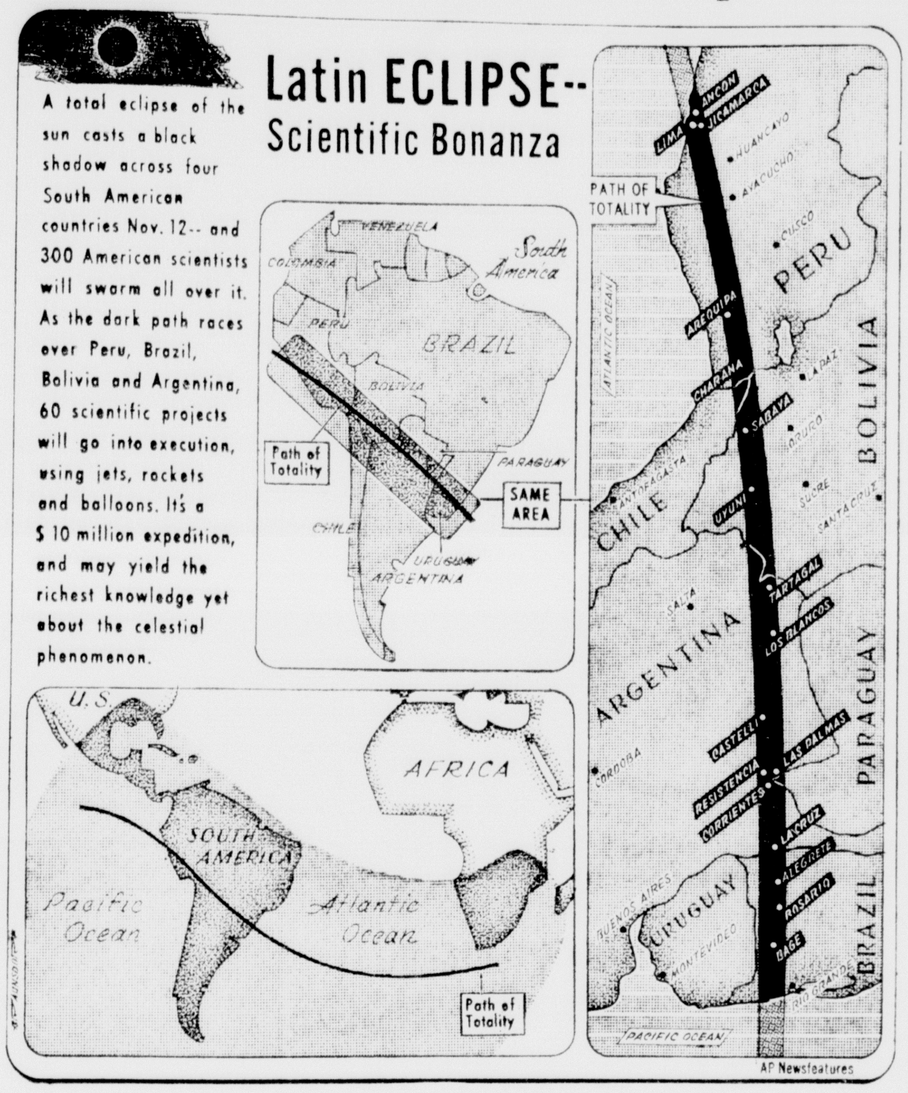

An affluent America cannot sink into complacency and smugly agree that the Negro is "moving too fast." The figures are there for all to see. He is not moving at all. If democracy and justice have any meaning, America must move, and move quickly to insure that all its citizens share equally in the fruits of society.

Scientists Ready To Spend Millions To Chase Shadow

By FRANK CAREY

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than 300 American scientists are preparing to go on expeditions costing $10 million to study a scientifically important, two-to-three-minute "peep show" over South America next month. The object of their activity, including the marshalling of rockets, jet aircraft and balloons, will be a total eclipse of the sun on Nov. 12.

They'll be heading for South America because grandstand seats for the show—that is, the path of totality for land areas—will be limited to a relatively narrow band, never exceeding 55 miles wide, crossing Peru, Bolivia, Argentina and Brazil.

The American effort, involving some 60 projects, is coordinated by the National Science Foundation.

The eclipse, caused by the moon intervening between the sun and earth so that the moon's shadow is cast on our planet, will begin at sunrise west of the Galapagos Islands in the Pacific.

Thence, the moon's shadow will race southeasterly at a 1,000-miles-an-hour clip across South America and continue out across the South Atlantic. The eclipse will end at sunset off the coast of Africa.

The shadow-track of totality will be almost 10,000 miles long, yet only about 2,000 miles will involve land areas. American scientists, with their thousands of pounds of ground-based equipment—and those from many other countries—will have less than two minutes to study totality from various points along the track.

However, U.S. scientists riding 600-mile-an-hour jet aircraft — four Boeing KC-135's and a Convair 990—will race with the giant shadow, and thus be able to conduct experiments for about three minutes.

Partial phases of the eclipse, decreasing with the distance from the path of totality, will be visible throughout the rest of South America, most of Central America, the West Indies, the southern part of Africa, part of Antarctica and the extreme southeastern part of the United States.

In the United States, the show will be anything but spectacular. The partial eclipse will be visible only from the lower half of the Florida peninsula, along Gulf Coast points of Louisiana and Texas, and possibly from coastal points of Mississippi and Alabama.

But at most, only a small fraction of the sun's surface will be apparently blacked-out to observers from those points. Moreover, folks will have to get up early in the morning to see it, because the sun will rise already eclipsed, and the whole show will be over within 45 minutes.

The variety and number of scientific studies planned by American and other researchers range from hunting for new comets to studying the effects of the eclipse on animals. Together, they promise to make the November eclipse one of the richest yielders of solar eclipse information on record.

And, just by luck, the show will come just as Old Sol is beginning to have another of his periodic nervous spells. That is, it will come at a time when the sun is beginning an upswing in one of its 11-year-long cycles of sunspot and solar-flare activity.

Because of this coincidence, and other factors, scientists are hoping to get a wealth of new information about the sun and its effects on earth—including the planet's weather and communications systems.

Perhaps the most spectacular experiments will be a barrage of instrument-laden, nonorbiting rockets, to be launched by Americans from points in Argentina and Brazil. French and Argentine scientists will also lauch rockets.

Americans will launch four instrumented balloons over a period of three days—to study changes in the ozone content of the high atmosphere.

Time Speeding Up In India But Whither Goes Nation?

EDITOR'S NOTE—The writer of this analysis has been chief of The Associated Press bureau in India for three years. Now leaving to assume another assignment, he was asked to assay the last few years' developments and India's outlook.

By CONRAD FINK

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — In once-timeless India, time is marching swiftly today. Seldom in 19 years of independence has India been in such turmoil with its basic democratic institutions and its dream of progress threatened.

In the heady years after independence in 1947, there seemed to be few doubts India was entering a new era.

A turning point came three years ago as Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru slumped into physical and mental exhaustion caused by too many burdens carried too long.

India slumped too.

Massive development plans, once a model for underdeveloped nations trying to leave the ox cart age, became divorced from economic realities. New Delhi talked of steel mills while Indians hungered.

With his death May 27, 1964, it became apparent the essential question was: "After Nehru what?"

Lal Bahadur Shastri, who succeeded Nehru, found to his despair, riots, civil disobedience, food shortages and a dangerous weakening of India's federated structure.

Ambitious state and regional politicians began defying New Delhi. Food-surplus states refused to share with hungry neighbors. Language riots erupted, regional jealousies came to the surface, states began quarreling over boundaries, separate groups began demanding separate states.

All this revealed a centrifugal force spinning power away from the central government and into the hands of men who might use it for something less than national good.

This force today threatens Nehru's dream of one powerful viable nation of 500 million.

Shastri, to the surprise of many, flowered as a leader during India's war with Pakistan in September 1965. His dedication to the basic problems of feeding and housing his people impressed foreign experts.

India, many felt, was getting its feet on the ground for the first time since independence. But last Jan. 11, while trying to fashion peace with Pakistan at a summit conference in Tashkent, U.S.S.R., Shastri died.

It was a stunning blow.

India's political leadership—"the syndicate," it is called—turned to Nehru's daughter, Indira Gandhi. The 48-year-old widow's government experience was limited to watching her father in action plus one brief term as information minister.

How has she done?

A leading Indian cartoonist sums up his feelings by portraying Mrs. Gandhi and her Cabinet fleeing along a road pursued by a howling mob demanding food, lower prices and a break in life.

"I am sure the country is behind us," Mrs. Gandhi gasps.

The cartoon touches a widespread suspicion: In three years, the leaders who once led are being pushed and chased.

Mobs break down law and order in vast areas for long periods. Parliament and state legislatures are hamstrung by a canny leftist opposition. Students have entered the area, rioting, clashing with police, destroying classrooms — becoming ever bolder.

Once India could draw on a seemingly inexhaustible fund of foreign aid. The United States alone has contributed more than $7 billion to India's development: American wheat today feeds millions.

But the United States has no huge grain surplus left. There is "aid weariness" in America and elsewhere. India nevertheless needs massive continued aid just to pay off its debts.

Today, some talk no longer of a takeoff. They say the most important problem is staving off leftist-inspired chaos and a subsequent swing to authoritarianism.

PROFILE OF HONG KONG

An Island Of Common Sense Amid Asia's Troubles Seas

By GEORGE BARKER
Special to the I-J

HONG KONG — Hong Kong is economically dynamic, politically quiescent, and socially an amalgam.

Hong Kong owes its economic dynamism to plentiful Chinese labor. This is labor which is intelligent, easy to train, and ready to work. On the whole, it is "docile" labor. The Chinese have no tradition of fighting management for higher wages or better working conditions. The union movement is not strong.

The abundance of inexpensive labor is somewhat offset by the fact that Hong Kong is almost completely devoid of the raw materials for manufacturing. Everything must be imported and then re-exported.

Hong Kong, with less than 400 square miles and approaching 4 million people, grows an astonishing amount of food in its New Territories region. Four or five crops of vegetables a year. The rice which has been grown here in the Shatin Valley in centuries past was of such good quality that much of it was reserved for the Imperial household in Peking. It is still good and more expensive than other rice here in Hong Kong, but the farmers find it more profitable to grow vegetables.

However, Hong Kong must import most of its food. About a fourth comes from Red China, next door. Having a lower standard of living and anxious to earn hard currency, China sells food and water to Hong Kong at very cheap prices. If Hong Kong were to cut trade ties with Red China, the cost of living here would rise precipitously.

Hong Kong seems to be politically quiescent. Just why this is, nobody really seems to know. With the rest of Asia in ferment, reacting against the injustices, real and imagined, of a century of European domination, Hong Kong seems to be an island of common sense in a sea of troubles. Hong Kong's Chinese just want to be left to work in peace.

This is a last outpost of Chinese tradition. One of these traditions is to expect nothing from government. In times of trouble, one looks to one's family, not the state. This attitude of regarding the government a necessary nuisance discourages political activism.

Everybody over here can glibly tell you that the population of Hong Kong is 98 per cent Chinese. This is sheer guessing; no accurate racial census has been taken.

About all one can be sure of is that there are too many people. The population problem has been compounded by the influx of people from Red China. Although the Hong Kong government claims that it permitted unrestricted immigration for so many years on "humanitarian grounds," my professor says this is simply "government verbiage."

In truth, the government had no policy at all. And one might ask, if the government was so humane before, is it inhumane now?

Behind The News

A Weekly Page Of Background Information

THIS WEEK In The World

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

The President of the United States has gone visiting halfway round the globe.

And in Anzac territory—a stopping place on his 25,000-mile odyssey for peace—the throngs made Lyndon Baines Johnson feel so much at home the trip took on the characteristics of a presidential campaign down main street, U.S.A., but there were grim reminders that his policy in Viet Nam is unpopular in some circles.

Wellington, the capital of New Zealand, turned out 60,000 to greet the President. In the Australian capital, Canberra, 30,000 showed up.

Both times there were anti-war, anti-American and anti-Johnson pickets, a decided minority to be sure.

But in Melbourne, during a wild, ticker tape and confetti welcome by 700,000 Aussies, two young men ran alongside the President's bubble-top limousine and hurled plastic bags of green and red paint.

President and Mrs. Johnson were unhurt but three Secret Service agents were taken to a hospital as a precaution against eye damage.

It was an unfortunate marring of what had been a wildly enthusiastic reception for Johnson. The bubbletop had been swamped on Swanson Street and Johnson got out, beckoning for thousands of Aussies to come closer.

And come closer they did, breaking through police barricades. The President smiled and shook hands as the multitude came still closer.

Slouch-hatted Australian soldiers had to help the Secret Service give the President room to re-enter the auto.

But for all the gaiety of crowds, the voyage is a somber one. Its terminus is Manila, where the nations helping the United States in Viet Nam will meet.

Johnson has warned that miracles should not be expected from the Manila summit.

The theme is peace. The Communists have painted the meeting as an international war council. A small minority of anti-war demonstrators has catcalled Johnson on this trip. But the President speaks only of peace.

Around The World; Around The Nation:

Siagon—Seven members resigned from the cabinet of South Vietnamese Premier Nguyen Cao Ky. By week's end Ky appeared to have survived the crisis by making several concessions.

Saigon—The ground war continued to be relatively light but at week's end the 25th Infantry Division was beginning a massive sweep. U.S. planes resumed raids on the Demilitarized Zone. Viet Cong terrorists killed more than a score in Saigon.

Hong Kong—Red Guard terrorism continued rife in Red China, according to reports reaching Hong Kong. The young fanatics beat and tortured those accused of taking an anti-Mao Tse-tung line.

Washington—Congress raced for adjournment aimed for this weekend.

Oakland—Molotov cocktails punctuated racial violence.

Stockholm—Samuel Yosef Agnon, 76, who writes poetry in Hebrew, and Nelly Sachs, 74, who writes in German, shared the 1966 Nobel Prize for Literature as "two outstanding Jewish authors, each of whom represents Israel's message of our time."

New York—A dozen firemen died in the worst disaster in the history of the New York Fire Department.

STANDS PAT — Osteopathic Dr. Irene Hickman argues that the California State Constitution calls for assessment of all property at 100 per cent of its fair market value—and she's going to assess it that way so long as she's in office. Besides the threat of potential quadrupled local taxes, her stand raises a Pandora's box of questions about the affect on school districts whose state loans depend on bonding capacity. Woman Assessor Unbowed By Uproar In Sacramento

By DEREK SCHOEN

SACRAMENTO (AP)—A matronly looking woman assessor today finds herself the center of a statewide furor. Why? She insists in abiding by the State Constitution in assessing land for tax purposes.

Charges of "sheer lunacy," hints of a court test and threats of a recall election to remove her from office have so far failed to daunt Dr. Irene Hickman, Sacramento County assessor.

"I don't mind one bit being under fire. I have a thick skin and all this ridiculous business just calls attention to my plan," says Dr. Hickman, 51, whose plump face is topped by graying blonde hair worn in a bun.

Behind the uproar is Dr. Hickman's plan to assess all property at 100 per cent of its market value. By state statute, passed earlier this year by the legislature, property is now assessed at between 20 and 25 per cent, despite a section of the State Constitution reading:

"All properties subject to taxation shall be assessed for taxation at its full cash value."

"I have to obey the law," says Dr. Hickman, "and the law tells me that I must assess all property at 100 per cent of its market value."

In the two weeks since she announced her plan, Dr. Hickman admits being deluged with phone calls from irate citizens who fear her proposal could quadruple taxes on their homes. Some have said they'll attempt to get her recalled from office.

Chairman George E. Reilly of the State Board of Equalization branded her plan "unfair" and said the board will summon Dr. Hickman to a public hearing. He indicated the board also might seek court action to block the plan.

Sacramento City Councilman Thomas Murphy termed it "sheer lunacy" and the council discussed having the city do its own assessing to avoid Dr. Hickman's valuations.

It's all very different from last June's election, when Dr. Hickman ousted Assessor Richard Blechschmidt from office. It was the first time in 40 years an incumbent Sacramento County assessor had been defeated.

Dr. Hickman campaigned on the theme that slum property and vacant lots were being under-assessed, aiding slumlords and speculators while placing the tax burden on the homeowner.

She also benefitted from a statewide scandal that found a number of assessors indicted on charges of accepting kickbacks for lowering assessments on business and industrial property.

Dr. Hickman, an osteopathic physician, says she was surprised to be elected. She brushes off suggestions that her present stance might harm her chances for re-election by asserting:

"I didn't really want the job in the first place. But I'm going to do it correctly as long as I have it."

When Blechschmidt died shortly after the election, the county supervisors appointed Dr. Hickman to the post. That completed a cycle that started a year before when she filed a taxpayers' suit against the county on grounds 400 properties were being under-assessed.

She lost the suit but followed the advice of a judge who told her attorney: "If the people don't like their assessments they can always elect another assessor."

Dr. Hickman says she's a disciple ofHenry George, the 19th Century American economist who advocated the "single tax" on land. Under George's plan, followed in sections of Australia and New Zealand, only land would be taxed—not the buildings or other improvements on it.

A part-time teacher of George theories, Dr. Hickman eventually hopes to eliminate taxes on buildings and personal property. She claims taxes on buildings tend to encourage speculation, penalize those who construct expensive homes and hold back slum clearance projects.

To complaints that her 100 per cent assessments would elevate taxes unless taxing agencies lowered their rates, she says:

"I'm not responsible for the sanity of other elected offiials. All theyneed do is lower the tax rates to correspond with the change in assessments. If they don't, they and not me should be the target of public indignation."

In the meantime, says the embattled assessor, she responds to all questions about her well-being by saying: "Everything's 100 per cent with me."

SACRAMENTO SCENE

State Computerizing Car, Driver Records

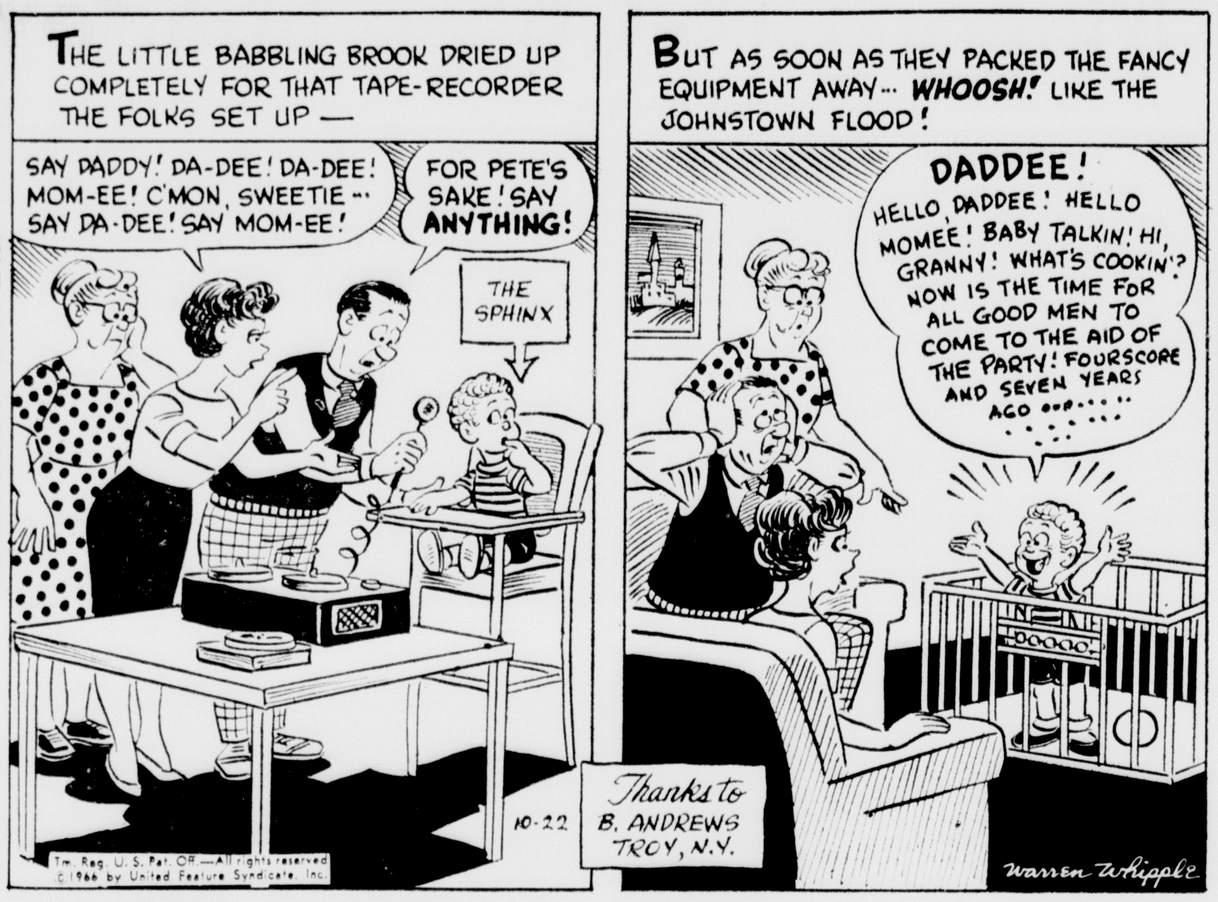

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — A state-wide computer network, which will make the records of California's 11 million motor vehicles and 10.5 million drivers instantly accessible to law and safety officers, has been started by the Department of Motor Vehicles. Once on file, the case history of any driver or automobile can be dialed from many points in the state as easily as a telephone number, DMV director Tom Bright said.

More than one-third of motor vehicles inspected by the California Highway Patrol in its random roadside inspection program have been found to be in violation of at least one item. The CHP said of 662,848 cars inspected since last May, 248,847 of them have been found to be in some violation.

Most common equipment violations were defective lights, followed by mufflers, horns, brakes, windshield wipers and rearview mirrors.

A consulting firm studying reorganization of the State Department of Education has recommended responsibility for the junior college system should be transferred from the department to a new agency. Arthur D. Little, Inc., Cambridge, Mass., said it was improbable the interests of the junior colleges could be best served under the department.

Deuce Can Tell Story To All Those Who Listen

One of the important things to remember about the opening lead of a deuce is that it may be a singleton.

When the card is kind enough to issue this warning, you are foolish if you fail to heed it.

ACES CASHED

West opened with the deuce of hearts and South won with the ace.

He returned a spade and East won with the ace of spades and led the king of hearts.

South ruffed, and West overruffed with the nine of spades.

West then led a diamond to the ace, and East led another heart.

SETTING TRICK

Now West was sure to get the setting trick with the ten of spades.

If South ruffed low, West would over-ruff at once, and if South ruffed high, West's ten would eventually become good.

SHOULD SEE

South should read the opening lead of the deuce of hearts as a singleton.

Moreover, South should see exactly what is bound to happen if he ruffs the king of hearts.

South should discard the king of diamonds on the king of hearts.

East continues with a heart, and South ruffs with a low trump.

West over-ruffs with the nine of spades, thus taking the third defensive trick. That ends the defense.

There is no way for East to gain the lead, and South cannot be put in the middle again.

Whatever West leads, South wins.

South draws trumps and claims the rest of the tricks.

Pasteurized Crab, Shrimp Foreseen

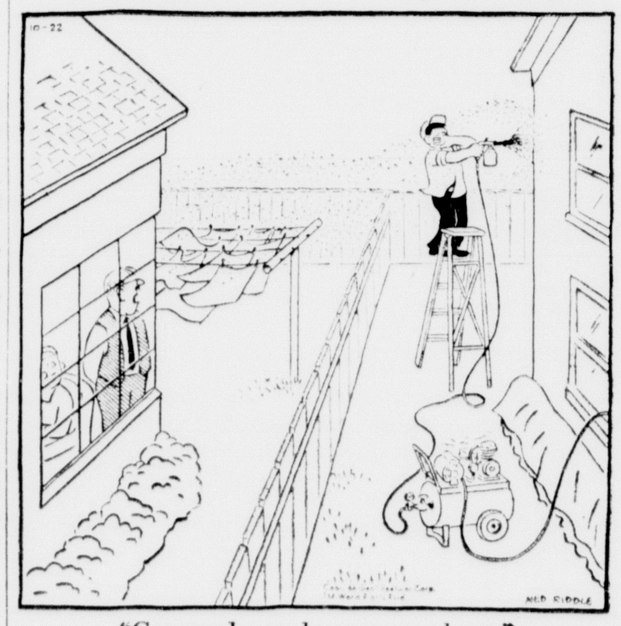

Special to the I-J

SAN FRANCISCO — The Seafood Research Laboratory of the University of California's Medical Center here is trying to develop a satisfactory pasteurizing process to extend the shelf life of Dungeness crab and Pacific Coast shrimp.

Experiments will be concerned with the effects of various pasteurization conditions in half-pound and larger cans and in flexible packs, according to Dr. Lionel Farber, director of the Laboratory.

The work will be done under contract with the U.S. Department of Interior's Bureau of Commercial Fisheries, Southwest Region. Previous studies by the Bureau's Seattle laboratory have shown the need for additional research before a pasteurization process for Dungeness crab can be adopted by industry.

RELIGION IN AMERICA

Doubt And Faith Linked Together

By LOUIS CASSELS

United Press International

In dictionaries, doubt is the antonym, or direct opposite, of faith.

In life, however, it's not quite that simple. Doubt and faith are continually interacting. They are so closely related that the late Paul Tillich felt they could be regarded as different aspects of the same state of "ultimate concern."

Many people seem to have the idea that believers, once convinced of God's existence, are never again troubled by doubts. But religious history affords no support for this view. The greatest saints have experienced "the dark night of the soul" in which all certainty vanishes.

CONFESSIONS

St. Augustine recorded in his "confessions" the desperate feeling of aloneness which occurs when God suddenly ceases to be a felt presence and becomes merely a doubtful hypothesis.

"To Thee, O Lord, I should have lifted up my mind for Three to give it relief," St. Augustine wrote. "But I had neither the will nor the power to do so. And the difficulty was greater because, when I thought of Thee, nothing real and substantial presented itself to my mind."

St. Augustine's candor is emulated by the Rev. Dr. Robert H. Hamill, dean of the chapel at Boston University, in an article published in the October issue of the Methodist family magazine Together.

"A kind of nightmare haunts me time and time again," confesses the noted Methodist preacher. "I look out upon this living, busy world, and I see no reflection of its Creator. It is as though I am looking into a mirror but cannot see my own face. Something has gone blank. God seems silent, absent or dead."

DIFFERENT IDEA

But the recurrence of this agonizing experience—which is familiar to many other Christians today—has not led Dr. Hamill to the same conclusion as the "death of God" theologians who cite human unawareness of God as a reason for asserting that He no longer exists.

When a man declares that he is not able to sense the presence of God, says Dr. Hamill, "this says a great deal about the speaker, but really says nothing about God."

"If I am deaf to my neighbor speaking, that does not prove that he is either speechless or non-existent. Just because God is not as obvious as a billboard is no proof that He is only a mirage."

But how does a believer—or one who wants to believe—cope with the long dry periods when God seems a remote and improbable hypothesis?

"The one great thing I have learned about doubt," says the Boston University dean, "is that it need not ruin my life. Even the denial of God need not cut me off from God, for neither my virtue nor my orthodoxy earns me God's favor. God does care for me regardless of what I believe about God. The main thing is not my hold on God, but His hold on me."

Dr. Hamill has also learned from experience that doubt can never be successfully resolved by reason alone, nor can it be conuqered by a mighty effort of the human will.

"Only God Himself can ever cure my doubts about Him. If I pray, I open up my life to God. I find mercy for my sins, but also clarification for my doubts."

Although it is painful, he says, honest doubt is good for the soul.

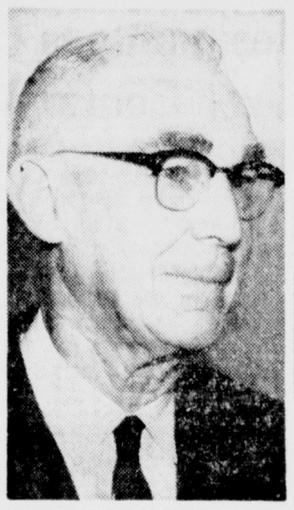

HIS GRACE

"In the experience of doubt, I find something of God's grace, because doubting clarifies my thinking, topples my false idols, renews my respect for the truth . . .

"If you doubt for the sake of truth—if you disbelieve in God for God's sake—you are justified, because through doubt God is able to renew your authentic life.

"If you have the courage to doubt, then you may find God in that very moment when all known assertions about God have lost their appeal. This is your experience of death and resurrection: The death of every certainty and the rebirth of assurance that lies beyond any formulated belief.

"For if you have faith to doubt, God will find you—and you will find God at least."

MISSION SPEAKER — Dr. Lewis A. Brown, missionary to the Congo and interim pastor of the San Anselmo First Baptist in 1964, will open a series of sermons at 11 a.m. tomorrow at the church, Sir Francis Drake Boulevard and Sais Avenue. He will also speak each evening at 7:30 p.m., except Saturday and also at 11 a.m. next Sunday as the church's "Deeper Life" conference guest.

Conclave Abroad To Be Described In Larkspur

Members and guests of the XL Club of Redwood Presbyterian Church of Larkspur will hear a report Tuesday by Eudora Slyvester on the World Christian Endeavor meeting she attended in Belfast, North Ireland.

Miss Sylvester will speak at a dinner meeting at 6:30 p.m. in the church's Fellowship Hall. Hostesses for the dinner—which will feature Scandinavian and Irish dishes—include Dolly Hogan, Jessie Pratt and Mrs. B. R. Bull.

Italian Night Slated Tuesday

SUPERMARKET PICKETS

Housewives in Redding (Shasta County) join their sisters across the nation in boycotting chain supermarkets which they say are charging unreasonably high prices. Meanwhile, California's Gov. Edmund G. Brown announced today that he has directed State Consumer's Counsel Helen Ewing Nelson of Mill Valley to investigate the "lottery gimmicks in our stores and trading centers." Health Center Needs $75,000 More Cash

Marin County needs $75,220 to complete financing for the community Mental Health center at Marin General Hospital, County Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell reported yesterday.

Under the Hill-Burton Act, $891,288 will come from federal and state funds. The county, hospital district, and private donors will each put up $150,000. In addition, $33,264 is to be transferred to the project from the hospital library funds, Mitchell said. Still there is a need for $75,220 to fully fund the job.

Architects Kaplan and McLaughlin have estimated construction costs at $1,182,500. A contingency factor of 4 per cent puts the total for construction at $1,229,800. Additional project costs are for fees and furnishing of the building.

County supervisors are to discuss the matter Tuesday.

Boom Explained

The sonic boom which hit Marin County at 1:53 p.m. yesterday was caused by an SR-71, an experimental strategic reconnaissance plane, from Beale Air Force Base, according to officials at Hamilton Air Force Base.

County Park Aid Plan Protested

Mayor Albert E. White of Mill Valley has protested the county contribution of $10,000 to the Gallinas Village Community Services District to provide about a fourth of the cost of a park development in the district.

Supervisors voted for the donation Tuesday. White responded yesterday, asking if county funds would also be available for his city's $500,000 community park project.

He said the board of supervisors should re-examine the action. Supervisors will consider White's suggestion at their meeting next Tuesday.

Resignations Demanded Over Center Vandalism

Vandalism which forced closing of the temporary Marin City recreation center two months ago will be discussed by county supervisors Tuesday.

San Anselmo residents Oliver D. Washburn and Richard M. Leone have written the board protesting the damage and the fact that it was not reported to the sheriff's department by those who knew of it.

"If you are not going to protect the decent, law-abiding citizens of Marin County and remember that we may not be as vocal as the troublemakers but we do pay taxes, surely you should resign your posts," the letter said.

"This is written not in anger but in disgust that there seems to be no one in office in this county who will stand up for the people who are least vocal . . . Is there no one who dares speak out and act forcefully against perpetrators of the vandalism on the community center at Marin City and against those public officials on the county and federal payroll who did not report obvious damage at once to the proper authorities?"

Domestic fowl are the most populous of the world's birds. Starlings and sparrows follow.

Junior High 'Triads' Elect New Officers

"The Triads," a junior high youth group sponsored by the San Rafael Recreation and Park District has elected officers headed by Holly Vernon as president.

Gidget Gragg, is first vice-president; Barry Coates, second vice-president; Sheri Friedman, recording secretary, and Michele Booth, corresponding secretary.

STEREO HI-FI

By C. J. Catania
Audio Engineer

Have you ever given much thought to the entire process that evolves so that the music you are listening to could reach you? Much of this program material began with performers in a recording studio and sometimes with performers live on stage in some night club or theatre. From these live performances, painstaking records and pre-recorded tapes are made. Many of the top records are furnished to radio stations so that they can give you a preview.

Radio stations strive to keep their equipment at top performing standards. FM stations provide the listener with full tonal range as well as dynamics in the music. Some FM stations go even further and provide the listener with a stereo rendition of the musical performance. The responsibility of the radio station ends after the radio waves leave the transmitter. The rest is up to you.

How about your responsibility to your family! Is your home music system worthy of the effort that goes into a performance or do you have a mediocre set? Is your entire family being subjected to LO-FI? Remember, that music is a very important form of enjoyment. It is an extremely powerful relaxant. It can remove anxieties and tension without having to swallow a pill. It can buoy the spirits.

However, unless the music system in your home is a full range truly enjoyable sounding unit, none of the above may apply. In fact, the sound of the set may be depressing. If your family does not listen to the radio and to phonograph records often, it may be because the home set is not worth listening to.

How much does a good quality set cost? Not even pennies a day. A proper music system will be used many hours a day by most members of the family. The one time investment may last from 6 to ten years. Divide this overall investment to a daily or even monthly basis and you might find that the cost is $2.00 to $4.00 per month. Can your family afford to have anything but the best in musical sound?,

A home music system containing FM stereo, good speakers and a stereo phono changer can be started with an investment of $300 to $400. Visit us for a thrilling experience in stereo.

SAN RAFAEL PHOTOGRAPHER Ken Molino sets up his camera along side the Howard Arneson pool in Loch Lomond for some advertising shots. His subjects will be two "beauty contest" champions -- Cheryl Blaney, Miss Marin of 1966, and Pool-Sweep, the design award-winning automatic pool cleaning system manufactured by Arneson's San Rafael plant. Both subjects are in the water and ready for the picture-taking. Arneson looks on from the poolside.

Beauty In The Pool

Two beauty contest winners got together recently in the swimming pool at the Howard Arneson home in San Rafael's Loch Lomond section.

One was Cheryl Blaney, Miss Marin of 1966.

The other—Pool-Sweep, manufactured by Harold Arneson at his Du Bois Street plant in San Rafael.

While Miss Blaney, or Miss Marin, would be the odds-on favorite in any competition for collecting wolf-calls, Pool-Sweep had won a beauty honor of its own—the coveted Bachner Award for outstanding achievement in the industrial application of molded plastics.

DESPITE THE swimming pool setting, the meeting was a business one.

Although she had done some clothing modeling before, Cheryl Blaney's first real professional assignment had come when Ken Molino, San Rafael commercial photographer, had employed her for illustrations promoting an Arneson product, Arn-A-Clor, a device for chlorinating swimming pools automatically.

Now she was lending her pulchritude to the selling an another Arneson pool product.

CHERIE, AS her friends and family call Cheryl, was born in Pittsburgh, Pa. She began

MISS MARIN

dancing at age 3½, made her television debut at 5 and received a Broadway offer in her mid-teens. Good sense and parental doubts, however, kept her at home and in school.

The family moved to Marin five years ago, and she began working toward a new goal—teaching credentials with the French language as her major.

At 18, she is in her second year at College of Marin.

TEACHING, LIKE dancing, has been an integral part of her background. In fact, the two were joined. When only 14, she opened her own dancing school at home. Teaching children 3 through 12 everything from ballet to ballroom steps, she produced recitals with her pupils wearing costumes she designed and made herself.

A born competitor, she loves all sports and plays to win. She was a pom-pon girl in high school. And, in addition to her role as Miss Marin, she was also runner-up in the Junior Miss contest.

Pool-Sweep, the other award-winner, is no match in looks for the beautiful and vivacious Miss Blaney. But still, in a pool, it is an amazing and attractive example of the engineering arts.

NO MERE gadget, it is a system made up of leaf trap, hoses, connections and a plastic floating head with a built-in "brain" that guides the hoses back and forth along the pool's bottom and sides, scouring them clean.

Atop the main unit is a jet stream that skims the surface of the pool and exposed top sides, forcing dirt toward the bottom where it will collect in the trap.

The trap is described as looking "something like a squid peacefully asleep at the bottom of the pool."

WHEN ACTIVATED, Pool-Sweep works its way around a 20-mile course, reversing itself every few minutes.

Available are automatic timers so that it can be started during the night or while the family is away.

Selling for about $400, Pool-Sweep uses pool water itself and costs only pennies a day to operate. Many have found their way into the hands of pool service firms that use them to save the time of their employees. Hotels and motels and other institutional pools are other major customers.

THE FIRST automatic swimming pool cleaner ever made was a crude series of floating bars invented by San Rafael engineer Andrew Panzini. Panzini, attracted by Arneson's product development knowledge (he had patented fishing lures and manufactured in Vallejo a special light for police use), asked the latter to come to San Rafael to work out the bugs in the pool cleaner.

A Southern California pool-maker who had bought the rights to Pool-Sweep from Panzini, after an unsuccessful initial venture into marketing, sold them to Arneson. With the help of precision engineers and plastics manufacturers, the present Pool-Sweep system was perfected.

Today, it can be found in swimming pools from San Rafael to Santiago, from Berkeley to Berlin. Hundreds were sold by Arneson himself to the North Bay swimming pool owners when the manufacturer's faith in the product alone kept his factory on its feet.

WITH AL Wilsey, a fellow Marinite, as financial adviser, the company today is serving pool builders, distributors and dealers around the world.

Arneson, who brought Pool-Sweep into the winners' circle, made quite a name for himself in the sports field personally before settling down to the role of successful industrialist. A former California champion in handicap trapshooting, he is an expert fisherman and has put his own 225-cubic-inch hydroplane speedster up to more than 90 miles an hour in competition.

A resident now of San Rafael, Arneson was born in Benicia parents both natives of that early state capital. At the end of World War II, in which he was an aviation gunnery instructor at Pensacola and Santa Rosa, he opened his own skeet field in Vallejo. He was then 25. This venture, along with his shooting ability, made his name a byword on the sports pages of Bay Area newspapers. There followed his entry into the more prosaic world of manufacturing —first of fishing lures and then the police lights.

TODAY, HIS attention is focused almost entirely on the expanding swimming pool field, where he feels the opportunities for new products are unlimited.

Helping him on the business side of his manufacturing enterprise is the attractive Mrs. Arneson. After hours they live quietly in the Loch Lomond home into which they moved in June.

The objective of making a product as perfect as man and his tools can achieve is his guiding principle, says Arneson. Even the appointments in his home are examples of the finest in the designer's arts. And the new Porsche he drives is one of the most handsomely designed and finest precision-built examples of the auto-maker's craft. The same is true of Arneson's gun collection.

An inveterate experimenter with an impish smile that belies the concentrated thinking going on inside his head, Arneson will show you a new gadget or piece of equipment to try your reaction to what he has in mind. And though you may have no idea what it is, you can be reasonably sure ultimately it will be something to help the swimming pool owner get more enjoyment out of his investment in his pool.

This is Arneson's accepted mission at the present time: To make it easier to keep pools spotlessly clean, their water sparkling and healthfully pure, their owners free to enjoy more swimming.

Arneson tells this message in the advertisements prepared for him by Kane Art Advertising, San Francisco, which is operated by Marinites Frank Kane and Ramsey Oppenheim.

And in doing so, he has had the help of Cheryl Blaney.

"Why Did My Husband's Trouser Waist Band Stretch?"

The stretch-type waist band trousers are more and more popular. For that reason more and more complaints are being received about enlarged waist bands.

These stretch-type waist bands are generally produced by wrapping a rubber core with cotton. During wear the cotton wrapping constantly chafes the rubber, weakening it. In dry cleaning the weakened rubber breaks and the waist of the trousers would fit a hippo. Unfortunately there is nothing that can be done to restore the broken rubber core.

The fault is in the manufacture and the offending trousers should be returned to the store where they were purchased.

Gardening The Natural Way

Marinites Are Exponents Of Organic Tenets

By HELEN ROSSI

The flowers, vegetables and fruits that flourish in such profusion in the Larkspur garden of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Giggy are a visual tribute not only to the industry and dedication of the Giggys, but also to the principles of organic gardening.

For the Giggys are ardent exponents of non-chemical gardening.

Organic gardening is a comparatively new term for a very old method of gardening. Its followers rely entirely on natural, or organic, sources for fertilizing and soil management. Chemical fertilizers and insecticides are banned.

IT WAS A near failure with sweetpeas that first sparked Mrs. Giggy's interest in soil improvement with natural material when the addition of bonemeal helped to produce superior plants and flowers. A chance pamphlet on the subject, received in the mail about the same time, did the rest.

Some of the soil additives used are familiar to most of us —manure, bloodmeal, bonemeal. However, the serious gardener soon learns about others, such as oyster shell flour (an excellent source of calcium), alfalfa meal and feather meal.

The latter, made from poultry feathers, is a valuable fertilizer containing as much as 15 per cent nitrogen. In processing, the feathers are steamed, dried and then ground.

KELP IS A more expensive product, but is a wonderful

MR. AND MRS. Charles Giggy pose proudly on the patio of their Larkspur home with some of the organically-grown produce they have harvested from their garden. They also grow flowers and fruit non-chemically. Mrs. Giggy will lecture on and demonstrate organic gardening at the Garden Society of Marin's Fall Flower Festival next weekend, Saturday and Sunday, at the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross.

THE TILTH of the soil is vital to the production of the kind of crops he and his wife reap from their garden, says Charles Giggy. Here he shows you some of the rich dirt, readied organically as a bed for winter garlic. Rice hulls have served as the mulch. Fertilizers, too, will be natural.

source of all required materials.

The search for some of these less common products is sometimes a challenge in itself, and has led to many an interesting "field trip" to nurseries and feed stores for the Giggys.

This is not for the lazy man.

When the Giggys bought their home six years ago, the soil was adobe type. The beautiful tilth of their present ground is evidence of constant and generous applications of manure, sand and various mulches, dug in to a depth of two to three feet. Over the years they have used hay and wood chips as mulch, but they now prefer rice hulls. The good texture of the soil encourages earthworms, which improve aeration.

ONE OF THE few concessions they make to size and city limitations is in not maintaining a compost pile.

As Mrs. Giggy puts it, "We eat off the ground."

The variety and quantity of vegetables grown on their 60-by-90-foot lot is impressive. Potatoes, squash and the like keep well for the winter months, and with the excess harvests of their other vegetables being canned or frozen, they have enough for their needs practically the year around.

MOST OF THE vegetable beds are cleared in November, spaded up and left idle until spring planting time. All of the vegetables are started from seed, purchased fresh each year.

One of the more unusual plants in the garden is comfrey, a hardy perennial herb. Mrs. Giggy dries the leaves and uses them to brew a delicious tea which is rich in magnesium and mineral nutrients. Old leaves used as a mulch around other plants release potash very quickly.

A native of Asia, this plant does very well in the United States, and is a farm crop of relatively recent importance.

Indicative of the bumper yields they reap from their organic garden is the 26 quarts of fruit which Mrs. Giggy canned from one dwarf peach tree.

Furthermore, the Giggys claim, the fruits and vegetables grown according to organic principles are superior in flavor, color and nutrition.

PESTS HAVE been practically no problem, even though no insecticides are used. Scrupulous clean-up of the ground between plants all but eliminates snails; what few appear are destroyed by hand.

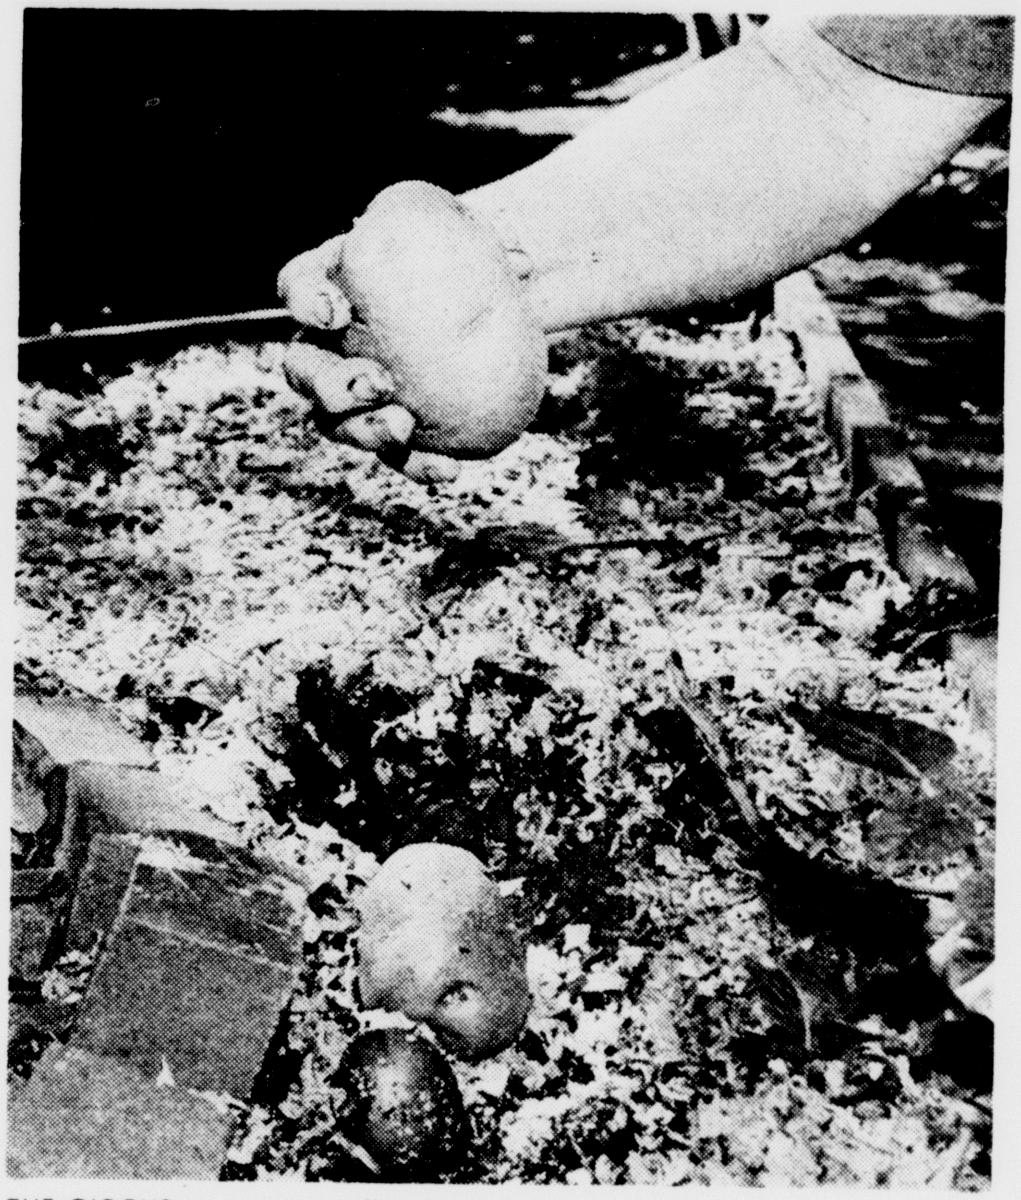

Flowers are intermingled with the vegetables according to the cultural requirements of each.

Among the natural outgrowths of their gardening are interests in flower arranging and nutrition, and both of the Giggys

SOME CHOICE tomatoes she has picked from a particularly productive plant in the organic garden in Larkspur are displayed by Mrs. Charles Giggy. The Giggys claim the organically-grown vegetables have superior flavor and nutritive value as well as size.

THE GIGGYS require no cellar for the storage of their organically-grown potatoes. Instead, the vegetables are placed in a bed around the base of an apple tree and left outdoors throughout the winter with Mother Nature supplying the refrigeration.

have become as enthusiastic and proficient at these as at their other hobby. They won many ribbons at the Marin County Art and Garden Fair in July for their entries in fruit, vegetable, cut flower, plant, and flower arranging categories. More recently they were both judged winners for arrangements entered in the San Francisco Flower Show.

NOW THEY are busy with preparations for the Fall Flower Festival to be presented by Garden Society of Marin at Marin Art and Garden Center next weekend on Saturday and Sunday. In addition to their entries in the competition, they are potting up many plants to be offered for sale at the show, and are in charge of the refreshment stand which will also feature some of their organically grown produce.

Mrs. Giggy will present a lecture and demonstration of organic gardening on both days of the flower show.

Interest in organic gardening is growing, the Giggys say, and they have frequent inquiries about it. At this time the Sonoma County Organic Club is the closest organized group, but Mr. and Mrs. Giggy have hopes they will witness the formation of a Marin County group in the future.

A PROLONGED STORM that buffeted Marin County for a week in the winter of 1955 demonstrated the havoc that the elements can play with property — and especially with utility lines. Pacific Gas and Electric Co. repairmen went into around-the-clock operations in their battle to restore service in areas in which winds, rains and flooding had disrupted power transmission.

When It's Man Against The Weather

By RICHARD LYTTLE

"The lights just went out. Can you do something?"

This urgent call and others like it will soon be heard again at the Pacific Gas and Electric Co.'s switchboard in San Rafael.

The season of storms with slides and high winds is once more upon us. Limbs are bound to fall, breaking or shorting out power lines, winds are certain to swing lines together, cutting power, and slides and floods are a probability.

The men and women of PG&E have been campaigning against Old Man Winter for so long that their operation has turned into a highly organized battle. It requires a force of 110.

THE WORRIED homeowner who finds himself suddenly without lights probably is not aware that his call has been expected. Emergency crews have been put on the job well before trouble starts, according to Leonard O. Robertson, district superintendent of the electrical department for the utility.

First alert for the Marin office comes from PG&E's central information clearing office in San Francisco. This office, known as "Power Control," gathers forecast information and alerts Northern California stations as a storm approaches.

Power Control can usually report the strength of winds to expect and the direction from which the winds will blow.

"DIRECTION IS important," Robertson says.

A southern blow will do most damage in the Sausalito and Mill Valley sections. A southwest wind will first hit the coast and then strike with greatest force in the Fairfax, San Anselmo and San Rafael areas.

Soon after being warned of a storm, mobilization for battle begins. Maintenance crews are tolled off into two-man "trouble men units" and into three to four men "Fabco line truck units."

There are 14 trouble men crews and 10 Fabco units. The latter name is taken from the firm that builds the special heavy duty utility truck bodies for PG&E. These have the hydraulic lift arms, making it unnecessary for men to "spike up" poles accessible to vehicles.

AT THE SAME time the field crews are being set up, an emergency office staff is organized. It takes 10 to handle all lines at the PG&E's switchboard in the office at Brooks and Third streets in San Rafael.

The telephone operation is one of the key facilities in the fight to restore service as quickly as possible, Robertson said. The

In addition to name, address and phone number of the caller, operators ask how long the power has been out, what time it went out, if wires are down between the house and the nearest pole or between poles, if the neighbors' lights are also off, and if the homeowner has observed anything that might have caused the failure.

ALL INFORMATION collected is written on a yellow "service tag." The tags go upon a filter board at the main office, pegged according to location. Two clerks operate the filter board, making sure the information is properly relayed as it comes in.

"This gives us a good idea of the extent of the trouble and where most of it is happening."

The Men Who Fight The Storms To Keep The Current Flowing

PG&E Crews Stand Ready For Nature's Onslaughts

FIRST ON the scene and up the pole is Lewis Wehrer, electrical trouble man for Pacific Gas and Electric Co. He'll cut away a dangerous wire so that other repair men to come later can work more freely and more safely. The scene is Lagunitas Road.

Robertson said.

The information from the call is radioed to the closest trouble men unit.

"Often, the more detailed report we get from the customer, the quicker we can locate the trouble and restore service," Robertson said.

HE EMPHASIZED that customers who have lost service should report it at once and not rely on their neighbors to make the call. He also urged customers not to be discouraged by a busy signal.

"Keep trying," he said. "The lines are often all in use when there is a large outage, but we need all the information we can get."

Because of Marin's hilly terrain and storm conditions, there are some areas that cannot be reached by radio. When needed, radio relay cars are placed atop Mount Vision in West Marin and on Dollar Mountain north of downtown San Rafael.

WHAT ARE THE common sources of trouble?

First, the service lines leading from the pole to the customer's house can go out, usually caused by a falling limb. Then a short circuit or break can knock out the transformer fuse.

Each transformer serves about 10 homes in the average neighborhood.

WHEN MAIN lines break, 2,000 to 3,000 persons can be without electrical service.

Crews first try to determine what caused the fuse to go out. This can vary from a wind lashing lines together to a break in the line.

Circuit breakers for high voltage lines are designed to test the line three times within the first 20 seconds of grounding. If the line remains grounded, the power is automatically cut.

Robertson warned that there is a chance this safety device might not always work. People should always stay clear of fallen lines, he said.

IF THE DAMAGE to lines will take considerable time to repair, one of the first chores of the trouble men units is to find ways to re-route power around the break, restoring service to as many homes as possible.

When damage is extensive, the Fabco line units are sent in. Toughest repair problems for PG&E in Marin have been caused by slides.

Robertson recalled that in the winter of 1955, the first year he arrived in Marin, slides were one of the worst problems. A damaging storm lasted for a full week and there were a few customers in the county without power throughout that time, Robertson said.

IN THE NORMAL storms, the damage usually occurs in the first hour, Robertson said. This does not put too serious a strain on the emergency crews.

For major storms, however, the crews have to be put on 18 hour shifts, with men and women getting six hour breaks during every 24 hours worked.

The 1955 storm did about $150,000 damage to PG&E equipment, not to mention the funds spent on overtime and repairs.

Would all this be solved with underground lines?

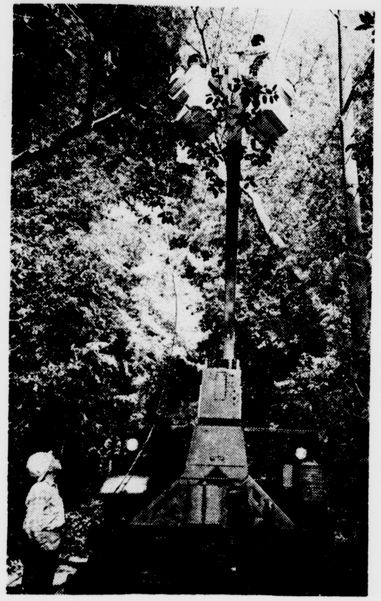

ROBERTSON IS not so sure. He said that a recent outage in an underground line in the Kent Woodlands area was particularly troublesome because no one could fix the location of the trouble. Making the repair consumed days where it would have been a matter of hours with an overhead line.

"They tell us what we need is something that would locate the trouble in these lines," Robertson said.

After storm damage has been repaired, the operators at the main office begin a "call back" operation. Usually everyone who has reported an outage receives a call to make sure they are once again with power.

"This is important," Robertson said, "because we might have fixed one break in a system, but not found another affecting homes within the same area."

It is also good public relations, he added.

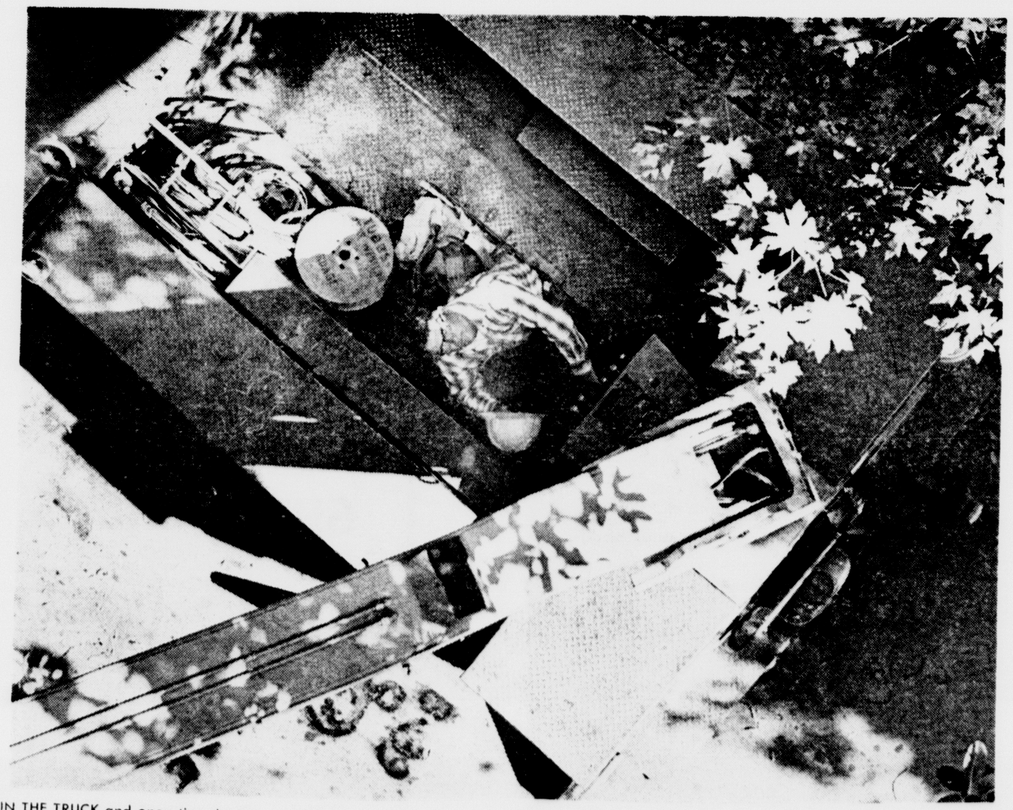

RIDING THE bucket of the PG&E lift truck are foreman William Wilson, right, and lineman Robert Leach who will make the repairs. On the ground and watching their progress is Al Artillan, the crew's truck driver.

FROM THE LIFT truck buckets, Robert Leach and William Wilson proceed with the necessary repairs to a Pacific Gas and Electric Co. high voltage line. Too often, the PG&E men find themselves working under less favorable weather conditions than was the case here.

IT IS WOODED AREAS such as this section along Lagunitas Road that most often require the attention of the crews of the Pacific Gas and Electric Co. trouble units. Falling limbs are a frequent source of difficulty.

IN THE TRUCK and operating the Pittman lift controls that raise and maneuver the buckets from which the PG&E repair men work is William Wilson, the crew foreman. You have a "bird's eye" view of the truck and its occupant, as Independent-Journal photographer Jim Kean went up in one of the buckets to shoot this photograph.

MARIN POETS' CORNER

MOONLIGHT ON BROWN HILLS

The skies are clear on most October nights,
The land is waiting for its white cov'ring.
When there is moonlight on the dark brown hills,
One can feel peace that comes with the year's end.

On a calm night the sky blazes with stars,
Light of the moon bathes fields and upland hills.
Tall trees are graceful above a gray land.
The moon, queen of the ev'ning sky, now reigns.

The still peace broods over the moon-lit scene,
Gold shafts of light slant out from farm-house panes,
And cars travel through the dark of the night,
Like twin stars following an earth-bound path.

A silver moon gleams among the bright stars,
Its shining light reveals fences and barns,
Winter ahead; snow and sleet then will come,
But moonlight, now, on dark brown hills still shines.

On The Stereo Scene

By JOHN SUNIER

DVORAK: Concerto in A Minor for Violin and Orchestra; Romance Op. 11—Isaac Stern/Philadelphia Orchestra/Eugene Ormandy — Columbia Stereo MS 6876:

This gorgeous concerto has received almost as much attention from the record companies as the better-known cello concerto. And it fully deserves it, especially in such a rich and warm performance as Stern's, bouyed up on the shimmering strings of the Philadelphians. There are many similarities with the concerto for the larger string instrument. The Romance provides a simple and subtle encore. Good stereo.

COPLAND: Music for a Great City; Statements—The composer cond. The London Symphony Orchestra — CBS Stereo 32 11 0002:

This is the first "CBS" release I have seen. Perhaps Columbia is starting a new sublabel especially for music recorded outside of the U.S.

Nevertheless, a fine LP which presents the most recent Copland motion picture score in its first time on records. The Great City is New York and the movie, "Something Wild," took place there, naturally. The four movements of the suite evoke the city's skyline, the subways, bridges, and so on. Very imposing on its own, as are all of Copland's infrequent film music efforts. The six-part Statements was composed in 1935 and this performance definitely bests the other stereo version available.

LEONARD BERNSTEIN: Age of Anxiety (Sym. No. 2 for Piano and Orchestra)—Philippe Entremont/New York Philharmonic/composer cond. — Columbia Stereo MS 6885:

First stereo recording of Bernstein's 1949 work, which he has recently revised, mainly in the final of the six movements. Based on W. H. Auden's poem, the work is extremely theatrical and has a detailed scenario about four lonely characters' night out in New York—a typical Bernstein type of story. It seems to this writer it would be better on the stage—our local Contemporary Dancers could do it—but for a straight symphonic work, the programmatic notes seem a bit too much. The music is full of surprises including atonalism, romantic lyricism, and jazz. Entremont skillfully rips off the sizable piano part.

MAHLER: Symphony No. 7—New York Philharmonic / Leonard Bernstein—Columbia Stereo M2S 739:

With the fine new Mahler Sixth on RCA Victor, this completes the presentation, on various labels, of all the Mahler symphonies in the stereo sound which they have cried out for. Scherchen's old Westminster mono version of the Seventh was nearly perfect, but what an added improvement is Columbia's stereo to the magical mood of Mahler's 1905 instrumental opus!

Often called the "Symphony of the Night," the Seventh is distinguished by two "Nachtmusik" movements coming fore and aft of the grotesque and sinister middle Scherzo. The combination of harp, guitar and mandolin paint an extraordinary musical fabric in these movements.

While Bernstein's Finale does not equal Scherchen's in sheer weight and volume, it delineates the many themes more clearly and sums up the long work with superior balance. Watch for Bernstein's complete Mahler Eighth soon, taped recently in London. The two massive works should make a fine pair.

NIELSEN: Symphony No. 6 "Sinfonia Semplice;" Overture and Prelude to Act 2 of "Masquerade"—Philadelphia Orchestra/Eugene Ormandy—Columbia Stereo MS 6882:

First stereo recording of this far from "simple" symphony. Last year was the 100th anniversary of the birth of Denmark's most famous composer, and this event started much action anent the composer's music by U.S. record companies. On the heels of Bernstein's smashing Nielsen No. 5 comes this winner, again from Columbia. The least simple and most avant-garde of the four movements of this 1924-25 work is the middle "Humoreske." It reflects the experimentation in music of that period by featuring a variety of small percussion instruments in a nearly atonal musical argument that could be mistaken for a recent composition by Stockhausen.

However, the finale movement brings back more conservative writing, based on a variation form. "Masquerade" is practically the Dane's national opera, and abounds in lighthearted melody and mood. Fine engineering.

COLLEGE OF MARIN drama students are currently performing in "The Lark" in Harlan Hall on the college's Kentfield campus, with a cast that includes, left to right, David Dukes, of San Anselmo as Warwick, David McCauley of San Geronimo as Captain La Hire, and Jill Cogswell of Mill Valley as Joan of Arc. There will be performances tonight, tomorrow, and next Wednesday through Saturday, at 8:30 p.m.

Outdoor Writer Frank Dufresne Made His Last Book A Fine One

Reviews Of New Reading

MY WAY WAS NORTH by Frank Dufresne, Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 274 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Richard Lyttle.

There is no happier circumstance than a man who loves his work.

Frank Dufresne was one of those men and his work led him into the barren snows of Alaska among its mountains and streams, gathering information that would form the foundation for the territory's first game laws.

Later, Dufresne became director of the Alaska Game Commission, a job he administered on the theory that you could not exclude people and their needs in writing and enforcing laws.

It was Dufresne's deep understanding of people that made him a fine writer. In his earlier book, "No Room for Bears," he gave a fine account of the threat to grizzlies on Admiralty Island and included many fine and exciting bear stories. The character of both bear and man were finely drawn.

In "My Way Was North" Dufresne gives us autobiography at its best. You do not have to be an outdoorsman to find interest here. The book should be widely read.

The only fault with it is that it is Dufresne's last. He died last spring soon after completing this fine book.

DRAWINGS BY Rachel S. Horne illustrate the autobiographical book, "My Way Was North," by the late Frank Dufresne. Holt, Rinehart and Winston Inc. is the publisher.

O'Connor Shows New Politician

ALL IN THE FAMILY by Edwin O'Connor, Atlantic-Little, Brown, 434 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Frank Farrara.

O'Connor, who wrote a stirring portrayal of the fading old-time politician in his best selling "The Last Hurrah," returns to the political scene with a sweeping story of the new breed of politician.

Since he has chosen to tell his tale through the adventures of a rich, Boston Irish family, headed by a tough, tyrannical father, there are bound to be comparisons with the Kennedy family.

This is unfortunate because if the reader is mouse-trapped into trying to figure which character might be based on which Kennedy, he may miss a few threads of the plot or a philosophical viewpoint along the way.

O'Connor shows how a rich, powerful, determined, strong and smart family, the Kinsella family, can get one of its members elected to public office, in this case a governorship.

The operation is in direct contrast to the old-style political chicanery exemplified by Frank Skeffington in O'Connor's earlier novel of Irish politics in Massachusetts.

In this story, Jack Kinsella, who once served as secretary to Skeffington, is the narrator, thereby providing a link between the two eras.

As a cousin of the Kinsella boys and nephew of Jimmy Kinsella, the tycoon, Jack presents what might be entitled "An Inside Look at the Kinsellas."

When Charles Kinsella is boosted into the governorship, the family goal is achieved, but ironically, in the process, the family unity is shattered.

The disintegration of family solidarity in the midst of political triumph provides the dramatic impact. In the center of it all, is the most compelling character, the father who wanted the family to stick together.

Poultry: Rival Of The Steak

SUNSET COOK BOOK OF CHICKEN & TURKEY by editors of Sunset Magazine, Lane, 96 pages, softcover, $1.95. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

The United States is pretty well accepted as a steak-eating country.

But if beef has a rival at the dinner table, then it is poultry. And particularly during the holiday season do the turkey and the chicken challenge beef for priority at the festive table.

Sunset's qualified staffers cover the poultry field from buying through preparing and cooking to carving and serving in this book. They offer recipes that enable the housewife to serve something besides the standard roast turkey or fried chicken. And they go beyond those two fine birds to take up other winged delicacies including duck, goose, quail, dove, pheasant, game hens, grouse, etc.

Like all Sunset publications, it is a well-planned, attractively-illustrated book. But more important, the recipes seem to be unusual and exciting while remaining well within the bounds of practicality.

This should be another Sunset cook book success.

A Spy Thriller

TREE FROG, by Martin Woodhouse, Coward-McCann, 252 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Barbara Hosmer.

Computer expert and pilot with degrees in medicine and experimental psychology, the author uses his background to advantage in this novel of a scientist caught in the cause of British Intelligence's project Tree Frog.

Actually an experimental drone, Tree Frog is purported to be a pilotless improvement on the American U-2 spy plane, or so research scientist Giles Yeoman is led to believe before he becomes a pawn to the mysterious workings of intelligence.

A tightly paced adventure in the spy-thriller vein, Tree Frog and its believable characters hold the suspense to the last pages.

The Paradox Of A Proud People

THE DECLINE OF THE CALIFORNIOS by Leonard Pitt, University of California Press, 296 pages, $7.95. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

The Spanish padres of 18th Century Alta California and the ranchers who followed them are romanticized and glamorized in California schools, press, and public pageantry; the "Mexican" migrant laborer or ghetto dweller who inherited the shreds of their plundered culture is looked down upon or ignored.

Leonard Pitt, assistant professor of history at San Fernando State College, addresses himself to this paradox in "The Decline of the Californios."

Drawing heavily on the contemporary accounts collected by Hubert Howe Bancroft and preserved in the Bancroft Library, he traces the downfall of the people who turned California over to the United States with redolent oratory and high hopes, after only token resistance. Yet even with the mass of historical evidence, he is unable to explain why the eclipse of Mexican-Spanish culture was so complete.

Pitts' book helps to fill a void in the social history of California from the Gold Rush to the present. If it leaves many questions unanswered, it provides abundant clues to the answers.

Among the many quotations is one particularly applicable today. It is from Josiah Royce's "California From the Conquest of 1846 to the Second Vigilance Committee in San Francisco."

Reflecting on the conquest of California, Royce expressed the wish that "when our nation is another time about to serve the devil, it will do so more with frankness, and will deceive itself less by half-unconscious cant."

The Downfall Of The Highlander

GLENCOE: The Story of the Massacre by John Prebble, Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 336 pages, $6. Reviewed by Larry Kramer Jr.

The Massacre at Glencoe in Scotland took place in 1692 during the reign of William of Orange, who four years earlier deposed the Stuart king, James II of England and James VII of Scotland.

On Feb. 13, 1692, soldiers of the king, under the command of a Campbell laird, slaughtered 36 men, women and children of the Clan Donald upon whom they were quartered.

Because Campbells and Donalds had robbed and murdered each other for generations, Prebble feels that the massacre has too often been passed off as an incident in a clan feud. To him, such an interpretation is a ridiculous oversimplification.

Glencoe, in his eyes, is the beginning of the end of the Highlanders' way of life. It establishes the ascendancy of the Lowlanders and the alien English over the Highland chieftains.

This is really the first work in a trilogy, of which the later histories have already been written. In "Culloden" and "The Highland Clearances" Prebble describes the completion of the process of destruction begun at Glencoe.

With considerable distaste, Prebble acidly comments that Sir Walter Scott (and others who have romanticized about Scotland) ". . . created a Highlander who was an amalgam of Knight Templar and Paladin." Prebble is not guilty of that. He identifies with the men of the Highlands and their individualistic, tribal way of life. He sorrows over their enforced dispersion, but he sees clearly the chaotic nature of their bloody, thieving, feudal existence which had outlived its time.

The Highlander played much the same historical role as the American Indian. Both tried to carry the ways of the past into the future. Both were opposed by a way of life wanting and needing greater stability. In both cases the farmer came to have the power to enforce his will on the warrior and hunter.

There is a great deal of historical detail in "Glencoe." It is the product of research that is at once meticulous and a labor of love. It is greatly to Prebble's credit as a writer that much of the book sings with feeling at the same time that it minutely catalogs the paths to treachery.

The Fight For The Republic From The Irish Point Of View

By DON KEOWN

CRY BLOOD CRY ERIN by Redmond Fitzgerald, Clarkson N. Potter Inc., 176 pages, $7.50.

HOW MUCH CAN YOU HOLD? by Leon D. Adams, The Tides, 47 pages, paperbound, $1.

THE AWFUL HANDYMAN'S BOOK by George Daniels, Harper & Row, 179 pages, $4.95.

Redmond Fitzgerald's "Cry Blood Cry Erin" is a rare kind of history.

Intensely personal and unabashedly subjective, it is the story of the long fight for Irish independence and the republic — told in an Irish manner from a strictly Irish point-of-view.

Perhaps the Irishman's only rival in pride of his native soil is the American Texan. But, somehow, the Irishman, with all his garrulity and prejudices, is less offensive than the professional Texan. While the latter brags, the former simply exercises the right of blarney that the world has long accorded the Irish as their special privilege.

Anyway, Fitzgerald writes in a freewheeling and often lyrical style that has long been associated with Irish writers, be they poets, playwrights, novelists or biographers and historians. There is a fine irreverence and a keen satiric wit. Sometimes there is humor, but, more often, because the subject is one of bloodletting, sorrow and suffering, there is biting scorn and burning anger.

As might be expected, the British and their Northern Ireland allies fare roughly in Fitzgerald's hands. Their atrocities are recorded in detail with due horror, rage and distress. IRA and republican retaliation is regarded as the bitter but necessary fruit of war.

But the reader is always aware that he is receiving a republican view as he reads of the resistance to British domination that grew and culminated bloodily in the 1916 uprising. It is not just a salty and entertaining account, but an informative one as well. The reader not only follows the ebb and flow of the vicious guerrilla warfare pitting Irish against English and Irish against Irish, but he also gains an insight into the kind of men and women who persisted in an uphill battle that eventually won them freedom from the British yoke, a victory tempered by the bitter pill of partition.

Read the book not for an unbiased summarization of that long struggle, but, instead, for the feeling it transmits of the spirit of a proud and dauntless people with whom many Americans feel strong ethnic, spiritual, cultural and philosophic ties.

It is a large book, but the text is briefer then its size would indicate. The type is large, the margins wide, and the illustrations many — and interesting.

THE TIDES in Sausalito has taken a modest but promising plunge into book publishing with the appearance of the booklet "How Much Can You Hold?," written by Leon D. Adams, the Mill Valley researcher and authority on wines and other drink.

Subtitled "The Thinking Driver's Bible," the small book has as its primary purpose the setting forth of some general guidelines to assist the imbiber in fixing his capacity on a blood-alcohol percentage basis.

Subjects such as the relative potency of various liquors, laws concerning drinking, tests for intoxication, precautions and cures for hangovers, alcohol myths, etc., are discussed.

California's new "implied consent" law comes in for special attention.

In a brief foreword, Dr. Joel Fort says: "Everyone using any alcoholic beverage needs the facts and advice supplied in this guide. Drivers (and passengers) need it most . . . Leon Adams . . . has done all of us a vital service in writing this authoritative booklet."

But telling men how much they can safely or wisely drink is no exact science, Adams acknowledges. He closes his booklet with this note: "Assurance cannot be given that an individual will respond normally at all times to alcoholic beverages. No statement in this book shall be construed as assuring him that he is safe using such beverages."

The Tides feels that it has a publication that will find a large audience. It is to be hoped that those readers will take due notice of Adams' closing admonition.

AT LAST, it seems, there is a do-it-yourself manual for the unhandy handyman.

"The Awful Handyman's Book" by George Daniels is pitched truly at the beginner's level. It presumes no experience and no native ability, but accepts the reader as a complete and incompetent novice with the hammer, the saw and the wrench. Which is a presumption that fits this reader exactly.

After some basic discussion of tools, their selection, their use and care, it takes up such relatively simple jobs around the house as fixing a leaky faucet, hanging a picture, unsticking a sticky door, replacing a switch, removing carpet stains and mounting shelves. There's also a chapter on car maintenance.

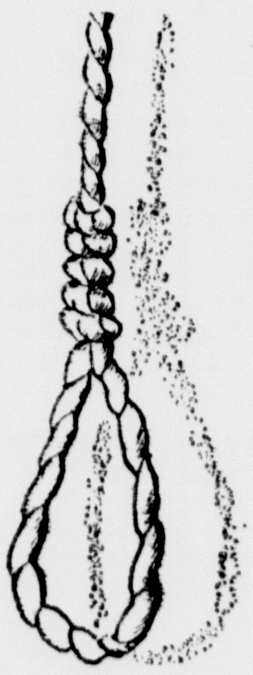

The chores covered are not complicated and are limited in number. But they are the kind of things that add up fast if you have to call a service man every time a problem arises.

With the help of this primer-level guide, there is hope for even us fumblefingers when the washing machine overflows or the wallpaper begins to peel.

THE NOVEL, "The Mask of Apollo" by Mary Renault, is the November Book-of-the-Month Club selection.

Sleuths & Suspense

THE MORNING AFTER DEATH, by Nicholas Blake, Harper & Row,, 212 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Donald G. Davis.

British literary researcher Nigel Strangeways arrives in New England for a short period of work at Cabot University and renews his friendship with Zeke Edwardes, one of the university masters.

And then instead of having a really quiet time with the books Strangeways becomes involved with the Ahlberg brothers. There's Josiah, professor of classics who is shot to death in his office. And there are Mark, an English professor, and Chester of the business school. Their father contributes heavily to the university.

Strangeways also meets Sukie who was Chester's girlfriend and is now Mark's. All of them, and even Zeke Edwardes and his wife, May, could have killed Josiah. And for that matter so could have Sukie's brother, who had had a literary row with the professor. Who fired the gun? Sukie confesses. But did she do it? Could she have carried the heavy body to the basement?

Strangeways tries to stay out of it and let the police handle the matter. But he starts theorizing, finds himself in a blind alley and must start over.

And then there it is with a perfectly chilling ending. Blake's story is one of perfection, beautifully written.

Many New Facilities Await Winter Sports Enthusiasts

Norway, birthplace of skiing, is making a stronger bid for international winter sports enthusiasts this year with new facilities and expanded entertainment programs at numerous resorts, particularly at Voss and Geilo, two famous mountain villages on the Oslo-Bergen railroad.

Among the new attractions for the coming skiing season, which in Norway runs from Christmas to April, are two new ski centers in Oslo — at Ingierkollen and Frognerseter — new ski-lifts at Pagernes and Gol, new top-grade hotels at Beitostol and Fagernes, and a new indoor swimming pool at Lillehammer.

GEILO WILL introduce a novel scheme for family vacations — six new "winge cabins," each of which is equipped to accommodate six persons in luxurious comfort.

Voss, near Bergen, is new on the map as an important ski center for American and Canadian skiers.

The "Snow Ball" tours to Voss made such a hit last winter that Voss is now "in" for American and Canadian ski fans, particularly. It can be reached by electric train 90 minutes out of Bergen.

Climax of the Norwegian skiing season is always the famous Holmenkoll Week in Oslo in March.

A RIVAL EVENT this winter will be the International Ski Flying Week at Vikersund in March when the world elite of ski jumpers will try to beat last year's world record flight of 481 feet by Bjorn Wirkola of Norway.

An attractive color folder on skiing in Norway can be obtained from the Scandinavian National Travel Offices at Scandinavian House, 505 Fifth Avenue, New York, N.Y., 10017, or at 612 South Flower Street, Los Angeles, Calif., 90017.

Muscles Ache After Jet Trip? That's Boredom—Not Fatigue

By MURRAY J. BROWN

HONOLULU (UPI) — The passenger has only himself to blame in these days of near-supersonic jet plane travel if he arrives at his destination feeling beat.

So maintains Paul Kendall, Pan American World Airways' mid-Pacific public relations manager. And he should know — he logs thousands of miles each year from his headquarters in Hawaii.

WE FLEW HERE from Hong Kong with Kendall — about a seven-hour flight including a stopover in Tokyo — and overheard one of the disembarking passengers say something about being exhausted.

"Exhausted?" Kendall commented. "Nonsense! He's probably bored and his muscles are protesting from immobility."

Well, how does the passenger combat boredom and fatigue on long flights, we asked. Kendall's a big fellow — over six feet tall and about 200 pounds.

HERE ARE 10 tips from Kendall based on his own experience:

1. Change the position of your seat back occasionally. Place the pillow where the seat and seatback meet, not in back of your head. This will shift your weight and muscle tensions. But remember, there's probably someone sitting behind you. Look before you shift.

2. Bring a book of crossword puzzles, a deck of cards, a folding cribbage board or some other easily portable game. Your seat companion, whether traveling with you or not, usually will be happy to join you in a game of skill or wits. It will help make time fly.

3. Drop a card or pencil occasionally. After you've crouched, peered and fumbled under your seat a couple of times, you'll feel much better — you have unwittingly flexed your muscles.

4. Take your shoes off — it is perfectly proper in flight — and wiggle your toes. If your feet are inclined to get cold, carry a pair of travel slippers in your flight bag and slip them on.

5. Try to sleep. Bring a sleep mask with you. When you feel drowsy, adjust your seat belt as snug as you can and still be comfortable, cover up with a blanket and put the lights out by slipping on the mask.

6. Read. Pan Am provides a variety of magazines on all flights or bring the book you've been wanting to read but have not found the time or chance to.

7. Write postcards — lots of them. Pan Am stewardesses will give them to you and mail them (free), postmarked from the city you are visiting.

8. Catch up on your work if traveling on business. Take advantage of the absence of telephones and other disturbing factors and make up that long overdue expense account, speech or report.

9. Take walks. Before or after you eat, stroll to the end of the plane, rinse your hands, wash your face, comb your hair. You will be using those muscles again.

10. Bring along a sweater in your flight bag, preferably a button-up type with long sleeves. You will be more comfortable than in your jacket and warmer than in shirt sleeves or blouse.

Kendall had a final word of advice: "Relax and enjoy the miracle of jet plane travel."

Make Perennial Bed Your Autumn Project

Contrary to some widely-held beliefs, fall is not the time to stop gardening. Rather, it is often an excellent time to start new projects. One such is a perennial bed.

It is an excellent time to dig up, separate and replant overcrowded perennials. Further, it is an ideal time to discard old, tired and outmoded sorts and replace them with good, new varieties as well as to arrange completely new plantings.

WHILE ALMOST any kind can be set out with safety at this season, it is the very best time of all to plant the spring-blooming sorts such as golden alyssum, hardy candytuft, creeping phlox, bleeding-heart, peonies, delphiniums and a host of others, especially if they can have a few weeks before the ground freezes. In this way they have time to become thoroughly established before blooming time comes around again.

In any case, see that the soil is well prepared, thoroughly broken up and sufficient nutrients and humus incorporated into it.

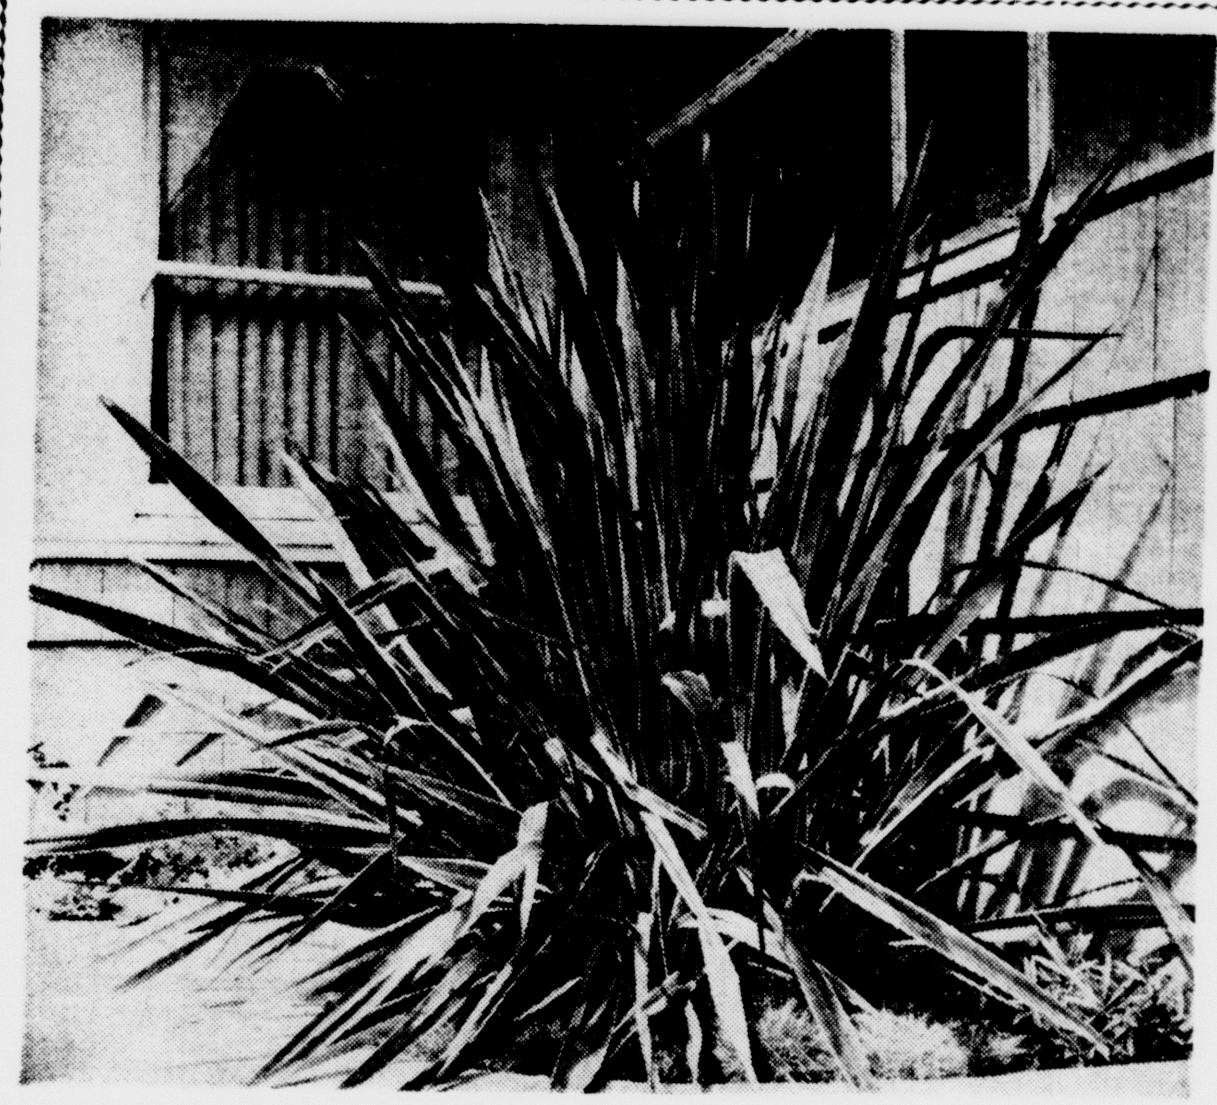

WHILE THERE are no rules about how much of each to add to a soil — it depends entirely upon the composition of each soil — many gardeners feel that at least a 2-inch layer of compost or other humus and 5 pounds of a good vegetable garden fertilizer per 100 square feet must be mixed in to be of any worth. If the soil is known to be definitely acid, 3 or more pounds of ground limestone per 100 square feet is also a help.

HOWEVER, THE wisest policy is to have the soil tested first by your state experiment station or county agent or to test it yourself with a home soil test kit. Only then can you know exactly what the soil needs, if anything.

Also, if the bed is a new one in a previously unused location, as in a new development, it is well to make sure that the desirable soil is sufficiently deep.

FOR BEST results the soil of a permanent planting like a perennial bed or border should be at least 10 inches, and preferably 12 to 14 inches deep. If it is less, shovel off the top layer of good soil into a pile. Then fertilize and incorporate humus into the soil beneath to the proper depth and return the top soil, also suitably enriched.

After planting, water your perennials well as often as necessary. If alternate freezing and thawing heaves the soil up and down, mulch with hay, straw, corn cobs, buckwheat or pecan hulls or any other materials that will not soak up water and become soggy. This will keep the soil unfrozen longer and when it does freeze it will tend to keep it frozen. In any case, when the ground is frozen hard mulch as indicated above, if you haven't done it before.

NEW ZEALAND FLAX provides the gardener with an outstanding accent plant to be used not only in the garden, but in tubs on the deck and patio. It is available in two forms in nurseries, one of which is bronze to purple in color. An easy plant to grow, it will reach several feet in height — and in width as the clump fills out. (Photo courtesy of California Assn of Nurserymen)

Vegetables, Flowers Can Share Beds

There is really no good reason why flowers should be grown in one bed and vegetables in rows nearby. The vegetables will taste just as delicious and the garden may look prettier if both are grown in the same beds. Try a few vegetables in with the flowers this year and see if you don't agree.

For instance, plant a row or groups of rhubarb chard with its deep crimson stems and leaf midriffs as a background for petunias of the same coloring as the chard stems.

OR TRY three plants of Purple-head cauliflower to a group, evenly spaced with tall-growing Yellow Zenith zinnias behind them and California poppies or Yellow Pygmy marigolds in front.

Plan a subtle color scheme with green peppers evenly spaced and groups of Sunset cosmos sown between the peppers. Even when the pepper fruits turn red the cosmos blooms will blend with them.

Or space red cabbage plants as you wish, using salvia Blue Bedder in the background and verbena Amethyst in the foreground.

RUBY lettuce with its bright red leaves might be alternated with patches of sweep alyssum for an interesting and different border planting or combined with the unique, green-flowered zinnia named Envy as a background plant.

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

✓ Keep fallen leaves and other debris from trees picked from lawn so as not to smother the grass.

✓ When planting bulbs in pots or containers, don't be afraid to crowd them in. The more you plant, the better the show.

✓ Plant pyracantha and other berried shrubs for fall-winter color. Most of these may be found already in berry at nurseries.

✓ October is an ideal planting month for all evergreen trees and shrubs, including the California natives such as ceanothus and fremontia.

✓ Prune out old canes on berry bushes and tie this year's growth up on the trellis. This year's growth bears next year's crop.

ELEGANCE IS supplied to this master bath with solid lumber paneling of creamy hemlock and an upholstered bench set under infra red lamps. Shower and water closet are in separate compartments, twin lavatories in vanity counter of adjoining dressing room. More attention is being paid bathroom decor now than ever before.

The Bath Gets A New Look

This year, decorating attention is being focused on the bathroom where a small revolution is taking place.

In recent times, bathrooms have gone all the way from the strictly utilitarian to gaudy showrooms imitative of a Roman bath.

The current trend is toward restrained elegance. Beauty is there and available to everyone who's remodeling or redecorating a bath.

MATERIALS ARE 90 per cent of the story.

Some materials are new — handsome and wonderful vinyl covered wallpapers. Some materials are old—wood paneling and cabinetwork. Some are holdovers from years past because of their inherent good looks and wearability — plastic laminates and ceramic tile.

Walls, windows and accessories will see the biggest change in this fall's decorating pattern.

SOLID LUMBER paneling, that mark of distinction in formal rooms, has invaded the bath. With panel boards sealed on both sides and clear, satin finish plastic laquer applied to the face, lumber paneling has bathroom use. Additionally, it has been a material that has swung the decorating pendulum from cold practicality to warm, eye-pleasing comfort.

Many woods will work well for bathroom use.

Red cedar is one that lends itself readily to bathroom walls because of its built-in moisture resistance. Finely grained hemlock is another, and its subtle champagne coloring is especially appreciated when decorating features brilliant color tones.

KNOTTY PONDEROSA pine has transferred from the party room to the bath where, with a black-brown stain or wipe-off paint treatment, it changes character from homey to exotic. Douglas fir is another interesting possibility, particularly for those who would repeat its natural sunshine colors of orange and gold in other materials, accenting them with lime, larkspur and purest white.

The woods mentioned are all straight-grained and combine well with textured and finely patterned vinyl wallpapers which may be used on other wall areas of the bath.

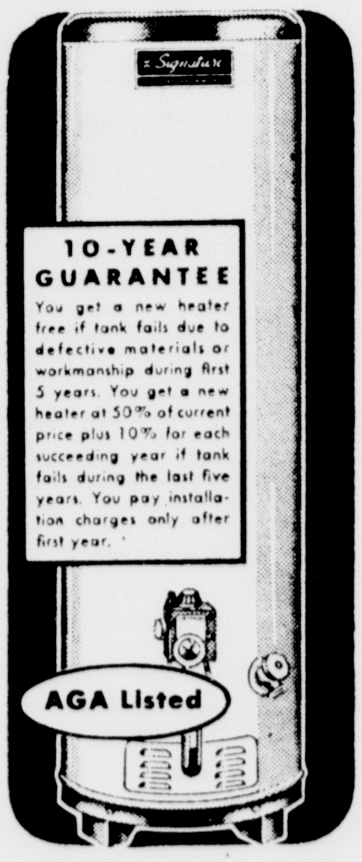

Other decorating ideas that are featured more this year include use of washbowls painted with fruit and flower motifs, handsome picture frames applied to mirrors to eliminate the sterile looking chrome strip, shuttered windows which admit light while insuring privacy, built-in ultraviolet lamps.

The double lavatory, in the master bath, is giving way, however. In its place is the more sensible arrangement of one in the bath and one in the dressing room, built into either a vanity or shaving stand.

Let's Do It With Doors

They Are Easily Converted Into Handsome Furniture Pieces

Nowadays doors not only stand up on their hinges and swing, slide or fold into openings . . . they also fall flat on their faces and are eaten, written, sat, mixed and picnicked on.

If you have been searching for a new dollar-stretching decorative idea . . . do it with doors.

Add a comfortable couch, a useful table or desk, or even a kitchen counter to your home by using a little ingenuity and a beautiful — but inexpensive — flush-panel plywood door. Cleanlined doors in rich golden tones of birch, for instance, can stand up to years of harsh wear and retain their good looks.

FOR A COUCH, mount a prefinished door on four wrought-iron or wooden legs, add foam rubber cushions and bolsters. Or use shorter cushions, leaving a 24-inch end of wood exposed. Top this end with a tall lamp for one of the new couch-table combos.

One door makes both a coffee table and an end table. Cut 24 inches off a six-foot, six-inch door that is 24 inches wide. Mount the two-foot square section on 24-inch legs and the four-foot six-inch piece on 15 or 18-inch legs.

Presto — a stunning matched pair of tables.

TO MAKE A desk, place a two-drawer filing cabinet under one end of the door and two table-height legs under the other.

Get a space-stretching kitchen counter-top, with the glow of old-fashioned kitchen warmth, by attaching one end of a yellow birch plywood door to your present counter (straight or at an angle, depending on your kitchen arrangement.) Use a counter-height yellow birch cabinet at the other end, for extra storage space and stability.

Thinking about dividers to add privacy and flexibility to your rooms? Then do it with doors.

A roll-away interior wall, made of three handsome sliding doors, can do exciting things in the right place. The doors travel on tracks and retract completely into an 18-inch wide by 10-and-a-half-foot high opening in the wall at one side.

SUCH A DIVIDER'S principal use, of course, is to make space flexible. You can convert your master bedroom, for example, into a suite with the touch of your hand.

Besides the wide variety of decorator ideas you can come up with for using doors in unusual ways, you may also profit by experimenting with doors used conventionally — that is, on hinges. For wisely selected doors can do a great deal more for your house than provide security and privacy and hide the contents of your closets.

The right door can save space where space is at a premium. A door can admit extra daylight into a room where there are not enough windows. A well-chosen door can help to carry out an architectural theme or serve as the architectural highlight of a house facade or a room.

How wide should a door be?

No less than three feet wide for exterior doors and for the door from kitchen to dining room.

For bedrooms and studies, a width of two feet, eight inches (three feet is better). For a bath, a width of two feet is all you really need.

For closets, use common-sense. Extra wide doors are heavy to move; too many small doors get in the way.

So next time you find yourself searching for a new dollar-stretching decorative idea . . . do it with doors; it's really an open and-shut case.

MAKING A COFFEE table, desk or counter top from a door is a lot easier than you might think. A handsome, but inexpensive, flush panel plywood door can be transformed without great difficulty into an attractive, durable piece of furniture.

BRIGHT IDEAS

POP ART, or whatever you wish to call it, can really function in your home, and you can manage it yourself. Construction oddities and eyesores can become centers of interest if properly handled. You can enhance projecting beams, plumbing ducts and other strange projections with crazy designs. A simple paint operation using masking tape is all you need. Just work at random with the tape and you'll be surprised at what happens. Or, if you don't want to fool with paint, use instead self-adhesive colored papers, cut into rectangles, triangles or squares. Utilize different color combinations, and make your own op panel that will continue across the wall. You, too, can be an op artist.

Dean Martin Takes Television In Stride

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "They make such a big deal about putting on a television show," scoffs sleepy-eyed Dean Martin. "Meetings, meetings, meetings all the time.

"Me, I do it the easy way."

Indeed he does. The Dean Martin method of staging a variety hour so shocked the sweat-and-strain laborers of the TV vineyards that all were predicting his way pointed to disaster.

BUT MARTIN won the battle of the ratings and has bounced back on NBC with another 30 hours this season.

"I've got writers, director, producer. I let them do what they're supposed to do. I go to the studio at 1 on Sunday afternoon and I'm out by 9. That's all there is to it," Martin explained.

Martin makes everything seem easy. He already has a dozen TV shows completed and is now starring in another Matt Helm romp, "Murderer's Row." He is also slated for a western with George Peppard at Universal and a comedy with Stella Stevens at Columbia.

HE IS CASUAL about his present prosperity: "I made three million dollars last year and only left the house four times."

He is jesting about the latter, but the three-million figure could well be accurate. He reports that his first Matt Helm epic, "The Silencers," grossed 12 million dollars and he owns 10 per cent. That plus his other films, the TV show, records, his appearances in Las Vegas and elsewhere put him in the same tycoon class with his pal Frank Sinatra.

Martin's daughters, Gail and Claudia, have careers of their own. And son Dino is a teen-age smash with his Dino, Desi (Arnaz) and Billy combo. They play a number in "Murderer's Row."

"THE KID MAKES a lot of money," says his admiring father. "Now he wants to buy a Ferrari, even though he can't drive it yet. He's only 15. When I was his age, I was trying to buy skates.

His entire family picture is satisfactory, said Martin, with one exception: "If I could only get my mother-in-law to work!"
